NINETEEN HUNDRED AND TWENTY-SIX years ago today, "as nearly as men can reckon it, with changing calendars and doubtful dates, a baby was born, in the Holy land, designed to have greater influence upon the world than all of the human beings born on earth, since time began.

From the hour when the mother first held that Divine infant in her arms, a better time began for all mothers and all children. The father had power of life and death over them. If unwelcome, they could be legally exposed in the public square, at birth, to be devoured by dogs, or taken to be raised as slaves.

FEW were the angry, or threatening words that Christ spoke and the strongest were warnings, in the defense of children.

For the man that hurt "one of these little ones," it were better that he were cast into the sea, with a millstone around his neck. And sternly men were warned, concerning the children, that "their angels do always behold the face of my Father, which is in Heaven."

FEW and uncertain are the historical facts concerning the life and work of Christ, a few authentic words, written by a Jewish historian: Nothing else. The rest is faith, and solemn scientists even affirm that Christ had no actual historical existence.

BUT there are truths about science and historical record, and the greatest among them deal with the works of Jesus, friend nad protector of women and children, and of the poor.

He lived here, a few years, died a shameful painful death, by slow torture, and the world has ben slowly growing better through the centuries that have passed, thanks to his teaching, and his example. There is less poverty, less cruelty, infinitely less misery of all kinds. And even the brutality, superstition, cruelty and selfishness, preached in his name by pretended Christians, have not been able to hold back his work.

CHRIST was put to death by order of Pilate, a Roman governor, ruling the Jews, and the method of his killing was a Roman punishment, crucifixion, unknown to Jewish law, and detested by it.

ROY CORBIN, 22, E. PALESTINE, GOES TO JAIL AS TWO DIE

Miner Surrenders in Probe of Coasters' Deaths.

Allege Accused Fled and Spent Night in Barn.

Roy Corbin, 22, coal miner, was held under $3,000 bond to await action by the Columbiana county grand jury when arraigned before Judge O. L. Butts in East Palestine last evening, on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the deaths of William Cartwright, 15, and Viola Burson, 14, who were struck by Corbin's automobile while coasting Sunday evening.

Witness Is Released.

Corbin, who surrendered to the East Palestine police Monday afternoon, offered no defense at the arraignment. He was unable to furnish bond and was taken to Lisbon last night, where he will be held in the county jail.

The accused motorist, accompanied by Elmer Coulter, was driving up the hill leading from a settlement known as Jimtown, south of East Palestine, when the crash occurred. Witnesses told police that the car was on the left side of the road and no headlights were burning at the time of the collision. Skulls of both coasters were crushed.

Police said that Corbin abandoned his car and fled after the accident. He spent the night in the hay mow of a barn at his home, they claim. Relatives induced him to surrender, it was said.

Coroner Investigates.

Coroner J. M. Van Fossan, East Palestine, had rendered no verdict in the children's deaths today, his investigation not having been completed.

The two victims were pupils in the East Palestine Junior high school. The Cartwright boy is survived by his parents, four brothers and three sisters. The Burson girl, who made her home with her step-father, John Biggins, in Jimtown, leaves two brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services for the two children will be held tomorrow afternoon in their respective homes. The Cartwright boy will be buried in the East Palestine cemetery, while the girl's body will be interred in the Achortown cemetery.

Eagles Yule Party Tomorrow Night for Members' Families

Members of East Liverpool aerie, No. 457, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will entertain their families at a Christmas party in the Broadway temple, tomorrow night.

A musical program will precede an address by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones, of Wellsville. Candy and oranges will be distributed by Santa Claus. The drill team will stage an exhibition. A dance will be the concluding feature.

No Mexican-American Break Over New Land Law Expected

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The zero hour in Mexican-American relations, set for Jan. 1, when Mexico's new land and petroleum laws become effective seems destined to arrive and pass without anything very serious taking place, despite the state department's veiled threats a month ago or a break in diplomatic relations.

The rapidity with which foreign oil concerns, whose holdings in Mexico are worth many hundreds of millions, have been falling into line and complaying with the Mexican government's new regulations has served to allay for the time being at least some of the tensity in the situation.

While the state department remains unshaken in its position that the new laws are communistic in theory and confiscatory in practice, the big oil companies are nevertheless apparently willing to take a chance on them, and are complying with the regulations in increasing numbers.

Protected Oil Holdings.

More than fifty of the biggest oil concerns doing business in Mexico, which include the principal American, British and Dutch corporations, have already acted to protect their holdings under the new regulations, according to the Mexican embassy. The corporations apparently decided it was better to play safe with the Calles government than to trust the tortuous game of diplomacy.

JUDGING BEGINS IN TRI-STATE POULTRY ASSOCIATION EXHIBIT

Week's Show in Traction Waiting Station is Open Morning, Afternoon and Evening.

Judging in the fourth annual exhibit of the Tri-State Foultry association, which opened yesterday on the second floor of the waiting station, Broadway and Washington streets, began today.

The production class is being judged by Prof. E. C. Foreman, of Lansing, Mich., while F. H. Ricketts, of Coshocton, will make awards in the show class. About 400 birds are on exhibition.

Breeds represented in the egg production class include Leghorns, Rhode Island Red, Ancona and Plymouth Rock. Chicken breeders from Warren, Lisbon, Irondale, Bulger, Pa., Midway, Pa., are represented. The largest type at the show is the Jersey Black Giant.

Foreman said today that the local show is about three times larger than the national poultry exhibit held at Chicago recently. He added that the quality of birds is higher than that at Chicago. Ricketts also praised of-

Two Bandits Get $20,000 in Hold-up Of Detroit Bank

DETROIT, Dec. 28.—Two bandits obtained approximately $20,000, it is estimated, by holding up a branch of the Commonwealth Savings Bank today.

The bandits worked behind locked doors. The branch manager and two employes arrived at the bank together and as they were opening the door the two bandits arrived on the scene. Without displaying their pistols they told the bank employes they were covered and then entered the bank with them. The door was locked behind them and the three employes were forced to open the vault.

Prosecutor Calls For Transcripts For Grand Jury

Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Comparatively few transcripts have been received, the prosecutor said.

Mrs. George Murphy Dies in Racine; Funeral Thursday

Mrs. Mary Ella Croxall Murphy, widow of George C. Murphy, former East Liverpool clothier and pottery manufacturer, died in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Underwood, in Racine, Wis., today.

The body will arrive here tomorrow, and will be taken to the home in West Third street Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, in charge of Rev. D. W. MacLeod, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Mrs. Murphy, who, besides Mrs. Underwood, is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Helen Arbuthnot, of Detroit, Mich., was a daughter of Jesse Corxall and a sister of Frank H. Croxall, for many years a partner of J. S. Hilbert and the late George H. Owens in George H. Oowen & Company, real estate nad insurance brokers. Her husband died about five years ago.

The body may be viewed tomorrow evening.

PRETTY GIRL IS HURLED TO HER DEATH IN NEW YORK CITY

SKULL CRUSHED

"Hell Kitchen" Gangsters are Sought as Murderers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The body of Bella Stokes, a pretty 22-year-old blonde, was discovered early today crumpled in the snow in the rear of a building at 442 West Forty-first street. She was apparently hurled to her death from a third-story window by assailants.

Police are searching for two "Hell Kitchen" gangsters as the murderers.

The murder missed being thwarted only by a matter of minutes. A passer-by saw two men dragging a well-dressed girl into the hallway of a Forty-first street tenement and notified the police. When detectives came to investigate the girl's body lay beneath an open window. Her skull was crushed and her body showed bruises.

Girl's Assailants Escape.

A trail of blood inside the building led police to consider the possibility that the girl was slain before being thrown out the window.

Neighbors reported hearing screams from the apartment. A hat and woman's handbag were discovered in the room over the vacant apartment where the window was open. The girl's attacke rs escaped over roofs.

The body of the dead girl was identified by a friend, May Roster, who said the victim was married.

More than 100 reservations have been made for the party. W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the Homer Laughlin China company, will be toastmaster. The committee on arrangements includes Wells, C. V. Beatty and R. L. F. Chambers.

A dance will follow Miss Stahl's program. DeMar Miller's orchestra will play.

Guard Texan Who Tells Police he Killed 13 Persons

FARWELL, Texas, Dec. 28.—Extra guards were placed around the jail here today, as a result of the latest statement by George J. Hassell, admitted slayer of his wife and eight step-children.

Efforts were being made to check details of the statement with California authorities.

After admitting he beat, choked, and shot to death his wife and children, Hassell last night told of killing a woman and three children in California three years ago. He refused to give the name of the woman or the place where the killings are alleged to have occurred.

YOUTHFUL OHIOAN SAYS HE SHOT HALF BROTHER AND THEN STRUCK WOMAN

Leo Halterman Pleads Guilty When Arraigned at Washington C. H. for Killings on Farm, and Then is Spirited Away by Sheriff Who Fears High Feeling in Community.

DETECTIVE ORA SLATER GRILLS HIM; SHOWS WEAPONS USED IN CRIME

Prisoner Tells Cincinnati Sleuth That he Slew Charles Halterman After Argument, Then Clubbed Sister-in-law Over Head With Shotgun, But Denies Wielding Hatchet.

WASHINGTON C. H., O., Dec. 28.—Leo Halterman, 26, early this morning pleaded guilty to two charges of murder when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Murray, for the killing of his half brother, Charles Halterman, and the latter's wife, Carrie.

He was bound over to the grand jury without bail, and spirited out of the county, as Sheriff Ramsay feared an attempt might be made on the life of the young Blessing's Corner farmer.

County Prosecutor Maddox said he would call a special grand jury session to hear the case before January 1.

Halterman confessed late last night after authorities and detectives grilled him for several hours, showing him the bloody clothes and the shotgun and hatchet with which the murders were committed.

"I feel better now," Halterman declared, after he had confessed.

Former Farm Hand Released.

Samuel Saterfield, a former employe of the slain couple, has been released from custody. Saterfield was held for investigation after Leo Halterman told officers that Mrs. Halterman, the murdered woman, had screamed: "Oh, don't Sam! they are going to kill Charley! shortly before the bodies were found.

"When I saw Sam leave the jail, I knew the jig was up," Halterman told the officers. "I haven't had a minute's peaceful sleep since the killing. The form of Charles kept flitting in and out of my cell and his voice kept crying 'Leo! Leo!' that's why I've confessed."

Ora Slater Called In.

The murdered couple were killed early last Thursday. Leo Halterman told officers that he was awakened by the woman's scream, and rushed into the back yard, to find Mrs. Halterman lying on the ground with her skull crushed. The body of his half-brother, shot several times with a shotgun, was found near the chickenhouse. He declared that his half-brother and the latter's wife had evidently heard a disturbance in their chicken-house, and had gone out to investigate. An automobile was heard driving swiftly away immediately after the killings, he said.

On information furnished by Halterman's story, county officers arrested Saterfield, a former farm-hand for the slain man, with whom he was said to have quarrelled recently. Certain discrepancies in the story told by Halterman, however, led the sheriff also to place the latter under arrest, and he has been grilled almost continuously in the county jail here for three days. His confession came early today, after Ora Slater, famous Cincinnati detective who solved the Don R. Mellett murder, and other mysteries, had been called in.

Killings Follow Argument.

County officials grilled Halterman for several hours, while Slater sat in the room as a spectator. Time and again he refused to admit the crimes.

Eventually Slater interposed: "Leo, don't you want to talk to me privately," he asked quietly, as he walked to the door of another room. Halterman followed, and in a few minutes Slater asked for a stenographer to record the confession.

Charles and Leo Halterman rose early the morning of th murder, ac-

Slater's "Homespun Philosophy" Solves Another Slaying

WASHINGTON COURTHOUSE, O., Dec. 28.—Ora Slater, celebrated Cincinnati detective, and his "homespun philosophy," have proved victorious again in unraveling an apparently puzzling murder mystery.

The quiet-voiced, kindly-mannered Slater sat silent and heard county authorities grill Leo Halterman, 26-year-old farmer, about the slaying of Halterman's half-brother and the wife of the latter, for hours. Finally, Slater asked if the prisoner "didn't want to talk to him alone."

Half an hour later, the pair emerged from the room, to summon a stenographer to take down Halterman's written confession that he had killed the couple, and sought to throw suspicion on another man.

Slater's "homespun philosophy" and his unostentatious methods solved the Mellett murder mystery at Canton, and obtained a confession from Jake Nesbit in the famous Troy, Ohio, murder mystery of Mrs. Nesbit.

26,628 PERSONS MET DEATH IN UNITED STATES IN 1925 IN ACCIDENTS IN WHICH MOTOR CARS WERE INVOLVED, HERBERT HOOVER SAYS

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WA HINGTON, Dec. 28.—American streets are day by day getting more perilous for pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

A report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover today by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, disclosed that in 1925 there was one automobile fatality to every 923 registered machines.

More than 21,620 persons died of accidents in which automobiles alone figured. Including accidents in which motor cars were involved, but which were charged against railroads and electric lines 26,628 persons met death. Motor registration was given as 19,954,347.

While figures are not yet available for this year estimates fix motor fatalities at a higher figure than in 1925, and indicate that the death rate has been higher.

Death Rate Increasing.

"Emphasis should be given the fact that the death rate from automobile accidents is increasing rapidly year after year, and that the street hazard, for every one, is becoming greater and greater," the report said.

Iowa, North Dakota and Nebraska made the best records with more than 2,000 automobiles registered in each state to each motor fatality.

In Florida one death occurred in each 597 automobiles, while in New York, where there were 1,625,583 registered machines, deaths were one to each 731 cars.

Ohio's Toll Heavy.

Statistics disclosed that in states where the greatest number of automobiles were registered, the death rate per car was usually heaviest.

More than 10,000 persons were killed in New York, California, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan, where 8,930,000 of the automobiles in the United States were registered.

California had the best record in this group with one death to each 926 automobiles. Other states show one death to 919 cars in Michigan, one death to 916 cars in Ohio, one death to 832 cars in Illinois and one death to 802 cars in Pennsylvania.

Better Regulation Demanded.

The number of machines registered cannot be taken as the true index of the volume of automobile traffic since in a number of states with a small number of machines mileage travel is heaviest, according to the report.

"The increasing number of cars should no lead to the belief that the number of deaths must continue to climb," the report continued.

"Nor should the increase in automobile fatalities be excused on the ground that the number of automobiles, and therefore the risk, has grown.

Better regulation must be enacted. A problem has been presented that calls for drastic safety measures."

ROY CORBIN, 22, E. PALESTINE, GOES TO JAIL AS TWO DIE

Miner Surrenders in Probe of Coasters' Deaths.

Allege Accused Fled and Spent Night in Barn.

Roy Corbin, 22, coal miner, was held under $3,000 bond to await action by the Columbiana county grand jury when arraigned before Judge O. L. Butts in East Palestine last evening, on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the deaths of William Cartwright, 15, and Viola Burson, 14, who were struck by Corbin's automobile while coasting Sunday evening.

Witness Is Released.

Corbin, who surrendered to the East Palestine police Monday afternoon, offered no defense at the arraignment. He was unable to furnish bond and was taken to Lisbon last night, where he will be held in the county jail.

The accused motorist, accompanied by Elmer Coulter, was driving up the hill leading from a settlement known as Jimtown, south of East Palestine, when the crash occurred. Witnesses told police that the car was on the left side of the road and no headlights were burning at the time of the collision. Skulls of both coasters were crushed.

Police said that Corbin abandoned his car and fled after the accident. He spent the night in the hay mow of a barn at his home, they claim. Relatives induced him to surrender, it was said.

Coroner Investigates.

Coroner J. M. Van Fossan, East Palestine, had rendered no verdict in the children's deaths today, his investigation not having been completed.

The two victims were pupils in the East Palestine Junior high school. The Cartwright boy is survived by his parents, four brothers and three sisters. The Burson girl, who made her home with her step-father, John Biggins, in Jimtown, leaves two brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services for the two children will be held tomorrow afternoon in their respective homes. The Cartwright boy will be buried in the East Palestine cemetery, while the girl's body will be interred in the Achortown cemetery.

No Mexican-American Break Over New Land Law Expected

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The zero hour in Mexican-American relations, set for Jan. 1, when Mexico's new land and petroleum laws become effective seems destined to arrive and pass without anything very serious taking place, despite the state department's veiled threats a month ago or a break in diplomatic relations.

Protected Oil Holdings.

More than fifty of the biggest oil concerns doing business in Mexico, which include the principal American, British and Dutch corporations, have already acted to protect their holdings under the new regulations, according to the Mexican embassy. The corporations apparently decided it was better to play safe with the Calles government than to trust the tortuous game of diplomacy.

Guard Texan Who Tells Police he Killed 13 Persons

FARWELL, Texas, Dec. 28.—Extra guards were placed around the jail here today, as a result of the latest statement by George J. Hassell, admitted slayer of his wife and eight step-children.

Efforts were being made to check details of the statement with California authorities.

After admitting he beat, choked, and shot to death his wife and children, Hassell last night told of killing a woman and three children in California three years ago. He refused to give the name of the woman or the place where the killings are alleged to have occurred.

YOUTHFUL OHIOAN SAYS HE SHOT HALF BROTHER AND THEN STRUCK WOMAN

Leo Halterman Pleads Guilty When Arraigned at Washington C. H. for Killings on Farm, and Then is Spirited Away by Sheriff Who Fears High Feeling in Community.

DETECTIVE ORA SLATER GRILLS HIM; SHOWS WEAPONS USED IN CRIME

Prisoner Tells Cincinnati Sleuth That he Slew Charles Halterman After Argument, Then Clubbed Sister-in-law Over Head With Shotgun, But Denies Wielding Hatchet.

WASHINGTON C. H., O., Dec. 28.—Leo Halterman, 26, early this morning pleaded guilty to two charges of murder when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Murray, for the killing of his half brother, Charles Halterman, and the latter's wife, Carrie.

He was bound over to the grand jury without bail, and spirited out of the county, as Sheriff Ramsay feared an attempt might be made on the life of the young Blessing's Corner farmer.

County Prosecutor Maddox said he would call a special grand jury session to hear the case before January 1.

Halterman confessed late last night after authorities and detectives grilled him for several hours, showing him the bloody clothes and the shotgun and hatchet with which the murders were committed.

"I feel better now," Halterman declared, after he had confessed.

Former Farm Hand Released.

Samuel Saterfield, a former employe of the slain couple, has been released from custody. Saterfield was held for investigation after Leo Halterman told officers that Mrs. Halterman, the murdered woman, had screamed: "Oh, don't Sam! they are going to kill Charley! shortly before the bodies were found.

"When I saw Sam leave the jail, I knew the jig was up," Halterman told the officers. "I haven't had a minute's peaceful sleep since the killing. The form of Charles kept flitting in and out of my cell and his voice kept crying 'Leo! Leo!' that's why I've confessed."

Ora Slater Called In.

The murdered couple were killed early last Thursday. Leo Halterman told officers that he was awakened by the woman's scream, and rushed into the back yard, to find Mrs. Halterman lying on the ground with her skull crushed. The body of his half-brother, shot several times with a shotgun, was found near the chickenhouse. He declared that his half-brother and the latter's wife had evidently heard a disturbance in their chicken-house, and had gone out to investigate. An automobile was heard driving swiftly away immediately after the killings, he said.

On information furnished by Halterman's story, county officers arrested Saterfield, a former farm-hand for the slain man, with whom he was said to have quarrelled recently. Certain discrepancies in the story told by Halterman, however, led the sheriff also to place the latter under arrest, and he has been grilled almost continuously in the county jail here for three days. His confession came early today, after Ora Slater, famous Cincinnati detective who solved the Don R. Mellett murder, and other mysteries, had been called in.

Killings Follow Argument.

County officials grilled Halterman for several hours, while Slater sat in the room as a spectator. Time and again he refused to admit the crimes.

Eventually Slater interposed: "Leo, don't you want to talk to me privately," he asked quietly, as he walked to the door of another room. Halterman followed, and in a few minutes Slater asked for a stenographer to record the confession.

Charles and Leo Halterman rose early the morning of th murder, ac-

Slater's "Homespun Philosophy" Solves Another Slaying

WASHINGTON COURTHOUSE, O., Dec. 28.—Ora Slater, celebrated Cincinnati detective, and his "homespun philosophy," have proved victorious again in unraveling an apparently puzzling murder mystery.

The quiet-voiced, kindly-mannered Slater sat silent and heard county authorities grill Leo Halterman, 26-year-old farmer, about the slaying of Halterman's half-brother and the wife of the latter, for hours. Finally, Slater asked if the prisoner "didn't want to talk to him alone."

Half an hour later, the pair emerged from the room, to summon a stenographer to take down Halterman's written confession that he had killed the couple, and sought to throw suspicion on another man.

Slater's "homespun philosophy" and his unostentatious methods solved the Mellett murder mystery at Canton, and obtained a confession from Jake Nesbit in the famous Troy, Ohio, murder mystery of Mrs. Nesbit.

26,628 PERSONS MET DEATH IN UNITED STATES IN 1925 IN ACCIDENTS IN WHICH MOTOR CARS WERE INVOLVED, HERBERT HOOVER SAYS

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—American streets are day by day getting more perilous for pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

A report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover today by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, disclosed that in 1925 there was one automobile fatality to every 923 registered machines.

More than 21,620 persons died of accidents in which automobiles alone figured. Including accidents in which motor cars were involved, but which were charged against railroads and electric lines 26,628 persons met death. Motor registration was given as 19,954,347.

While figures are not yet available for this year estimates fix motor fatalities at a higher figure than in 1925, and indicate that the death rate has been higher.

Death Rate Increasing.

"Emphasis should be given the fact that the death rate from automobile accidents is increasing rapidly year after year, and that the street hazard, for every one, is becoming greater and greater," the report said.

Iowa, North Dakota and Nebraska made the best records with more than 2,000 automobiles registered in each state to each motor fatality.

In Florida one death occurred in each 597 automobiles, while in New York, where there were 1,625,583 registered machines, deaths were one to each 731 cars.

Ohio's Toll Heavy.

Statistics disclosed that in states where the greatest number of automobiles were registered, the death rate per car was usually heaviest.

More than 10,000 persons were killed in New York, California, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan, where 8,930,000 of the automobiles in the United States were registered.

California had the best record in this group with one death to each 926 automobiles. Other states show one death to 919 cars in Michigan, one death to 916 cars in Ohio, one death to 832 cars in Illinois and one death to 802 cars in Pennsylvania.

Better Regulation Demanded.

The number of machines registered cannot be taken as the true index of the volume of automobile traffic since in a number of states with a small number of machines mileage travel is heaviest, according to the report.

"The increasing number of cars should no lead to the belief that the number of deaths must continue to climb," the report continued.

"Nor should the increase in automobile fatalities be excused on the ground that the number of automobiles, and therefore the risk, has grown.

Better regulation must be enacted. A problem has been presented that calls for drastic safety measures."

ALL-OHIO TOUR OF "POOR NUT"

Buckeye State Boy Co-author and Leading Man.

Patterson McNutt, the theatrical producer, announced this week that he had completed arrangements for an All-Ohio tour of "The Poor Nut" which has Elliott Nugent, an Ohio boy, as featured player. Following a run of 20 weeks at the Cort theatre in Chicago, the college comedy will begin the Ohio engagement at the Hartman theatre, Columbus, the week of January 17, with an extended tour of the state to follow.

In addition to playing the title role, young Nugent is also co-author of the play with his father, J. C. Nugent. Father and son gained prominence a few seasons ago by writing "Kempy," while the famous Nugent family, J. C. Elliott and Ruth, have been associated with a number of Broadway successes including, "Duley," "The Trouper," "Kempy," "The Poor Nut," "The Family Upstairs," "God Loves Us" and others. Their home is in Dover, Ohio.

Additional significance is added to the state-wide tour in that the play deals with undergraduate athletic activities at Ohio State university of which young Nugent is an alumnus. Consequently, this institution is planning a tremendous reception for him at Columbus, and the various branches of the O. S. U. Alumni society throughout the stage will stage similar demonstrations when "The Poor Nut" plays other cities. Governor Donahey, President Rightmire of O. S. U. and other prominent state and educational officials will be guests of honor at the initial Ohio performance.

"The Poor Nut" is one of the outstanding successes of recent seasons, having to its credit a record of 42 weeks in New York, 10 weeks in Boston, eight weeks in Philadelphia, in addition to its long Chicago engagement.

Young Nugent's supporting cast will be virtually the same as appeared on Broadway, including such well known players as Norma Lee, Betty Garde, Percy Helton, Beach Cooke, Frazer Coulter, Larry Fletcher, Harry Gresham, Thomas Shearer, Robert Scott, Eric Kalkhurst, Cornelius Roddy, Edith Leiter, Gladys Winthrop, Betty Clifford and others.

EAST END

NEW ROAD FOR BEAVER COUNTY

Probably the greatest road building project, from an engineering standpoint ever attempted in Beaver county is being carried forward in the south rn end of the county. This project is the building of a road along the Ohio river bank, from South Heights borough to Woodlawn. The two construction companies, which are under contract for the grading, have already completed about one-half of their work. The road bed is being cut from the side of the hill, and in making, requires the moving of millions of cubic yards of earth and rocks.

It is expected that this road will be completed by the time the new traffic bridge between Ambridge and Woodlawn is opened for travel. The west approach to the new bridge will be directly from this road. This project is being carried on by the state.

New Year Services.

Services ushering in the new year will be held Friday night in the local churches. Pastors will take part in the ceremonies which will be preceded by watch night services.

EAST END

NEW ROAD FOR BEAVER COUNTY

Probably the greatest road building project, from an engineering standpoint ever attempted in Beaver county is being carried forward in the south rn end of the county. This project is the building of a road along the Ohio river bank, from South Heights borough to Woodlawn. The two construction companies, which are under contract for the grading, have already completed about one-half of their work. The road bed is being cut from the side of the hill, and in making, requires the moving of millions of cubic yards of earth and rocks.

It is expected that this road will be completed by the time the new traffic bridge between Ambridge and Woodlawn is opened for travel. The west approach to the new bridge will be directly from this road. This project is being carried on by the state.

New Year Services.

Services ushering in the new year will be held Friday night in the local churches. Pastors will take part in the ceremonies which will be preceded by watch night services.

Revival Planned.

Plant Workers To Dance.

Employes of the East End plants of the Homer Laughlin China company plan to attend the dance to be held Friday night in the Eagles' hall, Broadway. Music will be furnished by DeMar Miller's orchestra.

Mid-Week Services.

Mid-week prayer services will be held tomorrow night in the churches of this section of the city. Pastors will be in charge of the meetings.

Alexander Funeral Services.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elvina Alexander, 84 years old, widow of George Alexander, who died at her home in Ohio township, will be held at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the New Salem Presbyterian church in charge of Rev. Hermann M. Hosack. Burial will be made in New Salem cemetery.

Wolf Funeral.

Funeral services for Joseph Henry Wolf, 78 years old, who died suddenly as a result of a paralytic stroke, were held this afternoon in the home at Smith's Ferry, Pa. Burial was made in Long's Run cemetery.

THE NAME TELLS A TRUE STORY

The very name, Foley's Honey and Tar compound, tells why, without opiates or chloroform, it is so quickly effective in stopping coughs and in healing the distressing cause. Because it alone combines the curative virtues of pure Pine Tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying demulcent effects of clear fresh Honey. From 651 E. 46th St., Chicago, comes this: "A stubborn cough worried me, kept me awake nights, and resisted other cough medicines, but quickly yielded to your good Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My druggist recommended it." Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX.

Hester looked up, hardly hearing; than read on.

"Well, all I can say is, don't look for me early, dear. And oh, by the way, there's a man waiting for you."

"I'm not going out there."

"I'd give it another thought if I were you. He's pretty important."

Sadie was getting into the big coat. She looked very pretty. And there was mockery in her eyes. She remarked finally, "All I can say is, I'd go."

Hester simply didn't hear. Another page rustled.

"Well," observed Sadie, brightly enough, "life goes on. It does go on. And there's always the next best thing." With which bit of worldly wisdom, she stepped into the night, letting the flaps fall behind her.

A little later Jim Wilde called between the flaps, "There's somebody here to see you, Hester. Can you come out?"

"No," said she, without lifting her eyes, "I can't."

Jim lowered his voice. "It's John Watson. He's waiting. Aren't you dressed?"

"I don't care if it's Calvin Coolidge I can't come."

He said something further which she didn't hear. Another page turned, and another, and another.

She was half through the second act before the other girls returned from the supper. Even then, she didn't look up. Absently, hardly hearing her own voice, she asked if they minded the light burning. She never knew what they replied. They were chattering about something that happened. Something they seemed to think exciting. Joe's father had appeared in the lunch room and dragged him away for good. And Jim had already telephoned up to Hollywood for a man to fill his place. It meant rehearsing. And Joe's father was surprisingly young looking. It seemed only a moment later that their clothes were hung up and themselves tucked away in their cots; and hardly more than another intense moment before she had finished the last page and found herself slowly closing the script. She was stiff then, and cold.

Grace stirred and opened her eyes.

"Great Heavens, you still there, Hester?"

"Yes. Sorry I disturbed you?"

"You didn't. But what on earth are you up to?"

"I've read Julian's play."

"Any good?"

There was a long silence. Finally Hester cried out, softly, and unsteadily, "What a fool I am!"

Grace looked up then, blinking under the light. But she saw that Hester was crying; a shivering little figure in the bridal costume of the eighteen-forties with frank tears on her cheeks.

"You should have put something around yourself. You'll be down with broncho-pneumonia the first thing you know. Haven't you learned that you can't take liberties with this climate?"

Hester got to her feet and stood in a daze.

"What's the matter with you, child?"

Blindly the girl extended the script. "This," she said. Then she moved toward the rear of the tent.

Grace lifted herself on an elbow. "Where are you going, for heaven's sake?"

"To find him."

"But it's half-past twelve. He'll be asleep."

"Then I'll wake him."

"Have you gone off your head?"

"Do you think I can sleep . . . after this?" She was waving the script, shakily.

"You don't mean to say it's as good as that?"

Hester stood looking helplessly toward her.

"I understood Murry said it wasn't much good."

Now Hester found her voice. Her little round face fairly blazed out from the encircling mist of the veil. "Murry!" There was a world of indignation, almost of contempt, in the one explosive word that disposed forever, so far as the life of this small person was concerned, of the pathetically spacious J. Murry Watt. "Murry! What does he know of the modern theatre? My God, he dates from Bulwer Lytton. This is the most beautiful play I ever read. It is subtle, poignant, equisite. Of course he seemed queer. Why shouldn't he? He's as sensitive and gentle as Barrie, and as keen for character as Robert Johns. He has a beautiful soul. And to think that he . . . . he gave it to me . . ."

"Gave it to you?"

" . . . gave it to me, and I wouldn't even read it. What could have been the matter with me? I was crazy. This"—she banged a hand down on the play—"this is real. It's true! It's true! It's perfect! It's the one kind of thing I can do!" she was talking breathlessly, but vehemently through the tears, not caring who might hear or see. Abruptly, interrupting herself at this point, she turned to go.

"You might at least turn out the light," observed Grace pettishly, and flopped over on her side.

Grouppingly, Hester found the switch. Then she ran out, stumbling over a suit case and all but falling.

"For Heaven's sake, be careful!" cried Grace. "Don't break your neck! And you'd better put something around . . . ." But the flaps had fallen shut.

The light was still on in the men's tent. She called softly, "Julian!"

"Julian isn't here." It was Jim's voice. "What do you want of him at this time of night?"

But she heard only part of this. She stumbled out behind the cyclorama. There, parked in the shadow was his car. She moved toward it. Then she saw a shadow within it darker than the others, and hesitated. Her knees gave under her. But she gathered her courage and went on.

There he sat, upright, alone in the dark, pressing a hand to his battered face. She was still crying, but what did that matter?

She spoke his name, timidly . . . . . "Julian."

"Yes," he said. Just "yes." He didn't move. He didn't so much as ask her to sit with him in the car. But why should he? After all that she . . A sob came.

Powerful Modern Story of Sea at American.

"Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea) which Rex Ingram produced in Europe for Metro-Goldwyn, had its first showing yesterday at the American theatre, where it opened a four-day run. It is one of the finest pictures ever made in America or Europe.

Ingram has again demonstrated his ability to combine a strong dramatic story with pictorial beauty and marvelous performances on the part of his leading players, and produce a worthwhile picture.

"Mare Nostrum" is one of Blasco Ibanez's most widely read stories. In transferring it to the film Ingram has lost none of the powerful drama. It is a production which reflects great credit to Ingram and to all those associated with it.

As Freya Talberg the clever spy, Alice Terry has a part entirely different to anything she has previously done before the camera. Her skillful handling of the difficult role elevates her to new heights as an actress.

Antonio Morenzo is most convincing as Ulysses Ferragut, the Spanish sea captain. A native of Spain Morena has long awaited an opportunity to enact a modern Spanish part. He takes advantage of his opportunity in "Mare Nostrum" and gives the best performance of his career.

Mount Vesuvius, the ruins of Pompeii, the ruins of the old temples of Paestum, which are more than 2,550 years old, the harbors and water fronts of Marseilles and Barcelona, the French and Italian Rivieras, Naples and many other places shown in "Mare Nostrum" are a part of the picture.

The story of "Mare Nostrum" concerns the experiences of Freya Talberg, a beautiful spy in the services of her country, and Ulysses Ferragut, the last of the famous family of seafaring Ferraguts.

Combat Thrills In 'Ben Hur,' Booked By Ceramic Theatre

The dash of the American attack in pictures never found more appropriate use than in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle of "Ben-Hur," which opens a three-day run at the Ceramic theatre Thursday. A sea fight, the equivalent of a Roman naval war, is visualized in 15 minutes packed with thrills. Just a few of the incidents:

Evolutions of two fleets aggregating 100 vessels. Chaining of the doomed slaves in the Roman flagship, poignantly contrasted with the escape of unshackled Ben-Hur. Ramming and boarding of the Roman vessels. Onslaught of the pirate Golthar and his men, bearing aloft on their pikes the heads of slaughtered Romans. The Romans' stout defense by Greek fire, ballistics, javelins, spears, pikes and ultimately the very pins and blocks of the ship. The firing of the flagship, the fate of the doomed oarsmen, the leaps of hundreds of the badly seared fighters into the sea, the rescue of the commander-in-chief by the sole slave that escaped, the parade of the Romans after their general victory, the thrilling salutation to the returned commander, Arrius, whose orders won the action though his individual ship went down.

Fred Niblo took acres of land and built upon it a race course and a great Antioch circus for the sole purpose of filming the chariot race sequence in the Lew Wallace story. This construction was begun near Culver City in July and not completed until October. The great Circus Maximus extended 1,500 feet along the sides of the course and towered 150 feet above it. Huge sculptured gladiators, 35 feet high and each weighing several tons, marked the ends of the spina, insula or island around which the track goes. Twelve drivers with their 12 teams of four horses each were in rehearsal for nearly a month before the great day of the race which was characterized by thrills and hair-breadth escapes.

The sixth lap was the most exciting. Mickey Millerick, a famous horseman, driving the Byzantine team of roans, caught the inner rail at the south turn and just behind the Roman team. In doing so he crowded the Greek, Sididian, Corinthian and Athenian teams far wide. The first went down and soon the others piled on top of him. There were actual shrieks from the throngs and it seemed that some one must be hurt, perhaps fatally.

Ben-Hur (Ramon Novarro) had luckily gone wide and escaped the wreck. He went on to get even at the beginning of the seventh and last lap, and then the grant incident of the story was enacted. Messala's wheel was torn off and he was smashed beneath his chariot and team. Ben-Hur went on to win easily amid the cheers of the vast crowd.

Wilbur M. Bates, the veracious historian of the stage "Ben-Hur" back in 1899, stated with considerable pride that its treadmill chariot race cost $19,500. The whole "Ben-Hur" production of that day, he said, cost in the neighborhood of $79,000. The difference between that time and this is illustrated by the statement that it took three years instead of two months to get the "Ben-Hur" picture ready. The Circus Maximus racing and the sea fight mentioned at the beginning of this article cost at least half a million apiece and the labors of many thousands of persons. The total cost of the picture is around $4,000,000.

"Mare Nostrum" is one of Blasco Ibanez's most widely read stories. In transferring it to the film Ingram has lost none of the powerful drama. It is a production which reflects great credit to Ingram and to all those associated with it.

As Freya Talberg the clever spy, Alice Terry has a part entirely different to anything she has previously done before the camera. Her skillful handling of the difficult role elevates her to new heights as an actress.

Antonio Morenzo is most convincing as Ulysses Ferragut, the Spanish sea captain. A native of Spain Morena has long awaited an opportunity to enact a modern Spanish part. He takes advantage of his opportunity in "Mare Nostrum" and gives the best performance of his career.

Mount Vesuvius, the ruins of Pompeii, the ruins of the old temples of Paestum, which are more than 2,550 years old, the harbors and water fronts of Marseilles and Barcelona, the French and Italian Rivieras, Naples and many other places shown in "Mare Nostrum" are a part of the picture.

The story of "Mare Nostrum" concerns the experiences of Freya Talberg, a beautiful spy in the services of her country, and Ulysses Ferragut, the last of the famous family of seafaring Ferraguts.

Combat Thrills In 'Ben Hur,' Booked By Ceramic Theatre

The dash of the American attack in pictures never found more appropriate use than in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle of "Ben-Hur," which opens a three-day run at the Ceramic theatre Thursday. A sea fight, the equivalent of a Roman naval war, is visualized in 15 minutes packed with thrills. Just a few of the incidents:

Evolutions of two fleets aggregating 100 vessels. Chaining of the doomed slaves in the Roman flagship, poignantly contrasted with the escape of unshackled Ben-Hur. Ramming and boarding of the Roman vessels. Onslaught of the pirate Golthar and his men, bearing aloft on their pikes the heads of slaughtered Romans. The Romans' stout defense by Greek fire, ballistics, javelins, spears, pikes and ultimately the very pins and blocks of the ship. The firing of the flagship, the fate of the doomed oarsmen, the leaps of hundreds of the badly seared fighters into the sea, the rescue of the commander-in-chief by the sole slave that escaped, the parade of the Romans after their general victory, the thrilling salutation to the returned commander, Arrius, whose orders won the action though his individual ship went down.

Fred Niblo took acres of land and built upon it a race course and a great Antioch circus for the sole purpose of filming the chariot race sequence in the Lew Wallace story. This construction was begun near Culver City in July and not completed until October. The great Circus Maximus extended 1,500 feet along the sides of the course and towered 150 feet above it. Huge sculptured gladiators, 35 feet high and each weighing several tons, marked the ends of the spina, insula or island around which the track goes. Twelve drivers with their 12 teams of four horses each were in rehearsal for nearly a month before the great day of the race which was characterized by thrills and hairbreadth escapes.

The sixth lap was the most exciting. Mickey Millerick, a famous horseman, driving the Byzantine team of roans, caught the inner rail at the south turn and just behind the Roman team. In doing so he crowded the Greek, Sididian, Corinthian and Athenian teams far wide. The first went down and soon the others piled on top of him. There were actual shrieks from the throngs and it seemed that some one must be hurt, perhaps fatally.

Ben-Hur (Ramon Novarro) had luckily gone wide and escaped the wreck. He went on to get even at the beginning of the seventh and last lap, and then the grant incident of the story was enacted. Messala's wheel was torn off and he was smashed beneath his chariot and team. Ben-Hur went on to win easily amid the cheers of the vast crowd.

Wilbur M. Bates, the veracious historian of the stage "Ben-Hur" back in 1899, stated with considerable pride that its treadmill chariot race cost $19,500. The whole "Ben-Hur" production of that day, he said, cost in the neighborhood of $79,000. The difference between that time and this is illustrated by the statement that it took three years instead of two months to get the "Ben-Hur" picture ready. The Circus Maximus racing and the sea fight mentioned at the beginning of this article cost at least half a million apiece and the labors of many thousands of persons. The total cost of the picture is around $4,000,000.

Hard Tests For Drivers

Officials in Leipzig, Germany, certainly take automobile driving seriously. Every prospective driver has to be tested as to his fitness for performing that work intelligently and safely.

A laboratory has been established in which the candidate for a driver's license sits at the steering wheel of a detached control section of an automobile. Close in front of him is a screen on which is thrown a moving picture of traffic in a congested section. He must then manipulate his controls to avoid the dangers presented in the picture. Every move he makes is automatically recorded, revealing any mistakes in judgment and the speed of his reactions. Other bits of equipment show up his psychological reactions and his general steadiness or unsteadiness. Still another machine tests his strength and endurance under strain.

If he gets by all those things satisfactorily and has the price for a car, apparently he is allowed to have his license.

There are a lot of foolish drivers in this country whom the public could well afford to eliminate by some such tests.

Court Technicalities

Court technicalities have become a byword in this country, because they are so regularly invoked for the obstruction of justice. It is usually felt, however, that the correction of this evil is a tremendously difficult task.

The legal profession seems to dodge responsibility for it. Lawyers insist that they are within their rights, and moreover that if the rules were ignored, the whole system of justice would crumble. Judges protest that they are helpless. The buck is passed to legislatures.

This is all a mistake, says Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh of Chicago, who has been on the bench for 30 years. Speaking of the way England, from which our judicial system is borrowed, has swept away this maze of entangling technicalities, he says:

"This relief can be had in the United States without the aid of any legislation whatever. The courts themselves have in themselves the power and duty to correct these absurd technicalities."

They were not created by legislatures, he says. "They are all judge-made laws, and have been followed by other judges until they become precedents." These precedents are not compulsory. The courts have power to disregard them, and in most of the states are expressly commanded by the legislatures "to disregard the errors and to affirm the judgment unless they can see that the error has caused injustice." But for the most part, this has not been done.

The innate conservatism of the bar and bench has prevented the reform. And when a judge has the courage to cut through the red tape and insist on taking a straight line to essential justice, in spite of technical errors, he is likely to be called by his legal brethern a "dangerous radical."

Big Game Multiplies

What potection will do for wild life is shown strikingly in Jasper National Park, which corresponds in Canada to our own Yellowstone Park. Big game, which has feared and shunned civilized man and all his works for generations, adapts itself to kindly treatment with remarkable promptness and intelligence.

Elk and deer are feeding within a stone's throw of the railroad yards at Jasper. Mountain sheep and goats visit the outskirts of the town. Bears make regular visits to the back doors of hotels and boarding houses. Deer which formerly fled at the distant sight of human beings are keeping down the grass on the local golf course and taking the place of lawn mowers.

Game of all kinds is multiplying again in the vicinity. There are said to be 10,000 to 15,000 mountain sheep and 6,000 to 7,000 mountain goats within the park, and there are big herds of caribou beyond. Even the grizzly bears, though not fraternizing with men like the black and cinnamon bears, are increasing back in the hills. The Canadian Rockies are being replenished with noble game animals that were on the point of vanishing altogether.

It is always so when society curbs the "killers" and gives wild life a fighting chance. Thanks to the new humanity, the unsportsmanlike folk who seem to kill for the sheer pleasure of killing, without regard to consequences, are no longer having their way on this continent. The result is good for true sportsmen as well as for the constantly growing number of men and women who can look upon beautiful animals and birds in their native habitat without wanting to shoot them.

Canadian Business Diplomacy

Canada, taking her new autonomy seriously, starts out making business arrangements with other countries for herself. As a beginner, she has concluded a commercial treaty with Czecho-Slovakia that shows the Dominion knows what it is about.

This is the most favorable treaty that Czecho-Slovakia has yet made with any nation. In return for certain benefits granted her by Canada, in the form of intermediate rates under the Canadian flexible tariff system, the European republic has given Canada her lowest rates of duty on more than 70 commodities, including all the important Canadian exports.

When a neighbor puts over a deal like that, Uncle Sam is bound to sit up and take notice.

A group of moving-picture magnates were having a dinner; at least, so the story runs.

Across the lobby of the hotel where the banquet was to be held came lunging the flashlight expert who had been detailed to take a picture of the festive scene. Although he was carrying a heavy camera he traveled at a trot.

"What's your rush?" inquired a friend in the newspaper business, who had come downstairs to call up his office and report progress after a preliminary size-up of the impending event. "You can take your time—that bunch upstairs have barely gotten seated."

"That's the very reason why I am in such a hurry," answered the operator as he dived into the waiting elevator. "I want to get this photograph made before they get the napkins tucked in at the neck!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Broadway has spawned a desperate type of criminal in the wake of prohibition. He is the bootlegger playing recklessly for high stakes. When his selling territory is invaded he resorts to only one recourse—kill off the invader.

The bootlegging kings are so thoroughly ramparted that few of the solicitors know for whom they are working. And when they order murder the order goes through so many hands the hired thugs are not aware of the origin.

There are a number of heavy spenders, whose source of income is doubtful, believed to be chiefs in this game of millions. They often spend a thousand dollars a night in dazzling haunts for one of those orgies coming under the head of "a party."

So impeccable seem their lives that the most experienced crime hunters are baffled. It is said one of the shrewdest has only one confidant. When he has any commands for the subordinate of importance he rows him out into the middle of the Hudson.

This may be an exaggeration but one thing is certain a bootleg king will never talk on the telephone or is he ever seen with the gunmen, bail hoppers and other criminals who act as his field agents. He walks alone.

He is not the heavyfooted, square-toed gorilla of popular imagination. He has the breezy, winking gaiety of the boulevardier and is a favorite among show girls upon whom he bestows diamond bracelets and other gee-gaws and is perfectly at home in correct evening clothes.

The golden rewards attract the highest type of criminal. His post is an executive one and he knows that when he shows just one tiny streak of yellow he is doomed. Consequently when thwarted, he strikes out with a blind and murderous passion.

Balcony audiences in New York theatres seem to have the best time. There is not the stiffness of the white-fronts down stairs yet they give the comfortable impression they are as good as they are. They are very much at ease. There are young men there with their girls, fathers with entire families, students who take notes and all seem more sensitive to impressions than those below. There is no arriving late merely to be seen. Between acts the majority remain seated and launch discussions of the play. There is a critic who prefers the balcony as the most desirable spot to review the play.

The abandonment theme has struck Tin Pan alley. Plaintive songs of "breezing along on a breeze" and "nobody wants me" continue their popularity, especially when warbled by those who have a Pagliacci note in their voices. There are times when some gin guzzler in the audience will break right down and cry out loud.

Overheard at Lindy's on Broadway:

"Is he stupid?"

"Stupid? It would take six more inches of brains to make him a half wit."

Overheard in the egg-shaped dining room of the Ritz:

"What I really want is one of those pigeon blood rubies, but I'll be lucky if I get a wrist bangle, with his family taking that long tour and the market the way it is."

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A Great Educational Work.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 28.—Director of the Bureau of Commercial Economics is an imposing title for such a tiny, and decidedly feminine, young woman as is Anita Maris Boggs. And yet, to quote Al Jolson, "you ain't heard nothing yet!"

Miss Boggs is not only director of this bureau but she was a co-founder with the late Francis Holley and during his lifetime was dean of the organization. She has traveled around the world and been the guest of several foreign governments that have asked her to assist them in establishing the work of the bureau in their countries so that their people might receive the benefits of the service it extends.

The bureau was founded in 1913 with the aim of promoting amity between the nations. Both of the founders were firm believers in what is now termed visual education. They believed that people who were separated by space, language, customs and environment, might be brought to a better understanding of each other if they could be actually shown how those of other nations lived. Their theory was that people who really knew something of one another were not so apt to fall into disagreement.

The use of motion pictures for educational purposes at that time was a departure. Those were the days when one more or less slunk into a movie theatre and hurried out hoping that no friend was around to witness the evidence of one's low taste in indulging in such a form of entertainment. Visual education was not much believed in. In fact, a former commissioner of the Bureau of Education of this country insisted quite flatly to Miss Boggs that it had been proved that one learned little or nothing through the eye—that the ear was the thing. Later Miss Boggs was to have the satisfaction of seeing this same man so converted to the idea of visual education that he was one of its strongest advocates.

Not a Commercial Institution.

The bureau, despite its name, is not in any way a commercial organization. It is purely altruistic supported by voluntary contributions and memberships. It has no capital stock and its officers receive no compensation for their services other than their expenses. A membership costs $25 annually and entitles the member organization to one film a week which makes the cost about 50 cents for each one. If, however, the organization or institution desiring the film is not in a position to pay for a membership the films are sent anyway. The only requirement is that the exhibitor must have his own projection machine and must pay the transportation charges.

The bureau is international in scope and although it is not officially connected with any one government it has the co-operation of many of the leading nations of the world. It has

A Great Educational Work.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 28.—Director of the Bureau of Commercial Economics is an imposing title for such a tiny, and decidedly feminine, young woman as is Anita Maris Boggs. And yet, to quote Al Jolson, "you ain't heard nothing yet!"

Miss Boggs is not only director of this bureau but she was a co-founder with the late Francis Holley and during his lifetime was dean of the organization. She has traveled around the world and been the guest of several foreign governments that have asked her to assist them in establishing the work of the bureau in their countries so that their people might receive the benefits of the service it extends.

The bureau was founded in 1913 with the aim of promoting amity between the nations. Both of the founders were firm believers in what is now termed visual education. They believed that people who were separated by space, language, customs and environment, might be brought to a better understanding of each other if they could be actually shown how those of other nations lived. Their theory was that people who really knew something of one another were not so apt to fall into disagreement.

The use of motion pictures for educational purposes at that time was a departure. Those were the days when one more or less slunk into a movie theatre and hurried out hoping that no friend was around to witness the evidence of one's low taste in indulging in such a form of entertainment. Visual education was not much believed in. In fact, a former commissioner of the Bureau of Education of this country insisted quite flatly to Miss Boggs that it had been proved that one learned little or nothing through the eye—that the ear was the thing. Later Miss Boggs was to have the satisfaction of seeing this same man so converted to the idea of visual education that he was one of its strongest advocates.

Not a Commercial Institution.

The bureau, despite its name, is not in any way a commercial organization. It is purely altruistic supported by voluntary contributions and memberships. It has no capital stock and its officers receive no compensation for their services other than their expenses. A membership costs $25 annually and entitles the member organization to one film a week which makes the cost about 50 cents for each one. If, however, the organization or institution desiring the film is not in a position to pay for a membership the films are sent anyway. The only requirement is that the exhibitor must have his own projection machine and must pay the transportation charges.

The bureau is international in scope and although it is not officially connected with any one government it has the co-operation of many of the leading nations of the world. It has

WELLSVILLE MAYOR SILENT ON OUSTER PROCEEDINGS

FOGO AWAITS NOTIFICATION OF COURT MOVE

Papers in Removal Suit are Not Served.

NO DATE SET

Foreign Judge May Preside at Hearing in Lisbon.

Pending the receipt of official notification of the ouster suit filed against him yesterday in common pleas court at Lisbon, Mayor W. L. Fogo today was unwilling to comment on his course of action.

Containing 417 names, petitions demanding removal of the mayor were filed in court by Attorney W. H. Spence, of Lisbon. Ten charges were cited in the petitions.

While apprised of the fact that the suit had been filed, the chief executive pointed out that he would be unable to announce any possible action until service is made on him through the proper channels.

The charges will be heard before the court and not by jury.

The case is the second of its kind to be filed under the law that permits five per cent of the electorate to go into common pleas court with charges demanding the removal of a public official.

While no official announcement has been made to the effect, it is regarded as a possibility that the case may be heard by a foreign judge.

Railway projects to be pushed in the Punjab will require more than $2,000,000 in construction.

POLICE SEEKING DIAMOND THIEVES

Aid of Ohio valley police has been enlisted in the search for two thieves who last night broke the lock off the front door of the Thomas W. Kirk jewelry store in the heart of the Steubenville business district and got away with two trays of diamonds valued at about $7,000.

The diamonds were in display in the windows.

Police learned that two men had been standing close to the doorway prior to the robbery, and express the belief that they pried off the lock as citizens walked up and down the busy street, and then succeeded in making a quick dash into the place and back into the crowd without arousing suspicion.

Awaits Analysis Result.

Mickey Dalton, arrested by police last night, was released on bond of $100 pending the completion of an analysis of the contents of a one-gallon jug, possession of which led to his arrest.

Attends Father's Funeral.

Mrs. Clifford McElroy, of Broadway, has returned from Barnesville where she attended funeral services for her father, William Baker.

STATE CHARGES

Will Answer Count of Practicing Without License.

W. H. Crawford, chiropractor and Charles Senior, a natureopath, both of East Palestine, will be given a hearing before Justice J. W. Riley, of Wellsville, on January 4, on charges of doing illegal advertising and practicing without a license.

Action was taken against the East Palestine men by the state medical department as a result of information given by Inspector Dorsey.

Crawford and Senior contend they are being prosecuted by a "medical trust."

H. R. Harrington, 56, Logan, O., Banker, Dies in Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 28.—Arrangements were being made here today to send the body of Herbert Russell Harrington, 56, president of the First National bank at Logan, to his former home for burial. He died here last night after an illness of 18 months.

Brief funeral services are to be held here.

PENNSY OFFICER LEAVES SERVICE

Robert Trimble, assistant chief engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad and chief engineer of the Pennsylvania company and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis, after being in service of the Pennsylvania for 51 years, will retire from active service January 1. He became 70 years of age December 22 and retires under the age rule of the company.

Mr. Trimble is a native of Butler, Pa. and a Pittsburgh product, having secured his early education in private and public schools of Pittsburgh and Allegheny and his technical education at the Western University of Pennsylvania, now the University of Pittsburgh. He entered the service of the company as messenger in the office of the chief engineer here July 1, 1875 and has been connected with the engineer's department ever since.

Mr. Trimble soon became chainman under the direction of Thomas Rodd and worked at various points on the Pennsylvania lines west as chainman, rodman and levelman until 1880 when he was appointed resident engineer in charge of the construction of the old Chicago Union station, under the jurisdiction of the Pittsburgh office. On completion of the station in 1881 he returned to Pittsburgh as assistant engineer.

On July 1, 1889, Trimble was made principal assistant engineer of what was then known as the Northwest system of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh. On January 1, 1903, he was appointed Chief Engineer Maintenance of way of the same lines, with entire charge of construction work, and consultant on maintenance work.

Trimble was relieved of maintenance matters on the Northwest system on July 1, 1918, and appointed chief engineer-construction for all new work on the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh. On March 1, 1920, Trimble was appointed assistant chief engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad system, with headquarters at Pittsburgh, Pa., and on July 1, 1926, he was appointed chief engineer of the Pennsylvania company and of The Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis Railroad company.

REDUCE P. R. R. SHOPS FORCES

Between 85 and 100 Workmen to be Transferred.

Between 85 and 100 employes of the Pennsylvania railroad here will be transferred to Canton, Mingo Junction and Conway as a result of action taken by the company in eliminating the "back shop" or locomotive reconditioning plant here, and the reduction of car repair operations.

The changes in the shops are scheduled to go into operation January 1, railroad officials said today.

Elimination of the reconditioning shop will affect between 50 and 75 employes who will be sent to other points on the division.

In the car department, repair work will be practically discontinued along certain lines here, necessitating a reduction of approximately 38 employes in that department where normally 95 or more are employed.

After January 1 only ordinary and emergency locomotive repair work will be done at the Wellsville shops instead of general repair jobs as previously.

The completion of the Yellow Creek "Y" over which coal and ore can be moved between the Great Lakes and other points in the Central region without the necessity of extensive switching operations in the Wellsville yards primarily is responsible for the reduction of forces here, it is said.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Mick, of Glasgow, are moving to their home in Fourth street and Broadway where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Goldberg, of New York city, are visiting with Mrs. Goldberg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Cooper, Riverside avenue.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 381 N Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation

Medical Examiner Says Government Men Doctored Alcohol.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The treasury decided today to take the poison out of denatured alcohol.

Garrard B. Winston, under secretary, announced that the dry unit's chemists have been instructed to prepare formulas for industrial alcohol that will make it "nasty and undrinkable but not poisonous."

This action was taken as result of numerous deaths over the country from drinking poisoned alcohol.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Wth 23 persons dead from poison liquor, more deaths were expected today among the 89 men and women in various hospitals suffering from denatured alcohol poisoning contracted during the Christmas holiday celebration.

Following autopsies upon some of the victims, Chief Medical Examiner Norris announced that government chemists had doctored alcohol with poisons in an effort to make it unfit to drink. It was these poisons, Dr. Norris said, that the bootlegger was unable to remove through redistillation.

Federal Prohibition Administrator Chester P. Mills defended the government's course and said that he would not be surprised to see more casualties after the New Year's eve celebration.

A government investigation may be ordered in an effort to locate the source of the poison rum which wrought such havoc in the New York district.

Dr. Alexander O. Getler, chief toxicologist of Bellevue hospital, who examined the bodies of 14 of the victims of the fatal gin and whiskey, said that death in these cases had been due to ethyl—not wood alcohol.

The death list now exceeds that of last Christmas.

President Sees Another Year of Prosperity in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — President Coolidge sees another banner year of prosperity for the United States in 1927.

Except in certain agricultural sections and in a few industries there are no signs of depression on the economic horizon, the presidential spokesman declared today.

Opportunities for employment are increasing, notably in the east and New England, there is an abundant supply of capital and labor, the American habit of spending is aiding production—all these indicate no letdown in prosperity, he said.

It is true that certain agricultural products are not getting fair prices and cotton is off this year, but these can be remedied, the spokesman declared. He pointed out that cotton producers had enjoyed great prosperity for the three years previous to the last and he thought they would well weather the present storm.

Kentucky Constable And Four Deputies Held for Slaying

PINEVILLE, Ky., Dec. 28.—A constable and four of his deputies today were being held in jail here without bond, in connection with the Christmas day slaying of Dr. R. L. Lattimore, aged physician.

Bitner Smith, constable, and Gustavus Smith, Daniel Smith, Frank Bowman and Zinn Girtman, all deputies, were ordered arrested by Coroner W. G. Taylor early today on warrants charging wilful murder following an inquest into the killing late yesterday.

"It was the most brutal and inhuman slaying in the bloody history of this part of the state." D. M. Bingham, county attorney declared.

The officers, who declared that they went to the physician's residence to arrest him on a minor charge, were held responsible by the 12-year-old son of the slain man for the 20 shots that riddled Lattimore's body, according to a story told Bingham by the youth.

Dr. Lattimore, according to evidence introduced at the cororner's inquest yesterday, was shot after he had asked the officers to "please wait a minute until I finish my Christmas dinner before taking me to jail."

U. S. Will Take No Sides in Present Nicaraguan Revolt

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The United States has not, and will not, take sides in the present Nicaraguan revolution, the White House declared today.

The president's spokesman declared marines were landed in Nicaragua to protect American lives and property and for no other reason.

Admiral L. T. Latimer has not molested the Liberals under Dr. Juan Sacasa and he will not be permitted to do so, it was said.

Sacasa is still in Puerto Cabezas, Liberal capital, and has been offered a house as headquarters by the American Bragman's Bluff Lumber company.

DEATH ROLL

Morton Funeral Services.

Funeral services for Andrew Morton, 89 years old, 1116 Dresden avenue, will be held at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon in the Miller funeral home, West Sixth street, in charge of Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army. Burial will be made in Spring Grove cemetery.

TODAY

CHRIST'S mother was Jewish girl and his earthly relatives were of the Jewish race. Keep that in mind.

THERE is no bitterness in hoping that the 1927 model Santa Claus will bring Uncle Sam some flying machines that will go up and stay up.

OUR dashing experiments as a great flying nation have become, as the French say, more ridiculous.

We plan a flight from California to Hawaii, three proud "non" stop planes to skim over the Pacific together. Two flop, one will not rise at all. Score: 100 per cent failure, "Not enough fuel," someone said.

THEN we decided to have a striking flight to Panama. Again three machines were to show what we can do and they did. Another failure, somebody said "oil trouble."

Now this glorious nation decides to impress South America and the wide world with a flight all around the southern continent. And already troubles are beginning.

WHAT is the matter with this country and its flying. There is nothing the matter with its flopping. That is 100 per cent perfect. Are some of the leftover wartime patrioteers providing machines. This country invented the machine, has any number of fine mechanics and pilots. What is wrong?

MR. SMITH of Fort Wayne builds himself a death monument of red, white and blue stone, weighing 10 tons, and selects six pallbearers, all women that were formerly his sweethearts. The monument will not weigh down his body, only a little earth will be above him, for says he, "When Gabriel blows that trumpet, I don't want to be impeded by a concrete overcoat."

THOUSANDS think about what to do with their bodies after death, more earnestly than they ever think of using their brains during life.

Nobody knows what is to happen to us later, but it is quite certain that Mr. Smith will be surprised, if he has any sensation when the time comes.

TO preserve Mr. Smith intact, with all due reverence, would be to preserve imperfection. The same remark applies to all. Who can seriously believe that such is the cosmic plan.

And if Mr. Smith arises, perfect, his sweeties won't know him, and he won't know himself. Therefore, plan for good work here. You can control that.

Epidemic of Influenza.

MADRID, Dec. 28. — Bitter cold weather and severe storms are bringing death in their wake throughout Spain.

Eight persons are now reported dead in Madrid and 20 deaths have been reported from the provinces.

The deaths are largely among the poorer classes, who have no adequate protection from the elements.

An epidemic of influenza and grippe is feared as the result of the unseasonable storms and cold.

Damage running into thousands of pesetas has been done by the storms accompanying the cold wave.

Flood Conditions Worse.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 28.—After an all-night rain of more than an inch, flood conditions grew worse here today, with the expectation that the Cumberland river would swell several more feet before it reached its crest tonight.

Approximately 3,500 are homeless in Nashville as the result of the overflowing of the Cumberland river. The property damage here alone will reach $600,000, it was estimated. Towns up and down the river from Nashville are inundated, with business virtually suspended and rail and highway traffic demoralized.

Clarksville has more than 600 without homes; Carthage, 500; Hartville, 10; Celina, 200 homes abandoned. Other towns along the river suffering damage were Lebanon, Jacksonville, Ashland City and Gainsboro.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Starting from a slightly lower level of prices at the opening of the market, the industrial and specialty stock leaders made moderate recoveries from Monday's closing slump in early trading today. Aggressive moves were made by a number of the oil stocks, under the lead of Atlantic Refining and Pan American. The motor stocks were slightly reactionary, and failed in this period to recover with the balance of the speculative list.

The weekly summary of brokers' borrowings showed an increase of only $31,000,000, which was considered favorable under the circumstances. Money renewal rates continued at 5½ per cent, and the supply of funds was reported ample for all requirements. Only the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was declared by American can directors.

Sharp reactions occurred in the second hour in prices of a number of the industrial and specialty stocks which led Monday's early rally the list included International Combustion, Warner Brothers, Continental Baking, and Allied Chemical. The commission houses reported a good volume of tax selling and the professionals were arrayed quite strongly on the short side of the market.

W. A. Cline's Sedan Reported Stolen in Cleveland Sunday

A 1926 model Dodge sedan, belonging to W. A. Cline, St. George street carpenter, was stolen in Cleveland Sunday, according to a report made to police here yesterday afternoon. Cline drove to Cleveland Friday to obtain two tires, which had been stolen from the machine upon a previous visit and which had been recovered by the police. The police here are looking for a suspect.

W. H. MANAGAN WRECK VICTIM

Chester Kin Believe he Was Killed in Train Crash.

W. H. Managan, 26, residing at Miami, Fla., is believed to have been killed in the head-on collision between two crack southern railway trains late Thursday night at Rockmart, Ga., while enroute to Chester to spend Christmas with his wife.

Mrs. Managan, who is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Strawburg, on the Chester-Pughtown road, fears that the one unidentified victim of the wreck is her husband who had planned to travel north on the Ponce de Leon "flyer" which plunged into the Royal Palm, south bound.

Cards and letters received by Mrs. Managan from her husband early last week, strengthen the belief that he was killed. He said in one of the letters that he would motor to Mount Dora and board the train there. It is pointed out that if such was the case he should have boarded the train.

Relatives today sought the aid of Pennsylvania Railroad company officials in seeking to identify the body now being held at Rockmart. A description of Managan was wired there and an answer is expected later in the day.

Managan is described as being 5 feet six inches in height, dark brown hair, blue eyes and a scar on the left forefinger.

Parents of Mrs. Managan, who formerly resided at Wheeling, moved to their present home six months ago when Mr. Strawburg, who is employed by the Ohio Power company, was transferred from Wheeling to Steubenville.

No Mexican Breach

Meanwhile, the state department continues to mark time and await developments. It has no comment to make on the Mexican situation, and no new notes are planned, it was said at the department today.

The open hostility in congress to any break with Mexico, and no less open criticism of the department's policy in intervening in Nicaragua, has also served to promote caution on the part of state department officials.

The proposed senatorial investigation into the activities of American marines in Nicaragua seemed in doubt today following a conference between Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committe, and Secretary of State Kellogg.

Nicaraguan Situation.

Kellogg assured Borah that the marines were landed only to protect American lives and property, and that they were taking no sides between the Nicaraguan Conservatives and Liberals, who are now battling for control of the little republic. Borah appeared satisfied, although he intimated that he may later have some "startling disclosures" to make concerning the origin of the revolt in Nicaragua and the influences back of it.

"The Nicaraguan revolution was planned and inspired by eight or ten men who are not even Nicaraguans, and largely for business reasons," said Borah. He refused to amplify this remark, although he said that "the truth is that an effort is being made to get us into a cowardly little war with Mexico.

"All this cry of Communism and Bolshevism is an effort to justify war with Mexico. They talk Communism, but what they mean is war."

The Idaho senator did not identify "they." It is a matter of record, however, that many of the charges of Communism and Bolshevism have emanated from sources very close to the state department.

13 LIVES LOST, HEAVY DAMAGE IN FLOOD ZONE

Hundreds are Homeless in Three Southern States.

5,000 IN FLIGHT

Swollen Rivers Expected to Reach Crest Tonight.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 28.—With 13 dead, hundreds homeless and property damage estimated at $1,000,000, flood waters in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi were expected to reach their crest today.

No immediate relief was promised nearly 5,000 flood victims, who were forced to leave their homes in the lowlands, and it may be days before they can go back to them.

Out of their banks for nearly a week as the result of heavy rains, the Cumberland, Tennessee and Tombigbee rivers will reach their crest tonight and then slowly recede, the weather bureau predicted.

The known death toll divided by states is:

Arkansas, 6; Mississippi, 5; Tennessee, 2.

In addition to deaths, destruction of property and hardships, many towns in Tennessee and Mississippi were without train service as the result of high waters. The Louisville & Nashville and Illinois Central lines were badly crippled in Tennessee and Mississippi.

Some commercial establishments in Nashville and other Tennessee towns were forced to suspend business, while the damage to crops, highways, live stock, railroad property and homes has been heavy.

Schoolhouses were used in Chattanooga to house the flood refugees, while warehouses and public buildings afforded a temporary shelter for the homeless in Nashville.

Relief work was well organized, it was said, and there was no apparent sufferings.

PLAN PEN TRIP FOR M'DERMOTT

Slayer of Mellett May be Sentenced Today.

CANTON, O., Dec. 28.—Unless present plans of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock go awry, Patrick Eugene McDermott, convicted of first degree murder in the death of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, will be on his way to the state penitentiary within the next 24 hours.

E. L. Mills, counsel for McDermott, late yesterday filed a motion for a new trial. It is expected that this will be considered by Judge E. W. Diehl today. There is a general impression among counsel for both the state and defense that the motion will be overruled without argument.

McClintock, if this course is taken, will immediately request Judge Diehl to have McDermott brought into court and sentenced to life imprisonment, which will be the punishment meted out him as a result of the recommendation for mercy made by the members of the jury when they returned their verdict of guilty of first degree murder, last Friday evening, after deliberating less than 45 minutes.

Cincinnati Forced To Turn on Street Lights at 10 a. m.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 28.—Heavy clouds and smoke shrouded Cincinnati in midnight darkness shortly after 10:00 o'clock this morning. Street lights were turned on and automobiles were forced to run with beaming headlights.

United States Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux announced that exceptionally heavy clouds caused the phenomenon, which lasted for nearly an hour.

NAME DEPUTY IN FINDINGS

Discrepancy Reported in Examination in Butler County.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28.—The charge that J. P. Dick, deputy Butler county auditor, "not only converted to his personal use collected that he did not show as on hand, or collected, by the footings and summaries of his cash book, but also used at least a large part of the balance he showed by his cash book from day to day as being in the 'drawers,' is contained in a report made public here today by state auditor Joseph Tracy.

The report covered the final examination by state examiner Frank Thomas of the Miami conservancy district collection of assessments in Butler county. Thomas' report dealt with the period from Sept. 1, 1925, to Oct. 16, last.

Dick, according to Thomas' report, collected these assessments for the county treasurer in Butler county.

The final examination, according to Thomas, verified a former holding that a net discrepency of $2,209.98 was chargeable against Dick. The report credited Dick with paying in this money Oct. 13, last.

Confesses Murder

cording to Leo's confession. They had not been on friendly terms, he said, because Charles had told him he was not a fit father for his three-year-old twin boys who were residing on the farm. This, he said, opened an argument.

They scuffled, he said, and he found himself at his brother's back. He had brought the gun along, he said, at his brother's order as they had been troubled by chicken thieves. Leo weighs about 120 pounds. His brother weighed about 180 pounds.

Clubbed Woman to Death.

"Something flashed across my mind," authorities say he remarked in his confession, "and I pulled the trigger, because he had threatened me."

Then he said, he saw Charles' wife rushing toward him with a hatchet, and when she neared he struck her over the head with the gun.

"I saw she was going to die," he is said to have declared in his story of the tragedy," and so I clubbed her again. I didn' t use the hatchet though."

Halterman showed no contrition or emotion while reciting the incidents of his brother's death, auditors reported, but when he told of Mrs. Halterman's death his voice indicated he felt remorseful.

Leo Halterman is the father of three children. The three-year-old twins sons resided with him on his half brother's farm, while a baby lived with the mother, who was estranged from her husband.

The murdered couple had no children.

Mrs. Glady's Houck, Specialist's Wife, Is Still Missing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — The search for Mrs. Gladys Walter Houck, wife of the mentally deranged Dr. Knute Houck, government psychiatrist, continued today, but with capital detectives admittedly making little progress.

Mrs. Houck disappeared two weeks ago following a quarrel with her husband and no trace of her has been founds. Police still cling to the theory that she is dead, either by her own hand or by another's.

A woman traveler in Arkansas thought to be Mrs. Houck by the Blytheville police apparently failed of identification, according to local authorities.

The Washington police were advised by long distance telephone today from Capt. B. E. Clarke of Canton, Ohio, a brother-in-law of the missing woman, that the Arkansas clue had apparently faded out.

SPEAKER, COBB READY TO SUE JUDGE LANDIS

Attorney Says Redress Will be Sought in Court.

BOYD RETAINED

Former Managers Will Act in Unison, is Report.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 28.—Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb probably will go into the courts in an effort to seek redress from Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis and the American league, according to W. H. Boyd, Speaker's attorney, who arrived here from Washington this morning with the two former managers.

"I am going into every legal phase of the situation at Mr. Speaker's request," Boyd said.

"If 'Spoke' then decides on such action I will represent him in the courts.

"I do not represent Cobb but I understand that they will act in unison."

Boyd laughed when told of rumors that Speaker and Cobb might file suit for $1,000,000.

"Not nearly any such sum as that," Boyd declared.

Speaker and Cobb eluded newspapermen upon their arrival, Boyd declaring that he did not know where they had gone but that they would have no statements to make.

Boyd later declared that he would go to Chicago in a day or two but would not say whether this trip was for the purpose of visiting Commissioner Landis.

The lawyer hinted that Cobb's stay here would be brief, saying: "I don't know whether he will go to Detroit or Chicago."

Meanwhile all efforts to locate Tris and Ty were unavailing.

Mrs. Speaker told reporters that she had not heard from her husband since he left Sunday for Washington.

Risberg Promises Revelations.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 28.—Charles "Swede" Risberg, who played four seasons, from 1917 to 1920, as shortstop of the Chicago White Sox and who was involved in the "Black Sox" scandal of 1919 which shocked the baseball world when it became public the following year, today declared he could make revelations of "crooked baseball" which would startle fandom more deeply than ever and precipitate a diamond scandal which would far eclipse the Cobb-Speaker-Leonard affair.

Two Dead, Another Seriously Burned In Urbana Blast

URBANA, O., Dec. 28.—Two are dead here today, and a third seriously burned as the result of using kerosene as a fire kindler. The dead are: Mrs. Abram Reams, 25, and her sister, Mrs. William Coleshott, 17. Coleshott is in a hospital here with body and head burns suffered when he attempted to rescue the women. The home was destroyed.

Mrs. Reams, according to report, used the oil to start a fire in the kitchen range when the fuel exploded and engulfed her and her sister in flames. Coleshott went to their assistance from an adjoining room but flames prevented him from aiding them.

Mrs. Reams died in the flames, and her sister a few hours later at a hospital.

H. J. Heinz Company Party Tonight in Odd Fellows' Temple

The H. J. Heinz company, Pittsburgh, will entertain members of the Odd Fellows lodge and their friends in the I. O. O. F. temple, West Sixth street, tonight.

Motion pictures taken at the Heinz plant will be shown during the evening. The company will also serve a lunch.

Private wealth in the United States now is $2,918 per capita, while that of Canada is $2,575, and that of Great Britain, $2,000, according to latest estimates.

Kentucky Constable And Four Deputies Held for Slaying

PINEVILLE, Ky., Dec. 28.—A constable and four of his deputies today were being held in jail here without bond, in connection with the Christmas day slaying of Dr. R. L. Lattimore, aged physician.

Bitner Smith, constable, and Gustavus Smith, Daniel Smith, Frank Bowman and Zinn Girtman, all deputies, were ordered arrested by Coroner W. G. Taylor early today on warrants charging wilful murder following an inquest into the killing late yesterday.

"It was the most brutal and inhuman slaying in the bloody history of this part of the state." D. M. Bingham, county attorney declared.

The officers, who declared that they went to the physician's residence to arrest him on a minor charge, were held responsible by the 12-year-old son of the slain man for the 20 shots that riddled Lattimore's body, according to a story told Bingham by the youth.

Dr. Lattimore, according to evidence introduced at the cororner's inquest yesterday, was shot after he had asked the officers to "please wait a minute until I finish my Christmas dinner before taking me to jail."

Storms Grip Europe

storms at sea which are subjecting vessels to tremendous buffeting. The Holland-American line, New Amsterdam, arrived at Plymouth from New York today 26 hours overdue.

Epidemic of Influenza.

MADRID, Dec. 28. — Bitter cold weather and severe storms are bringing death in their wake throughout Spain.

Eight persons are now reported dead in Madrid and 20 deaths have been reported from the provinces.

The deaths are largely among the poorer classes, who have no adequate protection from the elements.

An epidemic of influenza and grippe is feared as the result of the unseasonable storms and cold.

Damage running into thousands of pesetas has been done by the storms accompanying the cold wave.

Flood Conditions Worse.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 28.—After an all-night rain of more than an inch, flood conditions grew worse here today, with the expectation that the Cumberland river would swell several more feet before it reached its crest tonight.

Approximately 3,500 are homeless in Nashville as the result of the overflowing of the Cumberland river. The property damage here alone will reach $600,000, it was estimated. Towns up and down the river from Nashville are inundated, with business virtually suspended and rail and highway traffic demoralized.

Clarksville has more than 600 without homes; Carthage, 500; Hartville, 10; Celina, 200 homes abandoned. Other towns along the river suffering damage were Lebanon, Jacksonville, Ashland City and Gainsboro.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Starting from a slightly lower level of prices at the opening of the market, the industrial and specialty stock leaders made moderate recoveries from Monday's closing slump in early trading today. Aggressive moves were made by a number of the oil stocks, under the lead of Atlantic Refining and Pan American. The motor stocks were slightly reactionary, and failed in this period to recover with the balance of the speculative list.

The weekly summary of brokers' borrowings showed an increase of only $31,000,000, which was considered favorable under the circumstances. Money renewal rates continued at 5½ per cent, and the supply of funds was reported ample for all requirements. Only the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was declared by American can directors.

Sharp reactions occurred in the second hour in prices of a number of the industrial and specialty stocks which led Monday's early rally the list included International Combustion, Warner Brothers, Continental Baking, and Allied Chemical. The commission houses reported a good volume of tax selling and the professionals were arrayed quite strongly on the short side of the market.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Wheat opened ⅛ to ⅜c lower today with scattered selling on the weak cables. Trade was mixed.

Corn started ⅛ to ⅞c lower but met with buying on the break and had a partial recovery.

Oats were ⅛ to ¼c lower early with scattered selling.

Cline, Sr. George street carpenter, was stolen in Cleveland Sunday, according to a report made to police here yesterday afternoon Cline drove to Cleveland Friday to obtain two tires, which had been stolen from the machine upon a previous visit and which had been recovered by the police. The police here are looking for a suspect.

W. H. MANAGAN WRECK VICTIM

Chester Kin Believe he Was Killed in Train Crash.

W. H. Managan, 26, residing at Miami, Fla., is believed to have been killed in the head-on collision between two crack southern railway trains late Thursday night at Rockmart, Ga., while enroute to Chester to spend Christmas with his wife.

Mrs. Managan, who is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Strawburg, on the Chester-Pughtown road, fears that the one unidentified victim of the wreck is her husband who had planned to travel north on the Ponce de Leon "flyer" which plunged into the Royal Palm, south bound.

Cards and letters received by Mrs. Managan from her husband early last week, strengthen the belief that he was killed. He said in one of the letters that he would motor to Mount Dora and board the train there. It is pointed out that if such was the case he should have boarded the train.

Relatives today sought the aid of Pennsylvania Railroad company officials in seeking to identify the body now being held at Rockmart. A description of Managan was wired there and an answer is expected later in the day.

Managan is described as being 5 feet six inches in height, dark brown hair, blue eyes and a scar on the left forefinger.

Parents of Mrs. Managan, who formerly resided at Wheeling, moved to their present home six months ago when Mr. Strawburg, who is employed by the Ohio Power company, was transferred from Wheeling to Steubenville.

Meanwhile, the state department continues to mark time and await developments. It has no comment to make on the Mexican situation, and no new notes are planned, it was said at the department today.

The open hostility in congress to any break with Mexico, and no less open criticism of the department's policy in intervening in Nicaragua, has also served to promote caution on the part of state department officials.

The proposed senatorial investigation into the activities of American marines in Nicaragua seemed in doubt today following a conference between Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committe, and Secretary of State Kellogg.

Nicaraguan Situation.

Kellogg assured Borah that the marines were landed only to protect American lives and property, and that they were taking no sides between the Nicaraguan Conservatives and Liberals, who are now battling for control of the little republic. Borah appeared satisfied, although he intimated that he may later have some "startling disclosures" to make concerning the origin of the revolt in Nicaragua and the influences back of it.

"The Nicaraguan revolution was planned and inspired by eight or ten men who are not even Nicaraguans, and largely for business reasons," said Borah. He refused to amplify this remark, although he said that "the truth is that an effort is being made to get us into a cowardly little war with Mexico.

"All this cry of Communism and Bolshevism is an effort to justify war with Mexico. They talk Communism, but what they mean is war."

The Idaho senator did not identify "they." It is a matter of record, however, that many of the charges of Communism and Bolshevism have emanated from sources very close to the state department.

At a fashionable wedding in London recently, the groom was attended by two best men, the bride was escorted to the altar by her prospective father-in-law, and instead of bridesmaids there were little flower girls.

13 LIVES LOST, HEAVY DAMAGE IN FLOOD ZONE

Hundreds are Homeless in Three Southern States.

5,000 IN FLIGHT

Swollen Rivers Expected to Reach Crest Tonight.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 28.—With 13 dead, hundreds homeless and property damage estimated at $1,000,000, flood waters in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi were expected to reach their crest today.

No immediate relief was promised nearly 5,000 flood victims, who were forced to leave their homes in the lowlands, and it may be days before they can go back to them.

Out of their banks for nearly a week as the result of heavy rains, the Cumberland, Tennessee and Tombigbee rivers will reach their crest tonight and then slowly recede, the weather bureau predicted.

The known death toll divided by states is:

Arkansas, 6; Mississippi, 5; Tennessee, 2.

In addition to deaths, destruction of property and hardships, many towns in Tennessee and Mississippi were without train service as the result of high waters. The Louisville & Nashville and Illinois Central lines were badly crippled in Tennessee and Mississippi.

Some commercial establishments in Nashville and other Tennessee towns were forced to suspend business, while the damage to crops, highways, live stock, railroad property and homes has been heavy.

Schoolhouses were used in Chattanooga to house the flood refugees, while warehouses and public buildings afforded a temporary shelter for the homeless in Nashville.

Relief work was well organized, it was said, and there was no apparent sufferings.

PLAN PEN TRIP FOR M'DERMOTT

Slayer of Mellett May be Sentenced Today.

CANTON, O., Dec. 28.—Unless present plans of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock go awry, Patrick Eugene McDermott, convicted of first degree murder in the death of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, will be on his way to the state penitentiary within the next 24 hours.

E. L. Mills, counsel for McDermott, late yesterday filed a motion for a new trial. It is expected that this will be considered by Judge E. W. Diehl today. There is a general impression among counsel for both the state and defense that the motion will be overruled without argument.

McClintock, if this course is taken, will immediately request Judge Diehl to have McDermott brought into court and sentenced to life imprisonment, which will be the punishment meted out him as a result of the recommendation for mercy made by the members of the jury when they returned their verdict of guilty of first degree murder, last Friday evening, after deliberating less than 45 minutes.

Cincinnati Forced To Turn on Street Lights at 10 a. m.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 28.—Heavy clouds and smoke shrouded Cincinnati in midnight darkness shortly after 10:00 o'clock this morning. Street lights were turned on and automobiles were forced to run with beaming headlights.

United States Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux announced that exceptionally heavy clouds caused the phenomenon, which lasted for nearly an hour.

NAME DEPUTY IN FINDINGS

Discrepancy Reported in Examination in Butler County.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28.—The charge that J. P. Dick, deputy Butler county auditor, "not only converted to his personal use collected that he did not show as on hand, or collected, by the footings and summaries of his cash book, but also used at least a large part of the balance he showed by his cash book from day to day as being in the 'drawers,' is contained in a report made public here today by state auditor Joseph Tracy.

The report covered the final examination by state examiner Frank Thomas of the Miami conservancy district collection of assessments in Butler county. Thomas' report dealt with the period from Sept. 1, 1925, to Oct. 16, last.

Dick, according to Thomas' report, collected these assessments for the county treasurer in Butler county.

The final examination, according to Thomas, verified a former holding that a net discrepency of $2,209.98 was chargeable against Dick. The report credited Dick with paying in this money Oct. 13, last.

cording to Leo's confession. They had not been on friendly terms, he said, because Charles had told him he was not a fit father for his three-year-old twin boys who were residing on the farm. This, he said, opened an argument.

They scuffled, he said, and he found himself at his brother's back. He had brought the gun along, he said, at his brother's order as they had been troubled by chicken thieves. Leo weighs about 120 pounds. His brother weighed about 180 pounds.

Clubbed Woman to Death.

"Something flashed across my mind," authorities say he remarked in his confession, "and I pulled the trigger, because he had threatened me."

Then he said, he saw Charles' wife rushing toward him with a hatchet, and when she neared he struck her over the head with the gun.

"I saw she was going to die," he is said to have declared in his story of the tragedy," and so I clubbed her again. I didn' t use the hatchet though."

Halterman showed no contrition or emotion while reciting the incidents of his brother's death, auditors reported, but when he told of Mrs. Halterman's death his voice indicated he felt remorseful.

Leo Halterman is the father of three children. The three-year-old twins sons resided with him on his half brother's farm, while a baby lived with the mother, who was estranged from her husband.

The murdered couple had no children.

Mrs. Glady's Houck, Specialist's Wife, Is Still Missing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — The search for Mrs. Gladys Walter Houck, wife of the mentally deranged Dr. Knute Houck, government psychiatrist, continued today, but with capital detectives admittedly making little progress.

Mrs. Houck disappeared two weeks ago following a quarrel with her husband and no trace of her has been founds. Police still cling to the theory that she is dead, either by her own hand or by another's.

A woman traveler in Arkansas thought to be Mrs. Houck by the Blytheville police apparently failed of identification, according to local authorities.

The Washington police were advised by long distance telephone today from Capt. B. E. Clarke of Canton, Ohio, a brother-in-law of the missing woman, that the Arkansas clue had apparently faded out.

SPEAKER, COBB READY TO SUE JUDGE LANDIS

Attorney Says Redress Will be Sought in Court.

BOYD RETAINED

Former Managers Will Act in Unison, is Report.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 28.—Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb probably will go into the courts in an effort to seek redress from Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis and the American league, according to W. H. Boyd, Speaker's attorney, who arrived here from Washington this morning with the two former managers.

"I am going into every legal phase of the situation at Mr. Speaker's request," Boyd said.

"If 'Spoke' then decides on such action I will represent him in the courts.

"I do not represent Cobb but I understand that they will act in unison."

Boyd laughed when told of rumors that Speaker and Cobb might file suit for $1,000,000.

"Not nearly any such sum as that," Boyd declared.

Speaker and Cobb eluded newspapermen upon their arrival, Boyd declaring that he did not know where they had gone but that they would have no statements to make.

Boyd later declared that he would go to Chicago in a day or two but would not say whether this trip was for the purpose of visiting Commissioner Landis.

The lawyer hinted that Cobb's stay here would be brief, saying: "I don't know whether he will go to Detroit or Chicago."

Meanwhile all efforts to locate Tris and Ty were unavailing.

Mrs. Speaker told reporters that she had not heard from her husband since he left Sunday for Washington.

Risberg Promises Revelations.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 28.—Charles "Swede" Risberg, who played four seasons, from 1917 to 1920, as shortstop of the Chicago White Sox and who was involved in the "Black Sox" scandal of 1919 which shocked the baseball world when it became public the following year, today declared he could make revelations of "crooked baseball" which would startle fandom more deeply than ever and precipitate a diamond scandal which would far eclipse the Cobb-Speaker-Leonard affair.

Two Dead, Another Seriously Burned In Urbana Blast

URBANA, O., Dec. 28.—Two are dead here today, and a third seriously burned as the result of using kerosene as a fire kindler. The dead are: Mrs. Abram Reams, 25, and her sister, Mrs. William Coleshott, 17. Coleshott is in a hospital here with body and head burns suffered when he attempted to rescue the women. The home was destroyed.

Mrs. Reams, according to report, used the oil to start a fire in the kitchen range when the fuel exploded and engulfed her and her sister in flames. Coleshott went to their assistance from an adjoining room but flames prevented him from aiding them.

Mrs. Reams died in the flames, and her sister a few hours later at a hospital.

BEBE DANIELS IN SCREEN HIT

"Stranded in Paris" is Photoplay at Ceramic.

Flashy, vigorous and extremely human is "Stranded in Paris," Bebe Daniels' Paramount comedy of Parisian life which opened a three-day engagement last night at the Ceramic theatre.

Supported by James Hall, Ford Sterling and Iris Stuart, Miss Daniels, fresh from her triumph in "The Campus Flirt," which shattered attendance records in practically every city it appeared, has contributed one of the most deliciously peppery performances ever witnessed on a screen.

Starting with swiftness and gaining momentum as it unreels, piling situation upon situation, the climax is reached in a thrilling tally-ho chase down a steep, narrow incline.

The story goes from a drab boarding house in the United States to the famous cafes and modiste shops of Paris. One of the main attractions of the film is its photography. Cameraman William Marshall and Director Arthur Rosson have contributed several of the most unusual effects yet shown in motion pictures. Just how they were attained will always remain a mystery for the studio, we understand, has refused to disclose the secret of their attainment.

Taylor-Higgins Wedding Dec. 24 Announced Here

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Irene E. Taylor, daughter of Mrs. B. F. Higgins, Pennsylvania avenue, East End, and Charles R. Jackson, son of Mrs. Nancy Jackson, of Tiltonville, O. The ceremony was performed December 24 in the First Christian church in Beaver, Pa., with Rev. R. T. Ribble officiating. Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson of this city were the attendants.

Presents Program of Organ Music.

George Thompson, former organist at the First Presbyterian church, now supervisor of music in the North Carolina College for Women, Greensboro, N. C., presented the following program of organ music Sunday afternoon, December 26, in the recital hall of the school: Guilmant's "Marche Religieuse," three of J. S. Bach's preludes, Dubois' March of the Magi Kings," Brahm's "Es Ist Ein' Ros' Entsprfun-en," "The Holy Night," Adams Westbrooks "Good King Wencelas," arranged by Shaw, "Three Holy Kings," Gliere "Christmas in Sicily," Pietro Yon "Offertoire on 'Adeste Fidelis,'" Loret, Christmas Night," Golier, and the Hallelujah chorus from Handel's "The Messiah."

Haugh-Barnett Wedding.

Mrs. T. F. Anderson of Ravine street today announced the marriage of her niece, Miss Edith Haught, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Haught of New Matamoras, and Wayne Barnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Barnett, also of New Matamoras. The ceremony took place yesterday in the First Christian church of Marietta, with Rev. Mr. Norveil officiating.

Mrs. Allan Barnett, mother of the bridegroom, and Evan Haught, brother of the bride, were the only attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnett left immediately for East Liverpool, where the bridegroom is employed at the R. Thomas & Sons. They will reside in St. Clair avenue.

Mrs. Verne Carson Hostess.

Members of the Seattle club were entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Verne Carson, Stop 55, on the Y. & O. Music, games and a guessing contest, which was won by Miss Alice Kinsey and Mrs. Guy Rosenburg, were diversions. A guest trophy was awarded Miss Irene Mitchell. Gifts were exchanged.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Misses Irene Mitchell, Leona Bormouth and Hilda Hall, special guests.

The next meeting will be held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Nell Aufderheide in West Ninth street.

BEBE DANIELS IN SCREEN HIT

"Stranded in Paris" is Photoplay at Ceramic.

Flashy, vigorous and extremely human is "Stranded in Paris," Bebe Daniels' Paramount comedy of Parisian life which opened a three-day engagement last night at the Ceramic theatre.

Supported by James Hall, Ford Sterling and Iris Stuart, Miss Daniels, fresh from her triumph in "The Campus Flirt," which shattered attendance records in practically every city it appeared, has contributed one of the most deliciously peppery performances ever witnessed on a screen.

Starting with swiftness and gaining momentum as it unreels, piling situation upon situation, the climax is reached in a thrilling tally-ho chase down a steep, narrow incline.

The story goes from a drab boarding house in the United States to the famous cafes and modiste shops of Paris. One of the main attractions of the film is its photography. Cameraman William Marshall and Director Arthur Rosson have contributed several of the most unusual effects yet shown in motion pictures. Just how they were attained will always remain a mystery for the studio, we understand, has refused to disclose the secret of their atttainment.

FRANKLIN FARM BUREAU MEETS

That farm taxes are 28 per cent above pre-war while farm income is only 113 per cent above pre-war was stated by C. C. Bair of the field service department of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation at a meeting of the Franklin township farm bureau held at Millport.

In a discussion of legislative matters he said that farmers in Ohio have paid 60 per cent of the cost of the improved roads while their traffic has constituted only 12 per cent of the total on the roads. He appealed to those present to help the farm bureau movement to equalize these conditions. He called attention to the fact that $3,500,000.00 had been saved farmers in Ohio because of elimination of the state tax levy which was brought about by the farm organizations. The activities of the various departments of the farm bureau were explained by Bair. Rebates from the service department alone have amounted to $400,000.00 in five years which means a saving of that amount to the farmers of Ohio through cooperative purchasing.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chairman, B. W. Grubbs; vice-chairman, Harry McPherson; secretary-treasurer, Elvy Thompson; purchasing agent, C. C. Brown; shipping agent, E. A. Mulherin.

Re-organization of the county farm bureau for the year was completed at a meeting of the board of directors held in the city hall at Lisbon. E. M. Davis, West township, S. N. Van Blaricom, Salem township, J. M. Kerr, Yellow Creek township, Mrs Mabel Satterthwait, Butler township and Mrs. J. M. Huston, St. Clair township were elected as members of the executive committee. They with the officers elected at the annual meeting constitute the executive committee. D. F. Hahn, Knox township is president; A. E. Bailey, Knox township, vice-president, and J. C. Pottorf, Salem township, secretary-treasurer. D. F. Hahn and S. N. Van Blaricom were elected as delegates to the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation to be held in Columbus on January 31. J. C. Pottorf, E. Y. Gamble and S. N. Van Blaricom were appointed as a service committee. The service department of the Farm Bureau has charge of the cooperative buying and selling.

COMMISSIONER'S TERM EXTENDED

At the December meeting of the county board of health, the term of office of County Health Commissioner Dr. T. T. Church of Salem was extended for six months, or from July 1st next to the close of 1927.

There will be no county sanitary officer working out of the county health office during 1927, no funds being provided for this work. During the last two years former Sheriff Gomer Lewis has been employed as sanitary officer.

The budget commission has provided $600 for the expense of such an officer, and what work is required of an officer will be performed by others. The elimination of a full time sanitary officer has resulted in a saving of $1,600 to the county.

Select Home Physician.

The contract for the services of a physician at the county home for 1927 has been awarded by the county commissioners to Dr. J. C. Gruber of Lisbon. Bids for this service were opened by the commissioners Monday afternoon. The bid was divided into two parts, $500 being bid for medical and surgical attention, and $700 for supplying all medicinal drugs required for patients during the coming year, or a total bid of $1,200.

Divorce Petition Filed.

Declaring in his petition that his wife has been guilty of wilful absence for more than three years, an action has been filed in common pleas court by William C. Bellville of East Liverpool, by his counsel, G. Jay Clark against his wife, Mary Agnes Bellville, said to be residing at 212 West Second street, East Liverpool.

The couple were married at Chester, W. Va., July 28th, 1919.

Suit Instituted.

An action to recover $285.91 with interest from Dec. 9th last has been filed in common pleas court by Walter Mick against John C. Swickard, Flora C. Swickard, the Citizens Lumber company, L. T. Steepee and the Potters Savings & Loan Co. The amount is claimed to be due on an account of material sold and delivered the defendants.

Rush for Dog Tags.

There has been a decided rush for 1927 dog license tags, according to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton. Up to the close of business Monday evening 458 licenses had been issued for the new year, nearly 100 more than issued for the corresponding term in 1925.

Marriage Licenses.

A marriage license has been issued to Elmer L. Stewart of East Liverpool, and Miss Mildred Boyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boyce. The couple were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon Presbyterian church by the Rev. P. W. Macaulay.

Alimony Order.

Temporary alimony of $35 has been ordered paid by Amos McGeorge, defendant in a divorce action brought against him by his wife, Edna McGeorge. The court has also ordered McGeorge to pay $10 as court costs on or before Jan. 26th next.

Leave to File.

Nick Daniels, defendant in a $15,000 alienation action filed against him by Mike Gurrle, Nov. 13th last has been granted leave to file an answer by Judge W. F. Lones.

"THEY KNOW HOW TO CLEAN"

That is the testimonial of people who have taken advantage of our modern cleaning and pressing service. Men and women alike find our work up to their requirements. Every customer is a "repeater."

Clean Garments Keep Their Shape

To keep garments in perfect condition, colors bright and texture form-fitting, have them dry-cleaned regularly.

Good clothes wear well and remain serviceable and good-looking only when accumulated dust is removed in the proper way at regular intervals.

We cannot too often emphasize the ECONOMY of our service. Good clothes are still rather high-priced and thrifty folks readily understand the SAVING which dry-cleaning service effects.

TRY OUR SERVICE this week. Note how our expert cleansing methods restore the "life" and fresh appearance of your garments.

Phone us and a driver will call for your package.

We also make Covered Buttons and do all kinds of Pleating.

FRANKLIN FARM BUREAU MEETS

That farm taxes are 28 per cent above pre-war while farm income is only 113 per cent above pre-war was stated by C. C. Bair of the field service department of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation at a meeting of the Franklin township farm bureau held at Millport.

In a discussion of legislative matters he said that farmers in Ohio have paid 60 per cent of the cost of the improved roads while their traffic has constituted only 12 per cent of the total on the roads. He appealed to those present to help the farm bureau movement to equalize these conditions. He called attention to the fact that $3,500,000.00 had been saved farmers in Ohio because of elimination of the state tax levy which was brought about by the farm organizations. The activities of the various departments of the farm bureau were explained by Bair. Rebates from the service department alone have amounted to $400,000.00 in five years which means a saving of that amount to the farmers of Ohio through cooperative purchasing.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chairman, B. W. Grubbs; vice-chairman, Harry McPherson; secretary-treasurer, Elvy Thompson; purchasing agent, C. C. Brown; shipping agent, E. A. Mulherin.

Re-organization of the county farm bureau for the year was completed at a meeting of the board of directors held in the city hall at Lisbon. E. M. Davis, West township, S. N. Van Blaricom, Salem township, J. M. Kerr, Yellow Creek township, Mrs Mabel Satterthwait, Butler township and Mrs. J. M. Huston, St. Clair township were elected as members of the executive committee. They with the officers elected at the annual meeting constitute the executive committee. D. F. Hahn, Knox township is president; A. E. Bailey, Knox township, vice-president, and J. C. Pottorf, Salem township, secretary-treasurer. D. F. Hahn and S. N. Van Blaricom were elected as delegates to the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation to be held in Columbus on January 31. J. C. Pottorf, E. Y. Gamble and S. N. Van Blaricom were appointed as a service committee. The service department of the Farm Bureau has charge of the cooperative buying and selling.

COMMISSIONER'S TERM EXTENDED

At the December meeting of the county board of health, the term of office of County Health Commissioner Dr. T. T. Church of Salem was extended for six months, or from July 1st next to the close of 1927.

There will be no county sanitary officer working out of the county health office during 1927, no funds being provided for this work. During the last two years former Sheriff Gomer Lewis has been employed as sanitary officer.

The budget commission has provided $600 for the expense of such an officer, and what work is required of an officer will be performed by others. The elimination of a full time sanitary officer has resulted in a saving of $1,600 to the county.

Select Home Physician.

The contract for the services of a physician at the county home for 1927 has been awarded by the county commissioners to Dr. J. C. Gruber of Lisbon. Bids for this service were opened by the commissioners Monday afternoon. The bid was divided into two parts, $500 being bid for medical and surgical attention, and $700 for supplying all medicinal drugs required for patients during the coming year, or a total bid of $1,200.

Divorce Petition Filed.

Declaring in his petition that his wife has been guilty of wilful absence for more than three years, an action has been filed in common pleas court by William C. Bellville of East Liverpool, by his counsel, G. Jay Clark against his wife, Mary Agnes Bellville, said to be residing at 212 West Second street, East Liverpool.

The couple were married at Chester, W. Va., July 28th, 1919.

Suit Instituted.

An action to recover $285.91 with interest from Dec. 9th last has been filed in common pleas court by Walter Mick against John C. Swickard, Flora C. Swickard, the Citizens Lumber company, L. T. Steepee and the Potters Savings & Loan Co. The amount is claimed to be due on an account of material sold and delivered the defendants.

Rush for Dog Tags.

There has been a decided rush for 1927 dog license tags, according to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton. Up to the close of business Monday evening 458 licenses had been issued for the new year, nearly 100 more than issued for the corresponding term in 1925.

Marriage Licenses.

A marriage license has been issued to Elmer L. Stewart of East Liverpool, and Miss Mildred Boyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boyce. The couple were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon Presbyterian church by the Rev. P. W. Macaulay.

Alimony Order.

Temporary alimony of $35 has been ordered paid by Amos McGeorge, defendant in a divorce action brought against him by his wife, Edna McGeorge. The court has also ordered McGeorge to pay $10 as court costs on or before Jan. 26th next.

Leave to File.

Nick Daniels, defendant in a $15,000 alienation action filed against him by Mike Gurrle, Nov. 13th last has been granted leave to file an answer by Judge W. F. Lones.

Million Dollar Suits Against Landis And League Possible

Ty and Tris Advised To Try Civil Action To Clear Up Scandal

No Governmental Agency, Except Courts, Exists Through Which They Can Strike Back, Banished Stars Told in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker have been advised by certain of their friends in congress to file $1,000,000 damage suits against Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis and the American League because of their being "dropped" from organized baseball.

It was this advice, according to well founded reports today, that the two stars came to the national capital to get. They arrived mysteriously yesterday morning, remained closeted in a room all day, and departed just as mysteriously last night for Cleveland.

If the pair had any idea of enlisting the aid of federal agencies in their fight for "vindication" they apparently abandoned it soon after arriving here. They appeared at no government department, called on no government officials, and evaded questions by newspaperman who found them at Union station last night about to depart for Cleveland. They did have several telephone conversations with friends, however.

They were advised that there existed no governmental agency through which they could strike back at organized baseball, except the courts. Several of the senate's legal lights said their only avenue of action lay in personal damage suits.

Cobb and Speaker were accompanied by W. H. Boyd, attorney for Speaker.

Reports were current that both Cobb and Speaker would appeal to the department of justice to investigate organized baseball. Government officials declared the baseball stars would not have a case as the supreme court has officially decided that baseball was not interstate commerce and therefore not subject to governmental regulation.

Announcement by Rep. Kelly (R) of Michigan, that he would sponsor a resolution in the house authorizing a congressional inquiry of the case aroused little support here. Experienced legislators said the house would ignore the resolution because of lack of authority over the subject.

"Both Cobb and Speaker should file a civil suit for damages against Kenesaw Mountain Landis and their own league," said Senator Watson (R) of Indiana, an ardent baseball fan. "As no federal laws were violated, there is no federal jurisdiction over the case and congress cannot investigate it. All Cobb and Speaker can do is to go to the courts for redress. They ought to sue for $1,000,000 damages and then if they are innocent, they would be vindicated. Personally, I believe they are innocent of wrong-doing."

Senator Harris (D) of Georgia, who is Cobb's warmest friend in the senate, voiced the same opinion. He declared the players were being "deprived of their livelihood" by the action of Judge Landis and would have a real cause for damages.

CLUB OWNERS DENY CHARGES

Day of Shady Transactions are Over Now They Say.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
(Copyright, 1926, By International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Admission that irregularities, bordering on "shady transactions," were practiced at the gates of certain major league ball parks some years ago was freely made today by Ban Johnson, president of the American League, in a telegram to the writer.

Mr. Johnson's message came in response to charges of "crooked turnstiles" and "other acts of dishonesty" preferred against the owners of big league ball clubs by Ty Cobb in an exclusive interview with Bert Walker, International News Service special correspondent. The league president, who was active in bringing about the recent baseball expose in which the names of Cobb and Tris Speaker figured so prominently, added that the "guilty parties" of the turnstiles episode had met swift punishment and that today the practice, so far as he knew, was non-existant.

The text of Johnson's frank message follows:

"Some years ago, we had some shady transactions at the gates. There was a thorough investigation and the guilty parties were promptly punished. To the best of my knowledge, everything in our organization today is conducted in a clean and orderly manner."

The exceptions were furnished by John McGraw, Comiskey and Ball. The latter merely declined to permit Cobb to class him "with dishonest and crooked owners" and let it go at that. McGraw declared he felt the official reply should come from Judge Landis.

Comiskey said he "welcomed" an investigation by anyone, in or out of baseball, who believed they possessed evidence of dishonesty. He added that, so far as he was concerned, such an investigation could include the entire personnel of the sport from the highest to the lowest.

Some of the replies to Cobb vouchsafed by club residents were as follows:

Phil Ball, St. Louis: "Mr. Cobb is mistaken when he puts me in with dishonest and crooked owners, if he said it."

Charles A. Comiskey, Chicago:

"If Cobb, or anyone else, in or out of baseball, has any information regarding dishonesty acts pertaining to anything in baseball, the Chicago club would welcome an investigation now, starting with the owners and including the entire personnel of the complete organization."

Robert Quinn, Boston Red Sox:

"Charges quoted are so childish they don't require any answer."

Clark Griffith, Washington:

"If Cobb made statements credited, I am at a loss to know of any foundation for them. If any irregularities exist they are absolutely unknown to me."

Emil E. Fuchs, Boston Braves:

"Since by entry, I have found baseball beyond reproach. I have full faith in the integrity of player, manager and owner. The ethics and standards of baseball today are higher than in other business or profession, in my judgement. Last fall in Boston, I witnessed players who worked harder against the clubs which, sentimentally, they desired to win the championship."

John A. Heydler, president of the National League:

"I have no comment to make on the charges that Cobb is alleged to have made regarding ticket scandals except to say that to my knowledge there is nothing in the business conduct of the game by officials and club owners to warrant them."

PLAY CANTON FIVE TONIGHT

High Squad Off for Third Hard Game of Season.

With every player, except, perhaps, Captain Jimmy Hamilton, in good condition, Coach Lorah's high school squad will leave this afternoon for Canton where they will take on McKinley in the third contest of the current season.

O. V. Boone, former athletic director of the East Liverpool school, is now an instructor at McKinley and consequently the game will prove of more than ordinary interest to the Cantonians.

Hamilton's knee is not in condition to permit him to play a full game and it is likely he will sit on the bench for a couple of weeks.

The squad of 10 or 12 players will make the trip by automobile.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON.
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you grip the ground by initiating a slight exertion toward drawing your feet together, you will note at once a springiness throughout the legs, and you cannot help but note how solidly and and firmly you have hold of the ground with your feet. It may even be mirth-provoking to discover that you can attach yourself so firmly to the ground. But that grip of the earth is the very foundation of the good golf swing.

With looseness between you and mother earth your swing is likely to get off balance or suffer somewhere. This method fixes the grip of both feet, too, and thereafter throughout the swing they will maintain that grip. The one thing to watch out for, however, is not to overdo this. Too much gripping will result in rigidity in the leg and foot muscles. Employ this grip in utmost moderation—a very little of it is a great plenty.

AARON WARD, sent to the Chicago Sox in the recent deal between that club and the Yankees, hopes to get a crack at Eddie Collins' old job at second base. Ward, utility infielder for the Yankees for three years and virtually a regular for six seasons, found himself benched last season in favor of Tony Lazzeri, Coast League home run star.

AARON WARD

Ward was a Yankee vet in point of service, joining the team from the Charlestown club, Sally League, in 1918. Broke into game with Little Rock in 1915.

Has collected dough in four world's series with Yankees, the three and last fall's. Hit .306 in 1921 but during the rest of his career has had trouble hitting anywhere near the .300 mark.

WADE BOASTS GOOD DEFENSE

Alabama Shows Improvement for Coast Game.

By JACK JAMES.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—It now appears that all of us enthusiasts—expert and inexpert alike—who have been figuring the Alabama football team of this season as slightly inferior to the team that favored us with a visit just a year ago are way out of line.

'Tisn't so. Quite to the contrary, in fact!

This information comes from a none-too confidential source that this reporter deems authentic and reliable. The source's name is Wallace Wade, and he has something to do with football down Tuscaloosa way.

This Mr. Wade admitted today in a none-too-confidential moment that he considers his crimson tide of 1926 superior defensively to last year's road-show, and that he expects to be able to demonstrate as much to the complete satisfaction of the constituency on Saturday afternoon prox.

What Mr. Wade did not admit—though he must have known it at the moment—was that his crimson tide of 1926 must needs be superior defensively to last year's company if it and he are to cope as successfully with "Pop" Warner and his sons of the Stanford Red as they did a year back with Enoch Bagshaw and his Washington huskies. On this angle deponent maintaineth a modest and discreet silence.

In the matter of offensive power—an important consideration, if one hopes to win football games as well as to impede the other fellow's goal-ward march—Mr. Wade believes that this year's troupe and last year's are about on a par. Wherefore one may assume, with some degree of reason, that the crimson tide of 1926 has flooded to a high-water mark above and beyond that established during the season of 1925 and on the propitious dawning of the year 1926.

The Alabama troupe has entered upon an intensive campaign of conditioning that will culminate in one last orgy of knock-down-and-drag-out on or about Thursday afternoon.

Coach Wade in the workouts he is conducting appears to be driving ahead on a well arranged plan of attack—and an attack that might give "Pop" Warner plenty to think about, at that.

The Alabama offensive seems to start largely from punt formation, giving the backs opportunity either to kick, pass or rush with equal facility.

"Lovely" Barnes, who will be well and favorably remembered locally for his efforts of last New Year's day, is now skipper of the ball club, punter, safety-man and signal-caller. Barnes fills "Pooley" Hubert's position, if not his shoes. He comes pretty close to doing the latter, too, so they do say.

Elks, Salineville Battle For Fourth Place In Cage Loop

Two Victories and Two Defeats Each Gives Rival Squads .500 Standing; Undefeated Salem Crew is Leading Circuit.

EAST LIVERPOOL'S county basketball league entry—The Elks—and Tom Cartwright's Salineville team are tied for fourth place in the loop with two victories apiece and two defeats, the standing of the circuit today reveals, with the Salem Mullins five holding down first place, followed by Columbiana and Damascus.

Up to date the teams are running as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct
Salem	4	0	1.000
Columbiana	3	1	.750
Damascus	2	1	.667
East Liverpool	2	2	.500
Salineville	2	2	.500
East Palestine	1	2	.333
Wellsville	0	3	.000
Lisbon	0	3	.000

The Elks of East Liverpool lost their first two games to East Palestine and Damascus, and then copped the next two, defeating the Columbiana Boosters and trimming Lisbon.

Salineville took over Wellsville by the close margin of 17 to 15 in the opener and then lost to Salem, 44 to 24. Columbiana nosed out a 34 to 29 victory over Salineville and Lisbon lost one, 18 to 14. This gives the Cartwright aggregation a tie with the locals for fourth place.

Columbiana, the second place crew, won three in a row at the outset, toppling Damascus, Wellsville and Salineville, but ran into their first defeat at the hands of the Elks.

Damascus advanced at the expense of East Liverpool and East Palestine, but dropped their opener to Columbiana and consequently are trailing the Boosters. Their Saturday game with Wellsville was postponed on account of the inability of the latter club to get a floor for the contest.

The Elks contributed East Palestine's lone victory. The Paragons have lost to Damascus and Salem and will play Salineville at East Palestine tonight.

Wellsville and Lisbon each have dropped three in a row. Manager Davis' outfit has lost games to Salineville, Columbiana and Salem, while the county seat aggregation was unable to fork out a single decision in battles with Salem, East Liverpool and Salineville.

The schedule for the week follows:

Tonight.
Salineville at East Palestine.

Wednesday.
Damascus at Salineville.
Wellsville at Lisbon.
East Palestine at Columbiana.

Thursday.
Elks at Wellsville.
Columbiana at Salem.

Friday.
Lisbon at Damascus.

Saturday.
Salem at East Liverpool.

The exceptions were furnished by John McGraw, Comiskey and Ball. The latter merely declined to permit Cobb to class him "with dishonest and crooked owners" and let it go at that. McGraw declared he felt the official reply should come from Judge Landis.

Comiskey said he "welcomed" an investigation by anyone, in or out of baseball, who believed they possessed evidence of dishonesty. He added that, so far as he was concerned, such an investigation could include the entire personnel of the sport from the highest to the lowest.

Some of the replies to Cobb vouchsafed by club residents were as follows:

Phil Ball, St. Louis: "Mr. Cobb is mistaken when he puts me in with dishonest and crooked owners, if he said it."

Charles A. Comiskey, Chicago: "If Cobb, or anyone else, in or out of baseball, has any information regarding dishonesty acts pertaining to anything in baseball, the Chicago club would welcome an investigation now, starting with the owners and including the entire personnel of the complete organization."

Robert Quinn, Boston Red Sox: "Charges quoted are so childish they don't require any answer."

Clark Griffith, Washington: "If Cobb made statements credited, I am at a loss to know of any foundation for them. If any irregularities exist they are absolutely unknown to me."

Emil E. Fuchs, Boston Braves: "Since by entry, I have found baseball beyond reproach. I have full faith in the integrity of player, manager and owner. The ethics and standards of baseball today are higher than in other business or profession, in my judgement. Last fall in Boston, I witnessed players who worked harder against the clubs which, sentimentally, they desired to win the championship."

John A. Heydler, president of the National League: "I have no comment to make on the charges that Cobb is alleged to have made regarding ticket scandals except to say that to my knowledge there is nothing in the business conduct of the game by officials and club owners to warrant them."

PLAY CANTON FIVE TONIGHT

High Squad Off for Third Hard Game of Season.

With every player, except, perhaps, Captain Jimmy Hamilton, in good condition, Coach Lorah's high school squad will leave this afternoon for Canton where they will take on McKinley in the third contest of the current season.

O. V. Boone, former athletic director of the East Liverpool school, is now an instructor at McKinley and consequently the game will prove of more than ordinary interest to the Cantonians.

Hamilton's knee is not in condition to permit him to play a full game and it is likely he will sit on the bench for a couple of weeks.

The squad of 10 or 12 players will make the trip by automobile.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON.
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you grip the ground by initiating a slight exertion toward drawing your feet together, you will note at once a springiness throughout the legs, and you cannot help but note how solidly and and firmly you have hold of the ground with your feet. It may even be mirth-provoking to discover that you can attach yourself so firmly to the ground. But that grip of the earth is the very foundation of the good golf swing. With looseness between you and mother earth your swing is likely to get off balance or suffer somewhere. This method fixes the grip of both feet, too, and thereafter throughout the swing they will maintain that grip. The one thing to watch out for, however, is not to overdo this. Too much gripping will result in rigidity in the leg and foot muscles. Employ this grip in utmost moderation—a very little of it is a great plenty.

Joe Genewisch, young right-handed pitcher of the Boston Braves, may be sold outright or traded before spring. Genewisch has served four years with the Braves. He has a good curve and fast ball.

BABE TO "WORK" WITH GRID STARS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—"Babe" Ruth, who hits them far and wide for the New York Yankees, but who is now an actor of parts, will drop both roles today when he works out with the football stars of the east and west. The Bambino will first work out with the eastern athletes, then, if the going hasn't been too rough, he will practice with the western stars. The two teams will meet here on New Year's day.

ROSELAWNS BOW TO NEWS QUINT

Lose Three Straight in Duckpin Loop.

Smith News bowlers of the Liberty duckpin loop won three in a row from the Roselawns last night and tightened their grip on third place.

Cracker Howell was high for the night in series scores with a mark of 429, but Moffet topped the individual performances with a score of 175 in the first game.

Movin' On

AARON WARD, sent to the Chicago Sox in the recent deal between that club and the Yankees, hopes to get a crack at Eddie Collins' old job at second base. Ward, utility infielder for the Yankees for three years and virtually a regular for six seasons, found himself benched last season in favor of Tony Lazzeri, Coast League home run star.

AARON WARD

Ward was a Yankee vet in point of service, joining the team from the Charlestown club, Sally League, in 1918. Broke into game with Little Rock in 1915.

Has collected dough in four world's series with Yankees, the three in a row 1921-23, and last fall's. Hit .306 in 1921 but during the rest of his career has had trouble hitting anywhere near the .300 mark.

WADE BOASTS GOOD DEFENSE

Alabama Shows Improvement for Coast Game.

By JACK JAMES.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—It now appears that all of us enthusiasts—expert and inexpert alike—who have been figuring the Alabama football team of this season as slightly inferior to the team that favored us with a visit just a year ago are way out of line.

'Tisn't so. Quite to the contrary, in fact!

This information comes from a none-too confidential source that this reporter deems authentic and reliable. The source's name is Wallace Wade, and he has something to do with football down Tuscaloosa way.

This Mr. Wade admitted today in a none-too-confidential moment that he considers his crimson tide of 1926 superior defensively to last year's road-show, and that he expects to be able to demonstrate as much to the complete satisfaction of the constituency on Saturday afternoon prox.

What Mr. Wade did not admit—though he must have known it at the moment—was that his crimson tide of 1926 must needs be superior defensively to last year's company if it and he are to cope as successfully with "Pop" Warner and his sons of the Stanford Red as they did a year back with Enoch Bagshaw and his Washington huskies. On this angle deponent maintaineth a modest and discreet silence.

In the matter of offensive power—an important consideration, if one hopes to win football games as well as to impede the other fellow's goal-ward march—Mr. Wade believes that this year's troupe and last year's are about on a par. Wherefore one may assume, with some degree of reason, that the crimson tide of 1926 has flooded to a high-water mark above and beyond that established during the season of 1925 and on the propitious dawning of the year 1926.

The Alabama troupe has entered upon an intensive campaign of conditioning that will culminate in one last orgy of knock-down-and-drag-out on or about Thursday afternoon.

Coach Wade in the workouts he is conducting appears to be driving ahead on a well arranged plan of attack—and an attack that might give "Pop" Warner plenty to think about, at that.

The Alabama offensive seems to start largely from punt formation, giving the backs opportunity either to kick, pass or rush with equal facility.

"Lovely" Barnes, who will be well and favorably remembered locally for his efforts of last New Year's day, is now skipper of the ball club, punter, safety-man and signal-caller. Barnes fills "Pooley" Hubert's position, if not his shoes. He comes pretty close to doing the latter, too, so they do say.

Elks, Salineville Battle For Fourth Place In Cage Loop

Two Victories and Two Defeats Each Gives Rival Squads .500 Standing; Undefeated Salem Crew is Leading Circuit.

EAST LIVERPOOL'S county basketball league entry—The Elks—and Tom Cartwright's Salineville team are tied for fourth place in the loop with two victories apiece and two defeats, the standing of the circuit today reveals, with the Salem Mullins five holding down first place, followed by Columbiana and Damascus.

Up to date the teams are running as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct
Salem	4	0	1.000
Columbiana	3	1	.750
Damascus	2	1	.667
East Liverpool	2	2	.500
Salineville	2	2	.500
East Palestine	1	2	.333
Wellsville	0	3	.000
Lisbon	0	3	.000

The Elks of East Liverpool lost their first two games to East Palestine and Damascus, and then copped the next two, defeating the Columbiana Boosters and trimming Lisbon.

Salineville took over Wellsville by the close margin of 17 to 15 in the onener and then lost to Salem, 44 to 24. Columbiana nosed out a 34 to 29 victory over Salineville and Lisbon lost one, 18 to 14. This gives the Cartwright aggregation a tie with the locals for fourth place.

Columbiana, the second place crew, won three in a row at the outset, topping Damascus, Wellsville and Salineville, but ran into their first defeat at the hands of the Elks.

Damascus advanced at the expense of East Liverpool and East Palestine, but dropped their opener to Columbiana and consequently are trailing the Boosters. Their Saturday game with Wellsville was postponed on account of the inability of the latter club to get a floor for the contest.

The Elks contributed East Palestine's lone victory. The Paragons have lost to Damascus and Salem and will play Salineville at East Palestine tonight.

Wellsville and Lisbon each have dropped three in a row. Manager Davis' outfit has lost games to Salineville, Columbiana and Salem, while the county seat aggregation was unable to fork out a single decision in battles with Salem, East Liverpool and Salineville.

The schedule for the week follows:

Tonight.
Salineville at East Palestine.

Wednesday.
Damascus at Salineville.
Wellsville at Lisbon.
East Palestine at Columbiana.

Thursday.
Elks at Wellsville.
Columbiana at Salem.

Friday.
Lisbon at Damascus.

Saturday.
Salem at East Liverpool.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Did you ever write a letter to Frederic J. Haskin? You can ask him any question of fact and get the answer in a personal letter. Here is a great educational idea introduced into the lives of the most intelligent people in the world—American newspaper readers. It is a part of that best purpose of a newspaper — service. There is no charge except two cents in stamps for return postage. Address Frederic J. Haskin, Director, The East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Q. Having no food, would a person keep alive longer on wine or water? R. B.

A. The Public Health Service says that a person can live longer on water than on wine, because wine unless diluted with water would not satisfy h's thirst.

Q. What is jasper? W. B.

A Jasper is an impure form of cryptocrystalline quartz. The color is usually red, brown, or yellow according to the amount of iron oxide contained in the stone There is also a form of jasper which is dark green and opalescent. This is probably the quality spoken of as forming one of the jewels on the breastplate of the high priest and as a foundation stone of the wall of the New Jerusalem.

Q. Which Presidents left the United States during their terms of office? A. A. McG.

A. They were: Roosevelt—visited the Panama Canal Zone and went to the city of Panama; Taft—crossed the border into Mexico and dined with President Diaz at Juarez; Cleveland—on a fishing trip exceeded the boundary of the United States; Wilson—Peace Conference in Europe; and Harding—British Columbia, Canada.

A For the calendar year 1924, 25,243 returns were filed reporting net income of $5,000 and over by American citizens the source of which was in foreign countries. The foreign income was reported to be $46,364,366, the tax paid foreign countries was $2,476,804.

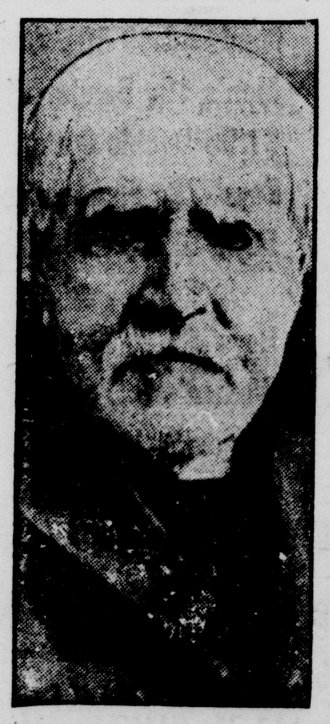
114 Christmases



Thomas Sloan (above) of Guthrie, Okla., claims Christmas as his 114th birthday. Born in Ireland, he says he came to America an even 100 years ago.

IRISH LAUNCH TITLE DRIVE

Notre Dame Champs Face Hard Sledding to Repeat.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 28.—It being the open season for hunters, the Notre Dame basketball team is going out to bag a wild cat on Thursday night. The Irish are keen to add Northwestern's scalp to their season's collection, which includes thus far the pelts of Armour Tech, Earlham, Iowa and Minnesota.

Coach George Keogan's Irish cagers, who hold the mythical Indiana and Western basketball championships as the result of their performance last year, when they won 19 of 20 games, are out to repeat the championship claims. Sixteen games, and not a set up in the lot, remain to be played before March ends the season.

Dr. Keogan gave his squad only a few days rest during the holidays, and ordered them all back for practice yesterday. Keogan is putting them through two hard practice sessions each day, in anticipation of the Northwestern tilt here Thursday night and the return game at Evanston next Monday night.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

WE find that during the holiday season this baseball mess has taken the place of "bonded stuff" and the funny Christmas presents Aunt Minny always sends as the chief topic of conversation when good fellows get together.

And the interesting slant on these discussions is that the average fan now finds himself hopelessly at sea as far as having any clear idea of just what the scandal is all about—is concerned what Tris and Ty did and didn't do, said and didn't say, etc. He is at sea regarding the ethics of the manner in which the baseball moguls handled the case. He has no clear conception of just how and why the matter was kept under cover for three months before being spilled.

He seems definitely satisfied regarding but one phase of the case. That is that Dutch Leonard must find his "revenge" sort of an unsatisfactory one. Not one fan within my hearing has had a kind word or a defense for Leonard.

The public seems, generally speaking, in sympathy with Cobb and Speaker. There is no sentiment for Leonard.

That "settlement" that the American league made with Leonard sticks in the craws of the fans. And they can't swallow it.

Thirty-four of those 64 years (half his life) has been given to baseball. And he has no idea of stepping down and out as yet. The signing of Eddie Collins recently, is taken as an indication by some that Connie is preparing for the day when he will find it convenient to turn over the active management of the club to some one else. This, however, is mere conjecture. His principal reason for signing Collins, of course, were to strengthen his infield and to add color to the club, which would help it at the gate.

Connie broke into baseball as a catcher in 1894.

Gene Tunney, who weathered Jack Dempsey's punches for 10 rounds and got a decision over him, says that if Dempsey ever really hits Jack Delaney the lightweight champ will be knocked cold.

There are two inferences to draw. One is that Dempsey hit Tunney and failed to turn the trick because Gene was too tough. The other is that Dempsey didn't hit Tunney.

for distribution some 6,000 films which have been furnished it by various agencies in the United States and by the governments of foreign nations. They deal in varied subjects such as scientific development, agriculture, public health and travel.

One firm will perhaps carry through an entire industry such as the making of carpets. The shepherds will be shown tending the sheep, and the shearing of the sheep, the carding of the wool, and clear on down to the weaving of the carpets will be depicted.

The titles of a few of the films distributed through the bureau will indicate the varied subjects touched upon. Some of them are: Opening Aerial Mail Service; Fighting the Fly; Plastic Surgery; Coconuts and Coconut Products in the Philippines; A Trip to Old Santa Fe; From Mine to Mint; Indian Dances and Pastimes; Silk Weaving in Japan; Homemaking in Western Canada.

Just recently the widely known Mr. "A" of India ordered 50 films on modern methods of agriculture and road building which he is planning to exhibit in the schools of his country. Another consignment has just been sent to the Prince Carol Institute of Romania. These films will be shown in the schools of Romania with instructors to explain them.

The titles of practically all of the films sent from America are in English and it is believed that from these the natives of other countries will unconsciously acquire some knowledge of English. At first an effort was made to translate the titles into the language of the country to which they were being sent, but this did not always prove successful.

Chinese Titles Prove Highbrow.

For instance, a consignment which was being sent to China bore labels which had been carefully translated into Chinese by an attache of the Chinese legation in Washington. Somehow the pictures did not appear to take so well and the director of the bureau becoming curious about the matter inquired as to the reason. Word finally came back that the titles were so "highbrow" that those seeing them were unable to read them.

Some years ago a woman from the east went down to the mountains of Kentucky with the idea of aiding in bringing to the people there some knowledge of the outside world. Dr. Holley and Miss Boggs were able to assist her by obtaining for her a large motion picture machine, such as is used in the regular theaters, and a generator to supply the current. Incidentally this generator proved a revelation to the people of that district, who had never seen gas or electricity, because it furnished light for the entire community as well as the power to run the machine. The Bureau of Commercial Economics furnished films and soon this community center drew the people from all about.

A few days ago the bureau received a letter from the head of this center asking for the regular weekly community service with films, and saying, "this settlement has been in your debt for the joy of light and moving pictures—the latter have literally brought the world into this wilderness. . . The picture machine that you and Dr. Holley secured for us is still doing excellent service. It was scorched through our fire, was almost thrown out the window of the booth, and though it doesn't shine outwardly any more, yet it brings light to the souls of these deprived hill folks." This is a phase of the work about which the bureau says little but which gives it considerable pleasure.

An interesting phase of the bureau's work which is carried on in Washington is the series of private showings at one of the large hotels during the winter. These are all free, admission being by invitation. At these are shown motion pictures depicting the latest news from the country from which they are sent and a talk is given by the ambassador of that country or his representative. Frequently native songs or dances in costume will be included in the program. These evenings are extremely popular with official and diplomating Washington because they are not only entertaining but from them much information regarding the particular country furnishing the film may be obtained which would not be available in any other manner.

The official thanks of congress was presented to the bureau in the following manner: "The Bureau of Commercial Economics deserves the thanks of congress and all the American people for its great, constructive, humanitarian work." Directing the work of such a bureau seems indeed a big task for such a small person as Anita Maris Boggs!

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Did you ever write a letter to Frederic J. Haskin? You can ask him any question of fact and get the answer in a personal letter. Here is a great educational idea introduced into the lives of the most intelligent people in the world—American newspaper readers. It is a part of that best purpose of a newspaper — service. There is no charge except two cents in stamps for return postage. Address Frederic J. Haskin, Director, The East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Q. Having no food, would a person keep alive longer on wine or water? R. B.

A. The Public Health Service says that a person can live longer on water than on wine, because wine unless diluted with water would not satisfy his thirst.

Q. What is jasper? W. B.

A Jasper is an impure form of cryptocrystalline quartz. The color is usually red, brown, or yellow according to the amount of iron oxide contained in the stone There is also a form of jasper which is dark green and opalescent. This is probably the quality spoken of as forming one of the jewels on the breastplate of the high priest and as a foundation stone of the wall of the New Jerusalem.

Q. Which Presidents left the United States during their terms of office? A. A. McG.

A. They were: Roosevelt—visited the Panama Canal Zone and went to the city of Panama; Taft—crossed the border into Mexico and dined with President Diaz at Juarez; Cleveland—on a fishing trip exceeded the boundary of the United States; Wilson—Peace Conference in Europe; and Harding—British Columbia, Canada.

A For the calendar year 1924, 25,243 returns were filed reporting net income of $5,000 and over by American citizens the source of which was in foreign countries. The foreign income was reported to be $46,364,366, the tax paid foreign countries was $2,476,804.

Q. What borough in London has the largest population? J. V. B.

A. Middlesex. The urban population is 1,078,374, rural 48,131, making a total of 1,126,465.

Q. Has the experiment of frying eggs on the pavement so often used as a figure to denote excessive heat actually been tried? O. C.

A. The possibility of frying eggs on the pavement was demonstrated in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, on July 5, 1924, on the asphalt at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue The operation took nine minutes.

Q. How much does it cost to run the Army truck—that is cost per mile? A. L. R.

A. The relative cost for operation, upkeep, and maintenance of standard Army 1-ton, 2-ton, and 3-ton trucks per mile is .148 cents, .152 cents, and .302 cents respectively. These figures include the cost of gasoline, lubricants, tires, spare parts, accessories, supplies, washing, cleaning, chauffeur, maintenance, and repair labor, civilian, computed on the basis of the maximum yearly mileage, 300 days per year.

Q. "Who said "Man's extremity is God's opportunity?" A. G M.

A. John Hamilton, born 1706 said, "Man's extremity is God's opportunity." John Flavel also expressed this idea in a book published before 1691.

Q. Can more than one kind of apples grow on one tree? C. E. F.

A. Yes, a different variety of apples can grow on each branch providing that variety has been grafted on.

Q. What were the principal vegetable substances formerly used to dye hair? A. R. E.

A. Logwood, walnut, henna, and indigo formed the basis of hair dyes a century ago.

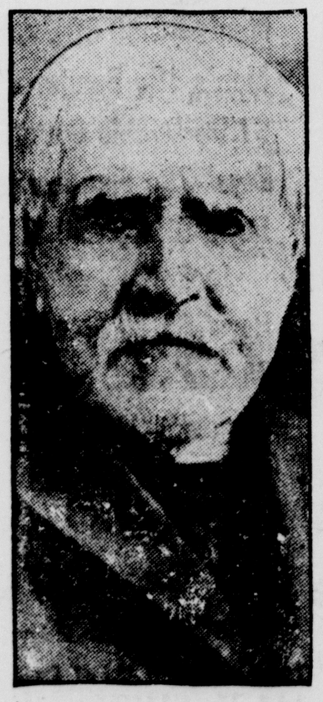
114 Christmases



Thomas Sloan (above) of Guthrie, Okla., claims Christmas as his 114th birthday. Born in Ireland, he says he came to America an even 100 years ago.

IRISH LAUNCH TITLE DRIVE

Notre Dame Champs Face Hard Sledding to Repeat.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 28.—It being the open season for hunters, the Notre Dame basketball team is going out to bag a wild cat on Thursday night. The Irish are keen to add Northwestern's scalp to their season's collection, which includes thus far the pelts of Armour Tech, Earlham, Iowa and Minnesota.

Coach George Keogan's Irish cagers, who hold the mythical Indiana and Western basketball championships as the result of their performance last year, when they won 19 of 20 games, are out to repeat the championship claims. Sixteen games, and not a set up in the lot, remain to be played before March ends the season.

Dr. Keogan gave his squad only a few days rest during the holidays, and ordered them all back for practice yesterday. Keogan is putting them through two hard practice sessions each day, in anticipation of the Northwestern tilt here Thursday night and the return game at Evanston next Monday night.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

WE find that during the holiday season this baseball mess has taken the place of "bonded stuff" and the funny Christmas presents Aunt Minny always sends as the chief topic of conversation when good fellows get together.

And the interesting slant on these discussions is that the average fan now finds himself hopelessly at sea as far as having any clear idea of just what the scandal is all about—is concerned what Tris and Ty did and didn't do, said and didn't say, etc. He is at sea regarding the ethics of the manner in which the baseball moguls handled the case. He has no clear conception of just how and why the matter was kept under cover for three months before being spilled.

He seems definitely satisfied regarding but one phase of the case. That is that Dutch Leonard must find his "revenge" sort of an unsatisfactory one. Not one fan within my hearing has had a kind word or a defense for Leonard.

The public seems, generally speaking, in sympathy with Cobb and Speaker. There is no sentiment for Leonard.

That "settlement" that the American league made with Leonard sticks in the craws of the fans. And they can't swallow it.

Thirty-four of those 64 years (half his life) has been given to baseball. And he has no idea of stepping down and out as yet. The signing of Eddie Collins recently, is taken as an indication by some that Connie is preparing for the day when he will find it convenient to turn over the active management of the club to some one else. This, however, is mere conjecture. His principal reason for signing Collins, of course, were to strengthen his infield and to add color to the club, which would help it at the gate.

Connie broke into baseball as a catcher in 1894.

Gene Tunney, who weathered Jack Dempsey's punches for 10 rounds and got a decision over him, says that if Dempsey ever really hits Jack Delaney the lightweight champ will be knocked cold.

There are two inferences to draw. One is that Dempsey hit Tunney and failed to turn the trick because Gene was too tough. The other is that Dempsey didn't hit Tunney.

for distribution some 6,000 films which have been furnished it by various agencies in the United States and by the governments of foreign nations. They deal in varied subjects such as scientific development, agriculture, public health and travel.

One firm will perhaps carry through an entire industry such as the making of carpets. The shepherds will be shown tending the sheep, and the shearing of the sheep, the carding of the wool, and clear on down to the weaving of the carpets will be depicted.

The titles of a few of the films distributed through the bureau will indicate the varied subjects touched upon. Some of them are: Opening Aerial Mail Service; Fighting the Fly; Plastic Surgery; Coconuts and Coconut Products in the Philippines; A Trip to Old Santa Fe; From Mine to Mint; Indian Dances and Pastimes; Silk Weaving in Japan; Homemaking in Western Canada.

Just recently the widely known Mr. "A" of India ordered 50 films on modern methods of agriculture and road building which he is planning to exhibit in the schools of his country. Another consignment has just been sent to the Prince Carol Institute of Romania. These films will be shown in the schools of Romania with instructors to explain them.

The titles of practically all of the films sent from America are in English and it is believed that from these the natives of other countries will unconsciously acquire some knowledge of English. At first an effort was made to translate the titles into the language of the country to which they were being sent, but this did not always prove successful.

Chinese Titles Prove Highbrow.

For instance, a consignment which was being sent to China bore labels which had been carefully translated into Chinese by an attache of the Chinese legation in Washington. Somehow the pictures did not appear to take so well and the director of the bureau becoming curious about the matter inquired as to the reason. Word finally came back that the titles were so "highbrow" that those seeing them were unable to read them.

Some years ago a woman from the east went down to the mountains of Kentucky with the idea of aiding in bringing to the people there some knowledge of the outside world. Dr. Holley and Miss Boggs were able to assist her by obtaining for her a large motion picture machine, such as is used in the regular theaters, and a generator to supply the current. Incidentally this generator proved a revelation to the people of that district, who had never seen gas or electricity, because it furnished light for the entire community as well as the power to run the machine. The Bureau of Commercial Economics furnished films and soon this community center drew the people from all about.

A few days ago the bureau received a letter from the head of this center asking for the regular weekly community service with films, and saying, "this settlement has been in your debt for the joy of light and moving pictures—the latter have literally brought the world into this wilderness. . . The picture machine that you and Dr. Holley secured for us is still doing excellent service. It was scorched through our fire, was almost thrown out the window of the booth, and though it doesn't shine outwardly any more, yet it brings light to the souls of these deprived hill folks." This is a phase of the work about which the bureau says little but which gives it considerable pleasure.

An interesting phase of the bureau's work which is carried on in Washington is the series of private showings at one of the large hotels during the winter. These are all free, admission being by invitation. At these are shown motion pictures depicting the latest news from the country from which they are sent and a talk is given by the ambassador of that country or his representative. Frequently native songs or dances in costume will be included in the program. These evenings are extremely popular with official and diplomating Washington because they are not only entertaining but from them much information regarding the particular country furnishing the film may be obtained which would not be available in any other manner.

The official thanks of congress was presented to the bureau in the following manner: "The Bureau of Commercial Economics deserves the thanks of congress and all the American people for its great, constructive, humanitarian work." Directing the work of such a bureau seems indeed a big task for such a small person as Anita Maris Boggs!

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Participants in the current winter's session of congressional "cut throat draw" have played the game close to their stomachs—as gamblers express it, thought with slightly less anatomical delicacy—thus far.

FRANK L. SMITH

These preliminaries over, they may be expected to cut loose directly after the holiday recess, and wade right in to win. The session ends March 4, so the cards will have to fall fast.

TIME was when the congressional game was a twosome—two big parties and generally no more. If a third group did, now and then, break in and raw cards for a few deals, it was in the peewee class and neither counted for much nor lasted long.

Today the whole thing is cut up into cliques—"blocs," they call 'em—so that it's hard to tell how anything will come out.

These blocs form constantly changing combinations.

The corn belt bloc, the cotton belt bloc, the wet bloc, the dry bloc, the conservative bloc, the progressive bloc, the protection bloc, the tariff bloc, the fundamentalist bloc, the liberal bloc—blocs, blocs, blocs, ever shifting and changing their arrangement and alignments.

TAKE, as an illustration, the case of Frank L. Smith's disputed Illinois seat in the United States senate.

Smith's a Republican. There are more Republicans than Democrats in the senate. So will Smith be seated? Not necessarily. The Republican progressive bloc intends to vote against him. Will that beat him? Not necessarily. The Democratic states' rights bloc intends to vote in his favor.

The game's scheduled to stop March 4, yes. But who ever saw a loser willing to stop according to schedule? March 4 will find most of the blocs losers. That is to say, the legislation they're variously clamoring for will remain unenacted.

There's just one way in which they can keep the game going—in other words, force an extra session.

That way is to combine to prevent the administration bloc from getting President Coolidge's appropriation bills passed. If that happens, an extra session's a certainty and the game will go on indefinitely.

What's more, its the most approved method of playing "cut throat."

With the money left by many tourists and the prospects of bumper crops, natives of Jamaica are preparing to celebrate the holidays more freely than for several years.

Letters to Editor

Rood Family Case.

East Liverpool, Ohio.
December 27, 1926.

Editor, Review-Tribune,
East Liverpool, O.
Dear sir:

The article published in last Friday's edition of your paper, attributed to a representative of the township trustees, gave the impression that the trustees, Red Cross and Salvation Army had not been notified of the condition of the Rood family.

This is not true for they were notified at the very beginning. The Red Cross was notified by telephone within 30 minutes after the condition of the family was learned. Twenty-four hours later I learned that there had been no investigation and that three of the Rood children had gone to school without their breakfast. I then took up a collection among the Hall China company's employes to procure a dinner for the family.

After this I went to Mr. Croxall's office and told him in the presence of Mr. McGraw, the city auditor, the need of this family and suggested that he investigate. He went to the Rood houseboat and gave Mrs. Rood an order for $5 worth of groceries, which won't go very far in feeding nine hungry people, who were on the verge of starvation. This is the only thing that the trrustees have done for this family, failing to make further inquiry as to the needs of the family.

I asked the Salvation Army for help and that organization rendered assistance without hesitancy and was glad to do so. Mrs. Leeper, the public health nurse, made two or three trips to the home. On her last visit she phoned to me that the family needed coal, but had been unable to get anybody to haul it, she said.

The Nazarene, Presbyterian and Methodist Protestant churches and other organization responded with help after an investigation had been made and the family found worthy.

Mr. Rood says that Mr. Croxall and another man whom he did not know, called at his home last Wednesday and accused him of being lazy, that he would not work when he had a chance and that he had better get a job within three of four days. Mrs. Rood was also accused of begging when her husband was working. This charge, Mrs. Rood denies. She says the only time she ever solicited was since her husband took ill, that being about two days before the family's need was discovered.

Mrs. Rood also denies that she said she owned a farm. She said she explained that she had inherited a part of the property of her father, who died about four weeks ago, but that the estate had not yet been settled, nor does she know when it will be settled. The farm was valued at about $400, she said.

I inquired of Frank Kennedy, bookkeeper for the Crockery City Ice company, for whom Mr. Rood worked last summer and was told that Mr. Rood was a willing worker. Kennedy said Rood had only loafed two days last summer that being when the river was high and he had to take care of his boat, that he worked some days when he was not able and that he never asked for help when he was working Mr. Kennedy has visited this family several times and told me that he believes it a very worthy case.

A number of false reports concerning Mr. Rood have been circulated recently but these reports, was found upon investigation, were caused by another family of the same name. Mr. Rood is a man of good habits and a church member.

I am not anxious to engage in a controversy in this matter but I feel that in justice to all parties concerned the people of East Liverpool should know the facts as I found them. I stand willing to prove every statement which I have made in this communication.

Yours very truly,
WILLARD E. McCOY,

CONFESSES DOUBLE MURDER

MOTORIST HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Today

1926 Years Ogo.
A Roman Execution.
U. S. Flyers.
Mr. Smith's Six Sweethearts

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

NINETEEN HUNDRED AND TWENTY-SIX years ago today, "as nearly as men can reckon it, with changing calendars and doubtful dates, a baby was born, in the Holy land, designed to have greater influence upon the world than all of the human beings born on earth, since time began.

From the hour when the mother first held that Divine infant in her arms, a better time began for all mothers and all children. The father had power of life and death over them. If unwelcome, they could be legally exposed in the public square, at birth, to be devoured by dogs, or taken to be raised as slaves.

FEW were the angry, or threatening words that Christ spoke and the strongest were warnings, in the defense of children.

For the man that hurt "one of these little ones," it were better that he were cast into the sea, with a millstone around his neck. And sternly men were warned, concerning the children, that "their angels do always behold the face of my Father, which is in Heaven."

FEW and uncertain are the historical facts concerning the life and work of Christ, a few authentic words, written by a Jewish historian: Nothing else. The rest is faith and solemn scientists even affirm that Christ had no actual historical existence.

BUT there are truths about [illegible] and historical record, and the greatest among them deal with the works of Jesus, friend nad protector of women and children, and of the poor.

He lived here, a few years, died a shameful painful death, by slow torture, and the world has ben slowly growing better through the centuries that have passed, thanks to his teaching, and his example. There is less poverty, less cruelty, infinitely less misery of all kinds. And even the brutality, superstition, cruelty and selfishness, preached in his name by pretended Christians, have not been able to hold back his work.

CHRIST was put to death by order of Pilate, a Roman governor, ruling the Jews, and the method of his killing was a Roman punishment, crucifixion, unknown to Jewish law, and detested by it.

ROY CORBIN, 22, E. PALESTINE, GOES TO JAIL AS TWO DIE

Miner Surrenders in Probe of Coasters' Deaths.

Allege Accused Fled and Spent Night in Barn.

Roy Corbin, 22, coal miner, was held under $3,000 bond to await action by the Columbiana county grand jury when arraigned before Judge O. L. Butts in East Palestine last evening, on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the deaths of William Cartwright, 15, and Viola Burson, 14, who were struck by Corbin's automobile while coasting Sunday evening.

Witness Is Released.

Corbin, who surrendered to the East Palestine police Monday afternoon, offered no defense at the arraignment. He was unable to furnish bond and was taken to Lisbon last night, where he will be held in the county jail.

The accused motorist, accompanied by Elmer Coulter, was driving up the hill leading from a settlement known as Jimtown, south of East Palestine, when the crash occurred. Witnesses told police that the car was on the left side of the road and no headlights were burning at the time of the collision. Skulls of both coasters were crushed.

Police said that Corbin abandoned his car and fled after the accident. He spent the night in the hay mow of a barn at his home, they claim. Relatives induced him to surrender, it was said.

Coroner Investigates.

Coroner J. M. Van Fossan, East Palestine, had rendered no verdict in the children's deaths today, his investigation not having been completed.

The two victims were pupils in the East Palestine Junior high school. The Cartwright boy is survived by his parents, four brothers and three sisters. The Burson girl, who made her home with her step-father, John Biggins, in Jimtown, leaves two brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services for the two children will be held tomorrow afternoon in their respective homes. The Cartwright boy will be buried in the East Palestine cemetery, while the girl's body will be interred in the Achortown cemetery.

Eagles Yule Party Tomorrow Night for Members' Families

Members of East Liverpool aerie, No. 457, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will entertain their families at a Christmas party in the Broadway temple, tomorrow night.

A musical program will precede an address by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones, of Wellsville. Candy and oranges will be distributed by Santa Claus. The drill team will stage an exhibition. A dance will be the concluding feature.

No Mexican-American Break Over New Land Law Expected

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The zero hour in Mexican-American relations, set for Jan. 1, when Mexico's new land and petroleum laws become effective seems destined to arrive and pass without anything very serious taking place, despite the state department's veiled threats a month ago or a break in diplomatic relations.

The rapidity with which foreign oil concerns, whose holdings in Mexico are worth many hundreds of millions, have been falling into line and complaying with the Mexican government's new regulations has served to allay for the time being at least some of the tensity in the situation.

While the state department remains unshaken in its position that the new laws are communistic in theory and confiscatory in practice, the big oil companies are nevertheless apparently willing to take a chance on them, and are complying with the regulations in increasing numbers.

Protected Oil Holdings.

More than fifty of the biggest oil concerns doing business in Mexico, which include the principal American, British and Dutch corporations, have already acted to protect their holdings under the new regulations, according to the Mexican embassy. The corporations apparently decided it was better to play safe with the Calles government than to trust the tortuous game of diplomacy.

JUDGING BEGINS IN TRI-STATE POULTRY ASSOCIATION EXHIBIT

Judging in the fourth annual exhibit of the Tri-State Foultry association, which opened yesterday on the second floor of the waiting station, Broadway and Washington streets, began today.

The production class is being judged by Prof. E. C. Foreman, of Lansing, Mich., while F. H. Ricketts, of Coshocton, will make awards in the show class. About 400 birds are on exhibition.

Breeds represented in the egg production class include Leghorns, Rhode Island Red, Ancona and Plymouth Rock. Chicken breeders from Warren, Lisbon, Irondale, Bulger, Pa., Midway, Pa., are represented. The largest type at the show is the Jersey Black Giant.

Foreman said today that the local show is about three times larger than the national poultry exhibit held at Chicago recently. He added that the quality of birds is higher than that at Chicago. Ricketts also praised of-

Two Bandits Get $20,000 in Hold-up Of Detroit Bank

DETROIT, Dec. 28.—Two bandits obtained approximately $20,000, it is estimated, by holding up a branch of the Commonwealth Savings Bank today.

The bandits worked behind locked doors. The branch manager and two employes arrived at the bank together and as they were opening the door the two bandits arrived on the scene. Without displaying their pistols they told the bank employes they were covered and then entered the bank with them. The door was locked behind them and the three employes were forced to open the vault.

Prosecutor Calls For Transcripts For Grand Jury

Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes today appealed to the mayors and justices of peace in the county to forward transcripts of pending cases to his office before Thursday evening in order that preparations may be made for their presentation at the January session of the grand jury which opens Monday.

Comparatively few transcripts have been received, the prosecutor said.

Mrs. George Murphy Dies in Racine; Funeral Thursday

Mrs. Mary Ella Croxall Murphy, widow of George C. Murphy, former East Liverpool clothier and pottery manufacturer, died in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Underwood, in Racine, Wis., today.

The body will arrive here tomorrow, and will be taken to the home in West Third street Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, in charge of Rev. D. W. MacLeod, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Mrs. Murphy, who, besides Mrs. Underwood, is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Helen Arbuthnot, of Detroit, Mich., was a daughter of Jesse Corxall and a sister of Frank H. Croxall, for many years a partner of J. S. Hilbert and the late George H. Owens in George H. Oowen & Company, real estate nad insurance brokers. Her husband died about five years ago.

The body may be viewed tomorrow evening.

PRETTY GIRL IS HURLED TO HER DEATH IN NEW YORK CITY

SKULL CRUSHED

"Hell Kitchen" Gangsters are Sought as Murderers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The body of Bella Stokes, a pretty 22-year-old blonde, was discovered early today crumpled in the snow in the rear of a building at 442 West Forty-first street. She was apparently hurled to her death from a third-story window by assailants.

Police are searching for two "Hell Kitchen" gangsters as the murderers.

The murder missed being thwarted only by a matter of minutes. A passer-by saw two men dragging a well-dressed girl into the hallway of a Forty-first street tenement and notified the police. When detectives came to investigate the girl's body lay beneath an open window. Her skull was crushed and her body showed bruises.

Girl's Assailants Escape.

A trail of blood inside the building led police to consider the possibility that the girl was slain before being thrown out the window.

Neighbors reported hearing screams from the apartment. A hat and woman's handbag were discovered in the room over the vacant apartment where the window was open. The girl's attacke rs escaped over roofs.

The body of the dead girl was identified by a friend, May Roster, who said the victim was married.

100 Guests Reserve Places for Rotary Birthday Party

Miss Margaret Stahl, a nationally known reader, will interpret Channing Pollock's play, "The Enemy," at a dinner-dance, to be given by the Rotary club at the Country club at 6:30 o'clock tonight, celebrating the sixth anniversary of the organization.

More than 100 reservations have been made for the party. W. E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the Homer Laughlin China company, will be toastmaster. The committee on arrangements includes Wells, C. V. Beatty and R. L. E. Chambers.

A dance will follow Miss Stahl's program. DeMar Miller's orchestra will play.

Guard Texan Who Tells Police he Killed 13 Persons

FARWELL, Texas, Dec. 28.—Extra guards were placed around the jail here today, as a result of the latest statement by George J. Hasseli, admitted slayer of his wife and eight step-children.

Efforts were being made to check details of the statement with California authorities.

After admitting he beat, choked, and shot to death his wife and children, Hasseli last night told of killing a woman and three children in California three years ago. He refused to give the name of the woman or the place where the killings are alleged to have occurred.

YOUTHFUL OHIOAN SAYS HE SHOT HALF BROTHER AND THEN STRUCK WOMAN

Leo Halterman Pleads Guilty When Arraigned at Washington C. H. for Killings on Farm, and Then is Spirited Away by Sheriff Who Fears High Feeling in Community.

DETECTIVE ORA SLATER GRILLS HIM; SHOWS WEAPONS USED IN CRIME

Prisoner Tells Cincinnati Sleuth That he Slew Charles Halterman After Argument, Then Clubbed Sister-in-law Over Head With Shotgun, But Denies Wielding Hatchet.

WASHINGTON C. H., O., Dec. 28.—Leo Halterman, 26, early this morning pleaded guilty to two charges of murder when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Murray, for the killing of his half brother, Charles Halterman, and the latter's wife, Carrie.

He was bound over to the grand jury without bail, and spirited out of the county, as Sheriff Ramsay feared an attempt might be made on the life of the young Blessing's Corner farmer.

County Prosecutor Maddox said he would call a special grand jury session to hear the case before January 1.

Halterman confessed late last night after authorities and detectives grilled him for several hours, showing him the bloody clothes and the shotgun and hatchet with which the murders were committed.

"I feel better now," Halterman declared, after he had confessed.

Former Farm Hand Released.

Samuel Saterfield, a former employe of the slain couple, has been released from custody. Saterfield was held for investigation after Leo Halterman told officers that Mrs. Halterman, the murdered woman, had screamed: "Oh, don't Sam! they are going to kill Charley! shortly before the bodies were found.

"When I saw Sam leave the jail, I knew the jig was up," Halterman told the officers. "I haven't had a minute's peaceful sleep since the killing. The form of Charles kept flitting in and out of my cell and his voice kept crying 'Leo! Leo!' that's why I've confessed."

Ora Slater Called In.

The murdered couple were killed early last Thursday. Leo Halterman told officers that he was awakened by the woman's scream, and rushed into the back yard, to find Mrs. Halterman lying on the ground with her skull crushed. The body of his half-brother, shot several times with a shotgun, was found near the chicken-house. He declared that his half-brother and the latter's wife had evidently heard a disturbance in their chicken-house, and had gone out to investigate. An automobile was heard driving swiftly away immediately after the killings, he said.

On information furnished by Halterman's story, county officers arrested Saterfield, a former farm-hand for the slain man, with whom he was said to have quarrelled recently. Certain discrepancies in the story told by Halterman, however, led the sheriff also to place the latter under arrest, and he has been grilled almost continuously in the county jail here for three days. His confession came early today, after Ora Slater, famous Cincinnati detective who solved the Don R. Mellett murder, and other mysteries, had been called in.

Killings Follow Argument.

County officials grilled Halterman for several hours, while Slater sat in the room as a spectator. Time and again he refused to admit the crimes.

Eventually Slater interposed: "Leo, don't you want to talk to me privately," he asked quietly, as he walked to the door of another room. Halterman followed, and in a few minutes Slater asked for a stenographer to record the confession.

Charles and Leo Halterman rose early the morning of th murder, ac-

Slater's "Homespun Philosophy" Solves Another Slaying

WASHINGTON COURTHOUSE, O., Dec. 28.—Ora Slater, celebrated Cincinnati detective, and his "homespun philosophy," have proved victorious again in unraveling an apparently puzzling murder mystery.

The quiet-voiced, kindly-mannered Slater sat silent and heard county authorities grill Leo Halterman, 26-year-old farmer, about the slaying of Halterman's half-brother and the wife of the latter, for hours. Finally, Slater asked if the prisoner "didn't want to talk to him alone."

Half an hour later, the pair emerged from the room, to summon a stenographer to take down Halterman's written confession that he had killed the couple, and sought to throw suspicion on another man.

Slater's "homespun philosophy" and his unostentatious methods solved the Mellett murder mystery at Canton, and obtained a confession from Jake Nesbit in the famous Troy, Ohio, murder mystery of Mrs. Nesbit.

26,628 PERSONS MET DEATH IN UNITED STATES IN 1925 IN ACCIDENTS IN WHICH MOTOR CARS WERE INVOLVED, HERBERT HOOVER SAYS

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—American streets are day by day getting more perilous for pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

A report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover today by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, disclosed that in 1925 there was one automobile fatality to every 923 registered machines.

More than 21,620 persons died of accidents in which automobiles alone figured. Including accidents in which motor cars were involved, but which were charged against railroads and electric lines 26,628 persons met death. Motor registration was given as 19,954,347.

While figures are not yet available for this year estimates fix motor fatalities at a higher figure than in 1925, and indicate that the death rate has been higher.

Death Rate Increasing.

"Emphasis should be given the fact that the death rate from automobile accidents is increasing rapidly year after year, and that the street hazard, for every one, is becoming greater and greater," the report said.

Iowa, North Dakota and Nebraska made the best records with more than 2,000 automobiles registered in each state to each motor fatality.

In Florida one death occurred in each 597 automobiles, while in New York, where there were 1,625,583 registered machines, deaths were one to each 731 cars.

Ohio's Toll Heavy.

Statistics disclosed that in states where the greatest number of automobiles were registered, the death rate per car was usually heaviest.

More than 10,000 persons were killed in New York, California, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan, where 8,930,000 of the automobiles in the United States were registered.

California had the best record in this group with one death to each 926 automobiles. Other states show one death to 919 cars in Michigan, one death to 916 cars in Ohio, one death to 832 cars in Illinois and one death to 802 cars in Pennsylvania.

Better Regulation Demanded.

The number of machines registered cannot be taken as the true index of the volume of automobile traffic since in a number of states with a small number of machines mileage travel is heaviest, according to the report.

"The increasing number of cars should no lead to the belief that the number of deaths must continue to climb," the report continued.

"Nor should the increase in automobile fatalities be excused on the ground that the number of automobiles, and therefore the risk, has grown.

Better regulation must be enacted. A problem has been presented that calls for drastic safety measures."

VOTE RECOUNT IS CERTIFIED

CHARLESTON, Dec. 28.—The Kanawha county court, with President Omer Given, Democrat, dissenting, today, certified the result of the recent election recount. The figures as certified by the two Republican commissioners, who constitute a majority, leave Walter S. Hallanan with a majority of 20 in the Eighth State Senate district over Senator Clyde B. Johnson, but this result is subject to changes if the supreme court grants a peremptory writ of mandamus which Senator Johnson seeks to compel the Kanawha body to certify recount results which would bring about his election.

ALL-OHIO TOUR OF "POOR NUT"

Buckeye State Boy Co-author and Leading Man.

Patterson McNutt, the theatrical producer, announced this week that he had completed arrangements for an All-Ohio tour of "The Poor Nut" which has Elliott Nugent, an Ohio boy, as featured player. Following a run of 20 weeks at the Cort theatre in Chicago, the college comedy will begin the Ohio engagement at the Hartman theatre, Columbus, the week of January 17, with an extended tour of the state to follow.

In addition to playing the title role, young Nugent is also co-author of the play with his father, J. C. Nugent. Father and son gained prominence a few seasons ago by writing "Kempy," while the famous Nugent family, J. C. Elliott and Ruth, have been associated with a number of Broadway successes including, "Dulcy," "The Trouper," "Kempy," "The Poor Nut," "The Family Upstairs," "God Loves Us" and others. Their home is in Dover, Ohio.

Additional significance is added to the state-wide tour in that the play deals with undergraduate athletic activities at Ohio State university of which young Nugent is an alumnus. Consequently, this institution is planning a tremendous reception for him at Columbus, and the various branches of the O. S. U. Alumni society throughout the stage will stage similar demonstrations when "The Poor Nut" plays other cities. Governor Donahey, President Rightmire of O. S. U. and other prominent state and educational officials will be guests of honor at the initial Ohio performance.

"The Poor Nut" is one of the outstanding successes of recent seasons, having to its credit a record of 42 weeks in New York, 10 weeks in Boston, eight weeks in Philadelphia, in addition to its long Chicago engagement.

Young Nugent's supporting cast will be virtually the same as appeared on Broadway, including such well known players as Norma Lee, Betty Gardo, Percy Helton, Beach Cooke, Frazer Coulter, Larry Fletcher, Harry Gresham, Thomas Shearer, Robert Scott, Eric Kalkhurst, Cornelius Roddy, Edith Leiter, Gladys Winthrop, Betty Clifford and others.

NEW ROAD FOR BEAVER COUNTY

Probably the greatest road building project, from an engineering standpoint ever attempted in Beaver county is being carried forward in the south rn end of the county. This project is the building of a road along the Ohio river bank, from South Heights borough to Woodlawn. The two construction companies, which are under contract for the grading, have already completed about one-half of their work. The road bed is being cut from the side of the hill, and in making, requires the moving of millions of cubic yards of earth and rocks.

It is expected that this road will be completed by the time the new traffic bridge between Ambridge and Woodlawn is opened for travel. The west approach to the new bridge will be directly from this road. This project is being carried on by the state.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX.

"Well, all I can say is, don't look for me early, dear. And oh, by the way, there's a man waiting for you."

"I'm not going out there."

"I'd give it another thought if I were you. He's pretty important."

Sadie was getting into the big coat. She looked very pretty. And there was mockery in her eyes. She remarked finally, "All I can say is, I'd go."

Hester simply didn't hear. Another page rustled.

"Well," observed Sadie, brightly enough, "life goes on. It does go on. And there's always the next best thing." With which bit of worldly wisdom, she stepped into the night, letting the flaps fall behind her.

A little later Jim Wilde called between the flaps, "There's somebody here to see you, Hester. Can you come out?"

"No," said she, without lifting her eyes, "I can't."

Jim lowered his voice. "It's John Watson. He's waiting. Aren't you dressed?"

"I don't care if it's Calvin Coolidge I can't come."

He said something further which she didn't hear. Another page turned, and another, and another.

She was half through the second act before the other girls returned from the supper. Even then, she didn't look up. Absently, hardly hearing her own voice, she asked if they minded the light burning. She never knew what they replied. They were chattering about something that happened. Something they seemed to think exciting. Joe's father had appeared in the lunch room and dragged him away for good. And Jim had already telephoned up to Hollywood for a man to fill his place. It meant rehearsing. And Joe's father was surprisingly young looking. It seemed only a moment later that their clothes were hung up and themselves tucked away in their cots; and hardly more than another intense moment before she had finished the last page and found herself slowly closing the script. She was stiff then, and cold.

Grace stirred and opened her eyes.

"Great Heavens, you still there, Hester?"

"Yes. Sorry I disturbed you?"

"You didn't. But what on earth are you up to?"

"I've read Julian's play."

"Any good?"

There was a long silence. Finally Hester cried out, softly, and unsteadily, "What a fool I am!"

Grace looked up then, blinking under the light. But she saw that Hester was crying; a shivering little figure in the bridal costume of the eighteen-forties with frank tears on her cheeks.

"You should have put something around yourself. You'll be down with broncho-pneumonia the first thing you know. Haven't you learned that you can't take liberties with this climate?"

Hester got to her feet and stood in a daze.

"What's the matter with you, child?"

Blindly the girl extended the script. "This," she said. Then she moved toward the rear of the tent.

Grace lifted herself on an elbow. "Where are you going, for heaven's sake?"

"To find him."

"But it's half-past twelve. He'll be asleep."

"Then I'll wake him."

"Have you gone off your head?"

"Do you think I can sleep . . . after this?" She was waving the script, shakily.

"You don't mean to say it's as good as that?"

Hester stood looking helplessly toward her.

"I understood Murry said it wasn't much good."

Now Hester found her voice. Her little round face fairly blazed out from the encircling mist of the veil. "Murry!" There was a world of indignation, almost of contempt, in the one explosive word that disposed forever, so far as the life of this small person was concerned, of the pathetically spacious J. Murry Watt. "Murry! What does he know of the modern theatre? My God, he dates from Bulwer Lytton This is the most beautiful play I ever read. It is subtle, poignant, equisite. Of course he seemed queer. Why shouldn't he? He's as sensitive and gentle as Barrie, and as keen for character as Robert Johns. He has a beautiful soul. And to think that he . . . . he gave it to me . . ."

"Gave it to you?"

" . . . gave it to me, and I wouldn't even read it. What could have been the matter with me? I was crazy. This"—she banged a hand down on the play—"this is real. It's true! It's true! It's perfect! It's the one kind of thing I can do!" she was talking breathlessly, but vehemently through the tears, not caring who might hear or see. Abruptly, interrupting herself at this point, she turned to go.

"You might at least turn out the light," observed Grace pettishly, and flopped over on her side.

Grouppingly, Hester found the switch. Then she ran out, stumbling over a suit case and all but falling.

"For Heaven's sake, be careful!" cried Grace. "Don't break your neck! And you'd better put something around . . . . " But the flaps had fallen shut.

The light was still on in the men's tent. She called softly, "Julian!"

"Julian isn't here." It was Jim's voice. "What do you want of him at this time of night?"

But she heard only part of this. She stumbled out behind the cyclorama. There, parked in the shadow was his car. She moved toward it. Then she saw a shadow within it darker than the others, and hesitated. Her knees gave under her. But she gathered her courage and went on.

There he sat, upright, alone in the dark, pressing a hand to his battered face. She was still crying, but what did that matter?

She spoke his name, timidly . . . . . "Julian."

"Yes," he said. Just "yes." He didn't move. He didn't so much as ask her to sit with him in the car. But why should he? After all that she . . A sob came.

Powerful Modern Story of Sea at American.

"Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea) which Rex Ingram produced in Europe for Metro-Goldwyn, had its first showing yesterday at the American theatre, where it opened a four-day run. It is one of the finest pictures ever made in America or Europe.

Ingram has again demonstrated his ability to combine a strong dramatic story with pictorial beauty and marvelous performances on the part of his leading players, and produce a worthwhile picture.

"Mare Nostrum" is one of Blasco Ibanez's most widely read stories. In transferring it to the film Ingram has lost none of the powerful drama. It is a production which reflects great credit to Ingram and to all those associated with it.

As Freya Talberg the clever spy, Alice Terry has a part entirely different to anything she has previously done before the camera. Her skillful handling of the difficult role elevates her to new heights as an actress.

Antonio Morenzo is most convincing as Ulysses Ferragut, the Spanish sea captain. A native of Spain Morena has long awaited an opportunity to enact a modern Spanish part. He takes advantage of his opportunity in "Mare Nostrum" and gives the best performance of his career.

Mount Vesuvius, the ruins of Pompeii, the ruins of the old temples of Paestum, which are more than 2,550 years old, the harbors and water fronts of Marseilles and Barcelona, the French and Italian Rivieras, Naples and many other places shown in "Mare Nostrum" are a part of the picture.

The story of "Mare Nostrum" concerns the experiences of Freya Talberg, a beautiful spy in the services of her country, and Ulysses Ferragut, the last of the famous family of seafaring Ferraguts.

Combat Thrills In 'Ben Hur,' Booked By Ceramic Theatre

The dash of the American attack in pictures never found more appropriate use than in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spectacle of "Ben-Hur," which opens a three-day run at the Ceramic theatre Thursday. A sea fight, the equivalent of a Roman naval war, is visualized in 15 minutes packed with thrills. Just a few of the incidents:

Evolutions of two fleets aggregating 100 vessels. Chaining of the doomed slaves in the Roman flagship, poignantly contrasted with the escape of unshackled Ben-Hur. Ramming and boarding of the Roman vessels. Onslaught of the pirate Golthar and his men, bearing aloft on their pikes the heads of slaughtered Romans. The Romans' stout defense by Greek fire, ballistics, javelins, spears, pikes and ultimately the very pins and blocks of the ship. The firing of the flagship, the fate of the doomed oarsmen, the leaps of hundreds of the badly seared fighters into the sea, the rescue of the commander-in-chief by the sole slave that escaped, the parade of the Romans after their general victory, the thrilling salutation to the returned commander, Arrius, whose orders won the action though his individual ship went down.

Fred Niblo took acres of land and built upon it a race course and a great Antioch circus for the sole purpose of filming the chariot race sequence in the Lew Wallace story. This construction was begun near Culver City in July and not completed until October. The great Circus Maximus extended 1,500 feet along the sides of the course and towered 150 feet above it. Huge sculptured gladiators, 35 feet high and each weighing several tons, marked the ends of the spina, insula or island around which the track goes. Twelve drivers with their 12 teams of four horses each were in rehearsal for nearly a month before the great day of the race which was characterized by thrills and hairbreadth escapes.

The sixth lap was the most exciting. Mickey Millerick, a famous horseman, driving the Byzantine team of roans, caught the inner rail at the south turn and just behind the Roman team. In doing so he crowded the Greek, Sididian, Corinthian and Athenian teams far wide. The first went down and soon the others piled on top of him. There were actual shrieks from the throngs and it seemed that some one must be hurt, perhaps fatally.

Ben-Hur (Ramon Novarro) had luckily gone wide and escaped the wreck. He went on to get even at the beginning of the seventh and last lap, and then the grant incident of the story was enacted. Messala's wheel was torn off and he was smashed beneath his chariot and team. Ben-Hur went on to win easily amid the cheers of the vast crowd.

Wilbur M. Bates, the veracious historian of the stage "Ben-Hur" back in 1899, stated with considerable pride that its treadmill chariot race cost $19,500. The whole "Ben-Hur" production of that day, he said, cost in the neighborhood of $79,000. The difference between that time and this is illustrated by the statement that it took three years instead of two months to get the "Ben-Hur" picture ready. The Circus Maximus racing and the sea fight mentioned at the beginning of this article cost at least half a million apiece and the labors of many thousands of persons. The total cost of the picture is around $4,000,000.

Hard Tests For Drivers

Officials in Leipzig, Germany, certainly take automobile driving seriously. Every prospective driver has to be tested as to his fitness for performing that work intelligently and safely.

A laboratory has been established in which the candidate for a driver's license sits at the steering wheel of a detached control section of an automobile. Close in front of him is a screen on which is thrown a moving picture of traffic in a congested section. He must then manipulate his controls to avoid the dangers presented in the picture. Every move he makes is automatically recorded, revealing any mistakes in judgment and the speed of his reactions. Other bits of equipment show up his psychological reactions and his general steadiness or unsteadiness. Still another machine tests his strength and endurance under strain.

If he gets by all those things satisfactorily and has the price for a car, apparently he is allowed to have his license.

There are a lot of foolish drivers in this country whom the public could well afford to eliminate by some such tests.

Court Technicalities

Court technicalities have become a byword in this country, because they are so regularly invoked for the obstruction of justice. It is usually felt, however, that the correction of this evil is a tremendously difficult task.

The legal profession seems to dodge responsibility for it. Lawyers insist that they are within their rights, and moreover that if the rules were ignored, the whole system of justice would crumble. Judges protest that they are helpless. The buck is passed to legislatures.

This is all a mistake, says Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh of Chicago, who has been on the bench for 30 years. Speaking of the way England, from which our judicial system is borrowed, has swept away this maze of entangling technicalities, he says:

"This relief can be had in the United States without the aid of any legislation whatever. The courts themselves have in themselves the power and duty to correct these absurd technicalities."

They were not created by legislatures, he says. "They are all judge-made laws, and have been followed by other judges until they become precedents." These precedents are not compulsory. The courts have power to disregard them, and in most of the states are expressly commanded by the legislatures "to disregard the errors and to affirm the judgment unless they can see that the error has caused injustice." But for the most part, this has not been done.

The innate conservatism of the bar and bench has prevented the reform. And when a judge has the courage to cut through the red tape and insist on taking a straight line to essential justice, in spite of technical errors, he is likely to be called by his legal brethern a "dangerous radical."

Big Game Multiplies

What potection will do for wild life is shown strikingly in Jasper National Park, which corresponds in Canada to our own Yellowstone Park. Big game, which has feared and shunned civilized man and all his works for generations, adapts itself to kindly treatment with remarkable promptness and intelligence.

Elk and deer are feeding within a stone's throw of the railroad yards at Jasper. Mountain sheep and goats visit the outskirts of the town. Bears make regular visits to the back doors of hotels and boarding houses. Deer which formerly fled at the distant sight of human beings are keeping down the grass on the local golf course and taking the place of lawn mowers.

Game of all kinds is multiplying again in the vicinity. There are said to be 10,000 to 15,000 mountain sheep and 6,000 to 7,000 mountain goats within the park, and there are big herds of caribou beyond. Even the grizzly bears, though not fraternizing with men like the black and cinnamon bears, are increasing back in the hills. The Canadian Rockies are being replenished with noble game animals that were on the point of vanishing altogether.

It is always so when society curbs the "killers" and gives wild life a fighting chance. Thanks to the new humanity, the unsportsmanlike folk who seem to kill for the sheer pleasure of killing, without regard to consequences, are no longer having their way on this continent. The result is good for true sportsmen as well as for the constantly growing number of men and women who can look upon beautiful animals and birds in their native habitat without wanting to shoot them.

Canadian Business Diplomacy

Canada, taking her new autonomy seriously, starts out making business arrangements with other countries for herself. As a beginner, she has concluded a commercial treaty with Czecho-Slovakia that shows the Dominion knows what it is about.

This is the most favorable treaty that Czecho-Slovakia has yet made with any nation. In return for certain benefits granted her by Canada, in the form of intermediate rates under the Canadian flexible tariff system, the European republic has given Canada her lowest rates of duty on more than 70 commodities, including all the important Canadian exports.

When a neighbor puts over a deal like that, Uncle Sam is bound to sit up and take notice.

ONE OF THOSE FORMAL AFFAIRS.

A group of moving-picture magnates were having a dinner; at least, so the story runs.

Across the lobby of the hotel where the banquet was to be held came lunging the flashlight expert who had been detailed to take a picture of the festive scene. Although he was carrying a heavy camera he traveled at a trot.

"What's your rush?" inquired a friend in the newspaper business, who had come downstairs to call up his office and report progress after a preliminary size-up of the impending event. "You can take your time—that bunch upstairs have barely gotten seated."

"That's the very reason why I am in such a hurry," answered the operator as he dived into the waiting elevator. "I want to get this photograph made before they get the napkins tucked in at the neck!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Broadway has spawned a desperate type of criminal in the wake of prohibition. He is the bootlegger playing recklessly for high stakes. When his selling territory is invaded he resorts to only one recourse—kill off the invader.

The bootlegging kings are so thoroughly ramparted that few of the solicitors know for whom they are working. And when they order murder the order goes through so many hands the hired thugs are not aware of the origin.

There are a number of heavy spenders, whose source of income is doubtful, believed to be chiefs in this game of millions. They often spend a thousand dollars a night in dazzling haunts for one of those orgies coming under the head of "a party."

So impeccable seem their lives that the most experienced crime hunters are baffled. It is said one of the shrewdest has only one confidant. When he has any commands for the subordinate of importance he rows him out into the middle of the Hudson.

This may be an exaggeration but one thing is certain a bootleg king will never talk on the telephone or is he ever seen with the gunmen, bail hoppers and other criminals who act as his field agents. He walks alone.

He is not the heavyfooted, square-toed gorilla of popular imagination. He has the breezy, winking gaiety of the boulevardier and is a favorite among show girls upon whom he bestows diamond bracelets and other gee-gaws and is perfectly at home in correct evening clothes.

The golden rewards attract the highest type of criminal. His post is an executive one and he knows that when he shows just one tiny streak of yellow he is doomed. Consequently when thwarted, he strikes out with a blind and murderous passion.

Balcony audiences in New York theatres seem to have the best time. There is not the stiffness of the white-fronts down stairs yet they give the comfortable impression they are as good as they are. They are very much at ease. There are young men there with their girls, fathers with entire families, students who take notes and all seem more sensitive to impressions than those below. There is no arriving late merely to be seen. Between acts the majority remain seated and launch discussions of the play. There is a critic who prefers the balcony as the most desirable spot to review the play.

The abandonment theme has struck Tin Pan alley. Plaintive songs of "breezing along on a breeze" and "nobody wants me" continue their popularity, especially when warbled by those who have a Pagliacci note in their voices. There are times when some gin guzzler in the audience will break right down and cry out loud.

Overheard at Lindy's on Broadway:

"Is he stupid?"

"Stupid? It would take six more inches of brains to make him a half wit."

Overheard in the egg-shaped dining room of the Ritz:

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A Great Educational Work.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 28.—Director of the Bureau of Commercial Economics is an imposing title for such a tiny, and decidedly feminine, young woman as is Anita Maris Boggs. And yet, to quote Al Jolson, "you ain't heard nothing yet!"

Miss Boggs is not only director of this bureau but she was a co-founder with the late Francis Holley and during his lifetime was dean of the organization. She has traveled around the world and been the guest of several foreign governments that have asked her to assist them in establishing the work of the bureau in their countries so that their people might receive the benefits of the service it extends.

The bureau was founded in 1913 with the aim of promoting amity between the nations. Both of the founders were firm believers in what is now termed visual education. They believed that people who were separated by space, language, customs and environment, might be brought to a better understanding of each other if they could be actually shown how those of other nations lived. Their theory was that people who really knew something of one another were not so apt to fall into disagreement.

The use of motion pictures for educational purposes at that time was a departure. Those were the days when one more or less slunk into a movie theatre and hurried out hoping that no friend was around to witness the evidence of one's low taste in indulging in such a form of entertainment. Visual education was not much believed in. In fact, a former commissioner of the Bureau of Education of this country insisted quite flatly to Miss Boggs that it had been proved that one learned little or nothing through the eye—that the ear was the thing. Later Miss Boggs was to have the satisfaction of seeing this same man so converted to the idea of visual education that he was one of its strongest advocates.

Not a Commercial Institution.

The bureau, despite its name, is not in any way a commercial organization. It is purely altruistic supported by voluntary contributions and memberships. It has no capital stock and its officers receive no compensation for their services other than their expenses. A membership costs $25 annually and entitles the member organization to one film a week which makes the cost about 50 cents for each one. If, however, the organization or institution desiring the film is not in a position to pay for a membership the films are sent anyway. The only requirement is that the exhibitor must have his own projection machine and must pay the transportation charges.

The bureau is international in scope and although it is not officially connected with any one government it has the co-operation of many of the leading nations of the world. It has

Foreign Judge May Preside at Hearing in Lisbon.

Pending the receipt of official notification of the ouster suit filed against him yesterday in common pleas court at Lisbon, Mayor W. L. Fogo today was unwilling to comment on his course of action.

Containing 417 names, petitions demanding removal of the mayor were filed in court by Attorney W. H. Spence, of Lisbon. Ten charges were cited in the petitions.

While apprised of the fact that the suit had been filed, the chief executive pointed out that he would be unable to announce any possible action until service is made on him through the proper channels.

The charges will be heard before the court and not by jury.

The case is the second of its kind to be filed under the law that permits five per cent of the electorate to go into common pleas court with charges demanding the removal of a public official.

While no official announcement has been made to the effect, it is regarded as a possibility that the case may be heard by a foreign judge.

Railway projects to be pushed in the Punjab will require more than $2,000,000 in construction.

POLICE SEEKING DIAMOND THIEVES

Aid of Ohio valley police has been enlisted in the search for two thieves who last night broke the lock off the front door of the Thomas W. Kirk jewelry store in the heart of the Steubenville business district and got away with two trays of diamonds valued at about $7,000.

The diamonds were in display in the windows.

Police learned that two men had been standing close to the doorway prior to the robbery, and express the belief that they pried off the lock as citizens walked up and down the busy street, and then succeeded in making a quick dash into the place and back into the crowd without arousing suspicion.

Awaits Analysis Result.

Mickey Dalton, arrested by police last night, was released on bond of $100 pending the completion of an analysis of the contents of a one-gallon jug, possession of which led to his arrest.

E. PALESTINE MEN WILL GET HEARING HERE

Will Answer Count of Practicing Without License.

W. H. Crawford, chiropractor and Charles Senior, a natureopath, both of East Palestine, will be given a hearing before Justice J. W. Riley, of Wellsville, on January 4, on charges of doing illegal advertising and practicing without a license.

Action was taken against the East Palestine men by the state medical department as a result of information given by Inspector Dorsey.

Crawford and Senior contend they are being prosecuted by a "medical trust."

H. R. Harrington, 56, Logan, O., Banker, Dies in Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 28.—Arrangements were being made here today to send the body of Herbert Russell Harrington, 56, president of the First National bank at Logan, to his former home for burial. He died here last night after an illness of 18 months.

Brief funeral services are to be held here.

PENNSY OFFICER LEAVES SERVICE

Robert Trimble, assistant chief engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad and chief engineer of the Pennsylvania company and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis, after being in service of the Pennsylvania for 51 years, will retire from active service January 1. He became 70 years of age December 22 and retires under the age rule of the company.

Mr. Trimble is a native of Butler, Pa. and a Pittsburgh product, having secured his early education in private and public schools of Pittsburgh and Allegheny and his technical education at the Western University of Pennsylvania, now the University of Pittsburgh. He entered the service of the company as messenger in the office of the chief engineer here July 1, 1875 and has been connected with the engineer's department ever since.

Mr. Trimble soon became chainman under the direction of Thomas Rodd and worked at various points on the Pennsylvania lines west as chainman, rodman and levelman until 1880 when he was appointed resident engineer in charge of the construction of the old Chicago Union station, under the jurisdiction of the Pittsburgh office. On completion of the station in 1881 he returned to Pittsburgh as assistant engineer.

On July 1, 1889, Trimble was made principal assistant engineer of what was then known as the Northwest system of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh. On January 1, 1903, he was appointed Chief Engineer Maintenance of way of the same lines, with entire charge of construction work, and consultant on maintenance work.

Trimble was relieved of maintenance matters on the Northwest system on July 1, 1918, and appointed chief engineer-construction for all new work on the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh. On March 1, 1920, Trimble was appointed assistant chief engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad system, with headquarters at Pittsburgh, Pa., and on July 1, 1926, he was appointed chief engineer of the Pennsylvania company and of The Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis Railroad company.

REDUCE P. R. R. SHOPS FORCES

Between 85 and 100 Workmen to be Transferred.

Between 85 and 100 employes of the Pennsylvania railroad here will be transferred to Canton, Mingo Junction and Conway as a result of action taken by the company in eliminating the "back shop" or locomotive reconditioning plant here, and the reduction of car repair operations.

The changes in the shops are scheduled to go into operation January 1, railroad officials said today.

Elimination of the reconditioning shop will affect between 50 and 75 employes who will be sent to other points on the division.

In the car department, repair work will be practically discontinued along certain lines here, necessitating a reduction of approximately 38 employes in that department where normally 95 or more are employed.

After January 1 only ordinary and emergency locomotive repair work will be done at the Wellsville shops instead of general repair jobs as previously.

The completion of the Yellow Creek "Y" over which coal and ore can be moved between the Great Lakes and other points in the Central region without the necessity of extensive switching operations in the Wellsville yards primarily is responsible for the reduction of forces here, it is said.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 381 N Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation

23 ARE DEAD IN NEW YORK FROM POISON LIQUOR

MORE DEATHS ARE EXPECTED AMONG 89 ILL

Christmas "Cheer" Toll in Metropolis is Mounting.

CHEMISTS SCORED

Medical Examiner Says Government Men Doctored Alcohol.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The treasury decided today to take the poison out of denatured alcohol.

Garrard B. Winston, under secretary, announced that the dry unit's chemists have been instructed to prepare formulas for industrial alcohol that will make it "nasty and undrinkable but not poisonous."

This action was taken as result of numerous deaths over the country from drinking poisoned alcohol.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Wth 23 persons dead from poison liquor, more deaths were expected today among the 89 men and women in various hospitals suffering from denatured alcohol poisoning contracted during the Christmas holiday celebration.

Following autopsies upon some of the victims, Chief Medical Examiner Norris announced that government chemists had doctored alcohol with poisons in an effort to make it unfit to drink. It was these poisons, Dr. Norris said, that the bootlegger was unable to remove through redistillation.

Federal Prohibition Administrator Chester P. Mills defended the government's course and said that he would not be surprised to see more casualties after the New Year's eve celebration.

A government investigation may be ordered in an effort to locate the source of the poison rum which wrought such havoc in the New York district.

Dr. Alexander O. Getler, chief toxicologist of Bellevue hospital, who examined the bodies of 14 of the victims of the fatal gin and whiskey, said that death in these cases had been due to ethyl—not wood alcohol.

The death list now exceeds that of last Christmas.

President Sees Another Year of Prosperity in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — President Coolidge sees another banner year of prosperity for the United States in 1927.

Except in certain agricultural sections and in a few industries there are no signs of depression on the economic horizon, the presidential spokesman declared today.

Opportunities for employment are increasing, notably in the east and New England, there is an abundant supply of capital and labor, the American habit of spending is aiding production—all these indicate no letdown in prosperity, he said.

It is true that certain agricultural products are not getting fair prices and cotton is off this year, but these can be remedied, the spokesman declared. He pointed out that cotton producers had enjoyed great prosperity for the three years previous to the last and he thought they would well weather the present storm.

Kentucky Constable And Four Deputies Held for Slaying

PINEVILLE, Ky., Dec. 28.—A constable and four of his deputies today were being held in jail here without bond, in connection with the Christmas day slaying of Dr. R. L. Lattimore, aged physician.

Bitner Smith, constable, and Gustavus Smith, Daniel Smith, Frank Bowman and Zinn Girtman, all deputies, were ordered arrested by Coroner W. G. Taylor early today on warrants charging wilful murder following an inquest into the killing late yesterday.

"It was the most brutal and inhuman slaying in the bloody history of this part of the state." D. M. Bingham, county attorney declared.

The officers, who declared that they went to the physician's residence to arrest him on a minor charge, were held responsible by the 12-year-old son of the slain man for the 20 shots that riddled Lattimore's body, according to a story told Bingham by the youth.

Dr. Lattimore, according to evidence introduced at the cororner's inquest yesterday, was shot after he had asked the officers to "please wait a minute until I finish my Christmas dinner before taking me to jail."

U. S. Will Take No Sides in Present Nicaraguan Revolt

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The United States has not, and will not, take sides in the present Nicaraguan revolution, the White House declared today.

The president's spokesman declared marines were landed in Nicaragua to protect American lives and property and for no other reason.

Admiral L. T. Latimer has not molested the Liberals under Dr. Juan Sacasa and he will not be permitted to do so, it was said.

Sacasa is still in Puerto Cabezas, Liberal capital, and has been offered a house as headquarters by the American Bragman's Bluff Lumber company.

DEATH ROLL

CHRIST'S mother was Jewish girl and his earthly relatives were of the Jewish race. Keep that in mind.

THERE is no bitterness in hoping that the 1927 model Santa Claus will bring Uncle Sam some flying machines that will go up and stay up.

OUR dashing experiments as a great flying nation have become, as the French say, more ridiculous.

We plan a flight from California to Hawaii, three proud "non" stop planes to skim over the Pacific together. Two flop, one will not rise at all. Score: 100 per cent failure, "Not enough fuel," someone said.

THEN we decided to have a striking flight to Panama. Again three machines were to show what we can do and they did. Another failure, somebody said "oil trouble."

Now this glorious nation decides to impress South America and the wide world with a flight all around the southern continent. And already troubles are beginning.

WHAT is the matter with this country and its flying. There is nothing the matter with its flopping. That is 100 per cent perfect. Are some of the leftover wartime patrioteers providing machines. This country invented the machine, has any number of fine mechanics and pilots. What is wrong?

MR. SMITH of Fort Wayne builds himself a death monument of red, white and blue stone, weighing 10 tons, and selects six pallbearers, all women that were formerly his sweethearts. The monument will not weigh down his body, only a little earth will be above him, for says he, "When Gabriel blows that trumpet, I don't want to be impeded by a concrete overcoat."

THOUSANDS think about what to do with their bodies after death, more earnestly than they ever think of using their brains during life.

Nobody knows what is to happen to us later, but it is quite certain that Mr. Smith will be surprised, if he has any sensation when the time comes.

TO preserve Mr. Smith intact, with all due reverence, would be to preserve imperfection. The same remark applies to all. Who can seriously believe that such is the cosmic plan.

And if Mr. Smith arises, perfect, his sweeties won't know him, and he won't know himself. Therefore, plan for good work here. You can control that.

Storms Grip Europe

storms at sea which are subjecting vessels to tremendous buffeting. The Holland-American line, New Amsterdam, arrived at Plymouth from New York today 26 hours overdue.

Epidemic of Influenza.

Eight persons are now reported dead in Madrid and 20 deaths have been reported from the provinces.

The deaths are largely among the poorer classes, who have no adequate protection from the elements.

An epidemic of influenza and grippe is feared as the result of the unseasonable storms and cold.

Flood Conditions Worse.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 28.—After an all-night rain of more than an inch, flood conditions grew worse here today, with the expectation that the Cumberland river would swell several more feet before it reached its crest tonight.

Approximately 3,500 are homeless in Nashville as the result of the overflowing of the Cumberland river. The property damage here alone will reach $600,000, it was estimated. Towns up and down the river from Nashville are inundated, with business virtually suspended and rail and highway traffic demoralized.

Clarksville has more than 600 without homes; Carthage, 500; Hartville, 10; Celina, 200 homes abandoned. Other towns along the river suffering damage were Lebanon, Jacksonville, Ashland City and Gainsboro.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Starting from a slightly lower level of prices at the opening of the market, the industrial and specialty stock leaders made moderate recoveries from Monday's closing slump in early trading today. Aggressive moves were made by a number of the oil stocks, under the lead of Atlantic Refining and Pan American. The motor stocks were slightly reactionary, and failed in this period to recover with the balance of the speculative list.

The weekly summary of brokers' borrowings showed an increase of only $31,000,000, which was considered favorable under the circumstances. Money renewal rates continued at 5½ per cent, and the supply of funds was reported ample for all requirements. Only the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was declared by American can directors.

Sharp reactions occurred in the second hour in prices of a number of the industrial and specialty stocks which led Monday's early rally the list included International Combustion, Warner Brothers, Continental Baking, and Allied Chemical. The commission houses reported a good volume of tax selling and the professionals were arrayed quite strongly on the short side of the market.

W. A. Cline's Sedan Reported Stolen in Cleveland Sunday

A 1926 model Dodge sedan, belonging to W. A. Cline, St. George street carpenter, was stolen in Cleveland Sunday, according to a report made to police here yesterday afternoon. Cline drove to Cleveland Friday to obtain two tires, which had been stolen from the machine upon a previous visit and which had been recovered by the police. The police here are looking for a suspect.

W. H. MANAGAN WRECK VICTIM

Chester Kin Believe he Was Killed in Train Crash.

W. H. Managan, 26, residing at Miami, Fla., is believed to have been killed in the head-on collision between two crack southern railway trains late Thursday night at Rockmart, Ga., while enroute to Chester to spend Christmas with his wife.

Mrs. Managan, who is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Strawburg, on the Chester-Pughtown road, fears that the one unidentified victim of the wreck is her husband who had planned to travel north on the Ponce de Leon "flyer" which plunged into the Royal Palm, south bound.

Cards and letters received by Mrs. Managan from her husband early last week, strengthen the belief that he was killed. He said in one of the letters that he would motor to Mount Dora and board the train there. It is pointed out that if such was the case he should have boarded the train.

Relatives today sought the aid of Pennsylvania Railroad company officials in seeking to identify the body now being held at Rockmart. A description of Managan was wired there and an answer is expected later in the day.

Managan is described as being 5 feet six inches in height, dark brown hair, blue eyes and a scar on the left forefinger.

Parents of Mrs. Managan, who formerly resided at Wheeling, moved to their present home six months ago when Mr. Strawburg, who is employed by the Ohio Power company, was transferred from Wheeling to Steubenville.

Meanwhile, the state department continues to mark time and await developments. It has no comment to make on the Mexican situation, and no new notes are planned, it was said at the department today.

The open hostility in congress to any break with Mexico, and no less open criticism of the department's policy in intervening in Nicaragua, has also served to promote caution on the part of state department officials.

The proposed senatorial investigation into the activities of American marines in Nicaragua seemed in doubt today following a conference between Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committe, and Secretary of State Kellogg.

Nicaraguan Situation.

Kellogg assured Borah that the marines were landed only to protect American lives and property, and that they were taking no sides between the Nicaraguan Conservatives and Liberals, who are now battling for control of the little republic. Borah appeared satisfied, although he intimated that he may later have some "startling disclosures" to make concerning the origin of the revolt in Nicaragua and the influences back of it.

"The Nicaraguan revolution was planned and inspired by eight or ten men who are not even Nicaraguans, and largely for business reasons," said Borah. He refused to amplify this remark, although he said that "the truth is that an effort is being made to get us into a cowardly little war with Mexico.

"All this cry of Communism and Bolshevism is an effort to justify war with Mexico. They talk Communism, but what they mean is war."

The Idaho senator did not identify "they." It is a matter of record, however, that many of the charges of Communism and Bolshevism have emanated from sources very close to the state department.

At a fashionable wedding in London recently, the groom was attended by two best men, the bride was escorted to the altar by her prospective father-in-law, and instead of bridesmaids there were little flower girls

13 LIVES LOST, HEAVY DAMAGE IN FLOOD ZONE

Hundreds are Homeless in Three Southern States.

5,000 IN FLIGHT

Swollen Rivers Expected to Reach Crest Tonight.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 28.—With 13 dead, hundreds homeless and property damage estimated at $1,000,000, flood waters in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi were expected to reach their crest today.

No immediate relief was promised nearly 5,000 flood victims, who were forced to leave their homes in the lowlands, and it may be days before they can go back to them.

Out of their banks for nearly a week as the result of heavy rains, the Cumberland, Tennessee and Tombigbee rivers will reach their crest tonight and then slowly recede, the weather bureau predicted.

The known death toll divided by states is:

Arkansas, 6; Mississippi, 5; Tennessee, 2.

In addition to deaths, destruction of property and hardships, many towns in Tennessee and Mississippi were without train service as the result of high waters. The Louisville & Nashville and Illinois Central lines were badly crippled in Tennessee and Mississippi.

Some commercial establishments in Nashville and other Tennessee towns were forced to suspend business, while the damage to crops, highways, live stock, railroad property and homes has been heavy.

Schoolhouses were used in Chattanooga to house the flood refugees, while warehouses and public buildings afforded a temporary shelter for the homeless in Nashville.

Relief work was well organized, it was said, and there was no apparent sufferings.

PLAN PEN TRIP FOR M'DERMOTT

Slayer of Mellett May be Sentenced Today.

CANTON, O., Dec. 28.—Unless present plans of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock go awry, Patrick Eugene McDermott, convicted of first degree murder in the death of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, will be on his way to the state penitentiary within the next 24 hours.

E. L. Mills, counsel for McDermott, late yesterday filed a motion for a new trial. It is expected that this will be considered by Judge E. W. Diehl today. There is a general impression among counsel for both the state and defense that the motion will be overruled without argument.

McClintock, if this course is taken, will immediately request Judge Diehl to have McDermott brought into court and sentenced to life imprisonment, which will be the punishment meted out him as a result of the recommendation for mercy made by the members of the jury when they returned their verdict of guilty of first degree murder, last Friday evening, after deliberating less than 45 minutes.

The show which will be open morning, afternoon and evening every day this week, will close Saturday evening. Every person entering the show is entitled to a chance on several cartons of eggs which are distributed each evening.

Cincinnati Forced To Turn on Street Lights at 10 a. m.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 28.—Heavy clouds and smoke shrouded Cincinnati in midnight darkness shortly after 10:00 o'clock this morning. Street lights were turned on and automobiles were forced to run with beaming headlights.

United States Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux announced that exceptionally heavy clouds caused the phenomenon, which lasted for nearly an hour.

NAME DEPUTY IN FINDINGS

Discrepancy Reported in Examination in Butler County.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28.—The charge that J. P. Dick, deputy Butler county auditor, "not only converted to his personal use collected that he did not show as on hand, or collected, by the footings and summaries of his cash book, but also used at least a large part of the balance he showed by his cash book from day to day as being in the 'drawers,' is contained in a report made public here today by state auditor Joseph Tracy.

The report covered the final examination by state examiner Frank Thomas of the Miami conservancy district collection of assessments in Butler county. Thomas' report dealt with the period from Sept. 1, 1925, to Oct. 16, last.

Dick, according to Thomas' report, collected these assessments for the county treasurer in Butler county.

The final examination, according to Thomas, verified a former holding that a net discrepency of $2,209.98 was chargeable against Dick. The report credited Dick with paying in this money Oct. 13, last.

Confesses Murder

cording to Leo's confession. They had not been on friendly terms, he said, because Charles had told him he was not a fit father for his three-year-old twin boys who were residing on the farm. This, he said, opened an argument.

They scuffled, he said, and he found himself at his brother's back. He had brought the gun along, he said, at his brother's order as they had been troubled by chicken thieves. Leo weighs about 120 pounds. His brother weighed about 180 pounds.

Clubbed Woman to Death.

"Something flashed across my mind," authorities say he remarked in his confession, "and I pulled the trigger, because he had threatened me."

Then he said, he saw Charles' wife rushing toward him with a hatchet, and when she neared he struck her over the head with the gun.

"I saw she was going to die," he is said to have declared in his story of the tragedy," and so I clubbed her again. I didn't use the hatchet though."

Halterman showed no contrition or emotion while reciting the incidents of his brother's death, auditors reported, but when he told of Mrs. Halterman's death his voice indicated he felt remorseful.

Leo Halterman is the father of three children. The three-year-old twins sons resided with him on his half brother's farm, while a baby lived with the mother, who was estranged from her husband.

The murdered couple had no children.

Mrs. Glady's Houck, Specialist's Wife, Is Still Missing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — The search for Mrs. Gladys Walter Houck, wife of the mentally deranged Dr. Knute Houck, government psychiatrist, continued today, but with capital detectives admittedly making little progress.

Mrs. Houck disappeared two weeks ago following a quarrel with her husband and no trace of her has been founds. Police still cling to the theory that she is dead, either by her own hand or by another's.

A woman traveler in Arkansas thought to be Mrs. Houck by the Blytheville police apparently failed of identification, according to local authorities.

The Washington police were advised by long distance telephone today from Capt. B. E. Clarke of Canton, Ohio, a brother-in-law of the missing woman, that the Arkansas clue had apparently faded out.

SPEAKER, COBB READY TO SUE JUDGE LANDIS

Attorney Says Redress Will be Sought in Court.

BOYD RETAINED

Former Managers Will Act in Unison, is Report.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 28.—Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb probably will go into the courts in an effort to seek redress from Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis and the American league according to W. H. Boyd, Speaker's attorney, who arrived here from Washington this morning with the two former managers.

"I am going into every legal phase of the situation at Mr. Speaker's request," Boyd said.

"If 'Spoke' then decides on such action I will represent him in the courts.

"I do not represent Cobb but I understand that they will act in unison."

Boyd laughed when told of rumors that Speaker and Cobb might file suit for $1,000,000.

"Not nearly any such sum as that," Boyd declared.

Speaker and Cobb eluded newspapermen upon their arrival, Boyd declaring that he did not know where they had gone but that they would have no statements to make.

Boyd later declared that he would go to Chicago in a day or two but would not say whether this trip was for the purpose of visiting Commissioner Landis.

The lawyer hinted that Cobb's stay here would be brief, saying: "I don't know whether he will go to Detroit or Chicago."

Meanwhile all efforts to locate Tris and Ty were unavailing.

Mrs. Speaker told reporters that she had not heard from her husband since he left Sunday for Washington.

Risberg Promises Revelations.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 28.—Charles "Swede" Risberg, who played four seasons, from 1917 to 1920, as shortstop of the Chicago White Sox and who was involved in the "Black Sox" scandal of 1919 which shocked the baseball world when it became public the following year, today declared he could make revelations of "crooked baseball" which would startle fandom more deeply than ever and precipitate a diamond scandal which would far eclipse the Cobb-Speaker-Leonard affair.

Two Dead, Another Seriously Burned In Urbana Blast

URBANA, O., Dec. 28.—Two are dead here today, and a third seriously burned as the result of using kerosene as a fire kindler. The dead are: Mrs. Abram Reams, 25, and her sister, Mrs. William Coleshott, 17. Coleshott is in a hospital here with body and head burns suffered when he attempted to rescue the women. The home was destroyed.

Mrs. Reams, according to report, used the oil to start a fire in the kitchen range when the fuel exploded and engulfed her and her sister in flames. Coleshott went to their assistance from an adjoining room but flames prevented him from aiding them.

Mrs. Reams died in the flames, and her sister a few hours later at a hospital.

BEBE DANIELS IN SCREEN HIT

"Stranded in Paris" is Photoplay at Ceramic.

Flashy, vigorous and extremely human is "Stranded in Paris," Bebe Daniels' Paramount comedy of Parisian life which opened a three-day engagement last night at the Ceramic theatre.

Supported by James Hall, Ford Sterling and Iris Stuart, Miss Daniels, fresh from her triumph in "The Campus Flirt," which shattered attendance records in practically every city it appeared, has contributed one of the most deliciously peppery performances ever witnessed on a screen.

Starting with swiftness and gaining momentum as it unreels, piling situation upon situation, the climax is reached in a thrilling tally-ho chase down a steep, narrow incline.

The story goes from a drab boarding house in the United States to the famous cafes and modiste shops of Paris. One of the main attractions of the film is its photography. Cameraman William Marshall and Director Arthur Rosson have contributed several of the most unusual effects yet shown in motion pictures. Just how they were attained will always remain a mystery for the studio, we understand, has refused to disclose the secret of their atttainment.

FRANKLIN FARM BUREAU MEETS

That farm taxes are 28 per cent above pre-war while farm income is only 113 per cent above pre-war was stated by C. C. Bair of the field service department of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation at a meeting of the Franklin township farm bureau held at Millport.

In a discussion of legislative matters he said that farmers in Ohio have paid 60 per cent of the cost of the improved roads while their traffic has constituted only 12 per cent of the total on the roads. He appealed to those present to help the farm bureau movement to equalize these conditions. He called attention to the fact that $3,500,000.00 had been saved farmers in Ohio because of elimination of the state tax levy which was brought about by the farm organizations. The activities of the various departments of the farm bureau were explained by Bair. Rebates from the service department alone have amounted to $400,000.00 in five years which means a saving of that amount to the farmers of Ohio through cooperative purchasing.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chairman, B. W. Grubbs; vice-chairman, Harry McPherson; secretary-treasurer, Elvy Thompson; purchasing agent, C. C. Brown; shipping agent, E. A. Mulherin.

Re-organization of the county farm bureau for the year was completed at a meeting of the board of directors held in the city hall at Lisbon. E. M. Davis, West township, S. N. Van Blaricom, Salem township, J. M. Kerr, Yellow Creek township, Mrs Mabel Satterthwait, Butler township and Mrs. J. M. Huston, St. Clair township were elected as members of the executive committee. They with the officers elected at the annual meeting constitute the executive committee. D. F. Hahn, Knox township is president; A. E. Bailey, Knox township, vice-president, and J. C. Pottorf, Salem township, secretary-treasurer. D. F. Hahn and S. N. Van Blaricom were elected as delegates to the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation to be held in Columbus on January 31. J. C. Pottorf, E. Y. Gamble and S. N. Van Blaricom were appointed as a service committee. The service department of the Farm Bureau has charge of the cooperative buying and selling.

COMMISSIONER'S TERM EXTENDED

At the December meeting of the county board of health, the term of office of County Health Commissioner Dr. T. T. Church of Salem was extended for six months, or from July 1st next to the close of 1927.

There will be no county sanitary officer working out of the county health office during 1927, no funds being provided for this work. During the last two years former Sheriff Gomer Lewis has been employed as sanitary officer.

The budget commission has provided $600 for the expense of such an officer, and what work is required of an officer will be performed by others. The elimination of a full time sanitary officer has resulted in a saving of $1,600 to the county.

Select Home Physician.

The contract for the services of a physician at the county home for 1927 has been awarded by the county commissioners to Dr. J. C. Gruber of Lisbon. Bids for this service were opened by the commissioners Monday afternoon. The bid was divided into two parts, $500 being bid for medical and surgical attention, and $700 for supplying all medicinal drugs required for patients during the coming year, or a total bid of $1,200.

Divorce Petition Filed.

Declaring in his petition that his wife has been guilty of wilful absence for more than three years, an action has been filed in common pleas court by William C. Bellville of East Liverpool, by his counsel, G. Jay Clark against his wife, Mary Agnes Bellville, said to be residing at 212 West Second street, East Liverpool.

The couple were married at Chester, W. Va., July 28th, 1919.

Suit Instituted.

An action to recover $285.91 with interest from Dec. 9th last has been filed in common pleas court by Walter Mick against John C. Swickard, Flora C. Swickard, the Citizens Lumber company, L. T. Steepee and the Potters Savings & Loan Co. The amount is claimed to be due on an account of material sold and delivered the defendants.

Rush for Dog Tags.

There has been a decided rush for 1927 dog license tags, according to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton. Up to the close of business Monday evening 458 licenses had been issued for the new year, nearly 100 more than issued for the corresponding term in 1925.

Marriage Licenses.

A marriage license has been issued to Elmer L. Stewart of East Liverpool, and Miss Mildred Boyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boyce. The couple were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon Presbyterian church by the Rev. P. W. Macaulay.

Alimony Order.

Temporary alimony of $35 has been ordered paid by Amos McGeorge, defendant in a divorce action brought against him by his wife, Edna McGeorge. The court has also ordered McGeorge to pay $10 as court costs on or before Jan. 26th next.

Leave to File.

Ty and Tris Advised To Try Civil Action To Clear Up Scandal

No Governmental Agency, Except Courts, Exists Through Which They Can Strike Back, Banished Stars Told in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker have been advised by certain of their friends in congress to file $1,000,000 damage suits against Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis and the American League because of their being "dropped" from organized baseball.

It was this advice, according to well founded reports today, that the two stars came to the national capital to get. They arrived mysteriously yesterday morning, remained closeted in a room all day, and departed just as mysteriously last night for Cleveland.

If the pair had any idea of enlisting the aid of federal agencies in their fight for "vindication" they apparently abandoned it soon after arriving here. They appeared at no government department, called on no government officials, and evaded questions by newspaperman who found them at Union station last night about to depart for Cleveland. They did have several telephone conversations with friends, however.

They were advised that there existed no governmental agency through which they could strike back at organized baseball, except the courts. Several of the senate's legal lights said their only avenue of action lay in personal damage suits.

Cobb and Speaker were accompanied by W. H. Boyd, attorney for Speaker.

Reports were current that both Cobb and Speaker would appeal to the department of justice to investigate organized baseball. Government officials declared the baseball stars would not have a case as the supreme court has officially decided that baseball was not interstate commerce and therefore not subject to governmental regulation.

Announcement by Rep. Kelly (R) of Michigan, that he would sponsor a resolution in the house authorizing a congressional inquiry of the case aroused little support here. Experienced legislators said the house would ignore the resolution because of lack of authority over the subject.

"Both Cobb and Speaker should file a civil suit for damages against Kenesaw Mountain Landis and their own league," said Senator Watson (R) of Indiana, an ardent baseball fan. "As no federal laws were violated, there is no federal jurisdiction over the case and congress cannot investigate it. All Cobb and Speaker can do is to go to the courts for redress. They ought to sue for $1,000,000 damages and then if they are innocent, they would be vindicated. Personally, I believe they are innocent of wrong-doing."

Senator Harris (D) of Georgia, who is Cobb's warmest friend in the senate, voiced the same opinion. He declared the players were being "deprived of their livelihood" by the action of Judge Landis and would have a real cause for damages.

CLUB OWNERS DENY CHARGES

Day of Shady Transactions are Over Now They Say.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
(Copyright, 1926, By International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Admission that irregularities, bordering on "shady transactions," were practiced at the gates of certain major league ball parks some years ago was freely made today by Ban Johnson, president of the American League, in a telegram to the writer.

Mr. Johnson's message came in response to charges of "crooked turnstiles" and "other acts of dishonesty" preferred against the owners of big league ball clubs by Ty Cobb in an exclusive interview with Bert Walker, International News Service special correspondent. The league president, who was active in bringing about the recent baseball expose in which the names of Cobb and Tris Speaker figured so prominently, added that the "guilty parties" of the turnstiles episode had met swift punishment and that today the practice, so far as he knew, was non-existant.

The text of Johnson's frank message follows:

"Some years ago, we had some shady transactions at the gates. There was a thorough investigation and the guilty parties were promptly punished. To the best of my knowledge, everything in our organization today is conducted in a clean and orderly manner."

The exceptions were furnished by John McGraw, Comiskey and Ball. The latter merely declined to permit Cobb to class him "with dishonest and crooked owners" and let it go at that. McGraw declared he felt the official reply should come from Judge Landis.

Comiskey said he "welcomed" an investigation by anyone, in or out of baseball, who believed they possessed evidence of dishonesty. He added that, so far as he was concerned, such an investigation could include the entire personnel of the sport from the highest to the lowest.

Some of the replies to Cobb vouchsafed by club residents were as follows:

Phil Ball, St. Louis: "Mr. Cobb is mistaken when he puts me in with dishonest and crooked owners, if he said it."

Charles A. Comiskey, Chicago: "If Cobb, or anyone else, in or out of baseball, has any information regarding dishonesty acts pertaining to anything in baseball, the Chicago club would welcome an investigation now, starting with the owners and including the entire personnel of the complete organization."

Robert Quinn, Boston Red Sox: "Charges quoted are so childish they don't require any answer."

Clark Griffith, Washington: "If Cobb made statements credited, I am at a loss to know of any foundation for them. If any irregularities exist they are absolutely unknown to me."

Emil E. Fuchs, Boston Braves: "Since by entry, I have found baseball beyond reproach. I have full faith in the integrity of player, manager and owner. The ethics and standards of baseball today are higher than in other business or profession, in my judgement. Last fall in Boston, I witnessed players who worked harder against the clubs which, sentimentally, they desired to win the championship."

John A. Heydler, president of the National League: "I have no comment to make on the charges that Cobb is alleged to have made regarding ticket scandals except to say that to my knowledge there is nothing in the business conduct of the game by officials and club owners to warrant them."

PLAY CANTON FIVE TONIGHT

High Squad Off for Third Hard Game of Season.

With every player, except, perhaps, Captain Jimmy Hamilton, in good condition, Coach Lorah's high school squad will leave this afternoon for Canton where they will take on McKinley in the third contest of the current season.

O. V. Boone, former athletic director of the East Liverpool school, is now an instructor at McKinley and consequently the game will prove of more than ordinary interest to the Cantonians.

Hamilton's knee is not in condition to permit him to play a full game and it is likely he will sit on the bench for a couple of weeks.

The squad of 10 or 12 players will make the trip by automobile.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON.
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you grip the ground by initiating a slight exertion toward drawing your feet together, you will note at once a springiness throughout the legs, and you cannot help but note how solidly and and firmly you have hold of the ground with your feet. It may even be mirth-provoking to discover that you can attach yourself so firmly to the ground. But that grip of the earth is the very foundation of the good golf swing. With looseness between you and mother earth your swing is likely to get off balance or suffer somewhere. This method fixes the grip of both feet, too, and thereafter throughout the swing they will maintain that grip. The one thing to watch out for, however, is not to overdo this. Too much gripping will result in rigidity in the leg and foot muscles. Employ this grip in utmost moderation—a very little of it is a great plenty.

Movin' On

AARON WARD, sent to the Chicago Sox in the recent deal between that club and the Yankees, hopes to get a crack at Eddie Collins' old job at second base. Ward, utility infielder for the Yankees for three years and virtually a regular for six seasons, found himself benched last season in favor of Tony Lazzeri, Coast League home run star.

AARON WARD

Ward was a Yankee vet in point of service, joining the team from the Charlestown club, Sally League, in 1918. Broke into game with Little Rock in 1915.

Has collected dough in four world's series with Yankees, the three in a row 1921-23, and last fall's. Hit .306 in 1921 but during the rest of his career has had trouble hitting anywhere near the .300 mark.

WADE BOASTS GOOD DEFENSE

Alabama Shows Improvement for Coast Game.

By JACK JAMES.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—It now appears that all of us enthusiasts—expert and inexpert alike—who have been figuring the Alabama football team of this season as slightly inferior to the team that favored us with a visit just a year ago are way out of line.

'Tisn't so. Quite to the contrary, in fact!

This information comes from a none-too confidential source that this reporter deems authentic and reliable. The source's name is Wallace Wade, and he has something to do with football down Tuscaloosa way.

This Mr. Wade admitted today in a none-too-confidential moment that he considers his crimson tide of 1926 superior defensively to last year's road-show, and that he expects to be able to demonstrate as much to the complete satisfaction of the constituency on Saturday afternoon prox.

What Mr. Wade did not admit—though he must have known it at the moment—was that his crimson tide of 1926 must needs be superior defensively to last year's company if it and he are to cope as successfully with "Pop" Warner and his sons of the Stanford Red as they did a year back with Enoch Bagshaw and his Washington huskies. On this angle deponent maintaineth a modest and discreet silence.

In the matter of offensive power—an important consideration, if one hopes to win football games as well as to impede the other fellow's goalward march—Mr. Wade believes that this year's troupe and last year's are about on a par. Wherefore one may assume, with some degree of reason, that the crimson tide of 1926 has flooded to a high-water mark above and beyond that established during the season of 1925 and on the propitious dawning of the year 1926.

The Alabama troupe has entered upon an intensive campaign of conditioning that will culminate in one last orgy of knock-down-and-drag-out on or about Thursday afternoon.

Coach Wade in the workouts he is conducting appears to be driving ahead on a well arranged plan of attack—and an attack that might give "Pop" Warner plenty to think about, at that.

The Alabama offensive seems to start largely from punt formation, giving the backs opportunity either to kick, pass or rush with equal facility.

"Lovely" Barnes, who will be well and favorably remembered locally for his efforts of last New Year's day, is now skipper of the ball club, punter, safety-man and signal-caller. Barnes fills "Pooley" Hubert's position, if not his shoes. He comes pretty close to doing the latter, too, so they do say.

Elks, Salineville Battle For Fourth Place In Cage Loop

Two Victories and Two Defeats Each Gives Rival Squads .500 Standing; Undefeated Salem Crew is Leading Circuit.

EAST LIVERPOOL'S county basketball league entry—The Elks—and Tom Cartwright's Salineville team are tied for fourth place in the loop with two victories apiece and two defeats, the standing of the circuit today reveals, with the Salem Mullins five holding down first place, followed by Columbiana and Damascus.

Up to date the teams are running as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct
Salem	4	0	1.000
Columbiana	3	1	.750
Damascus	2	1	.667
East Liverpool	2	2	.500
Salineville	2	2	.500
East Palestine	1	2	.333
Wellsville	0	3	.000
Lisbon	0	3	.000

The Elks of East Liverpool lost their first two games to East Palestine and Damascus, and then copped the next two, defeating the Columbiana Boosters and trimming Lisbon.

Salineville took over Wellsville by the close margin of 17 to 15 in the opener and then lost to Salem, 44 to 24. Columbiana nosed out a 34 to 29 victory over Salineville and Lisbon lost one, 18 to 14. This gives the Cartwright aggregation a tie with the locals for fourth place.

Columbiana, the second place crew, won three in a row at the outset, toppling Damascus, Wellsville and Salineville, but ran into their first defeat at the hands of the Elks.

Damascus advanced at the expense of East Liverpool and East Palestine, but dropped their opener to Columbiana and consequently are trailing the Boosters. Their Saturday game with Wellsville was postponed on account of the inability of the latter club to get a floor for the contest.

The Elks contributed East Palestine's lone victory. The Paragons have lost to Damascus and Salem and will play Salineville at East Palestine tonight.

Wellsville and Lisbon each have dropped three in a row. Manager Davis' outfit has lost games to Salineville, Columbiana and Salem, while the county seat aggregation was unable to fork out a single decision in battles with Salem, East Liverpool and Salineville.

The schedule for the week follows:

Tonight.
Salineville at East Palestine.

Wednesday.
Damascus at Salineville.
Wellsville at Lisbon.
East Palestine at Columbiana.

Thursday.
Elks at Wellsville.
Columbiana at Salem.

Friday.
Lisbon at Damascus.

Saturday.
Salem at East Liverpool.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Did you ever write a letter to Frederic J. Haskin? You can ask him any question of fact and get the answer in a personal letter. Here is a great educational idea introduced into the lives of the most intelligent people in the world—American newspaper readers. It is a part of that best purpose of a newspaper — service. There is no charge except two cents in stamps for return postage. Address Frederic J. Haskin, Director, The East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Q. Having no food, would a person keep alive longer on wine or water? R. B.

A. The Public Health Service says that a person can live longer on water than on wine, because wine unless diluted with water would not satisfy his thirst.

Q. What is jasper? W. B.

A Jasper is an impure form of cryptocrystalline quartz. The color is usually red, brown, or yellow according to the amount of iron oxide contained in the stone There is also a form of jasper which is dark green and opalescent. This is probably the quality spoken of as forming one of the jewels on the breastplate of the high priest and as a foundation stone of the wall of the New Jerusalem.

Q. Which Presidents left the United States during their terms of office? A. A. McG.

A. They were: Roosevelt—visited the Panama Canal Zone and went to the city of Panama; Taft—crossed the border into Mexico and dined with President Diaz at Juarez; Cleveland—on a fishing trip exceeded the boundary of the United States; Wilson—Peace Conference in Europe; and Harding—British Columbia, Canada.

A For the calendar year 1924, 25,243 returns were filed reporting net income of $5,000 and over by American citizens the source of which was in foreign countries. The foreign income was reported to be $46,364,366, the tax paid foreign countries was $2,476,804.

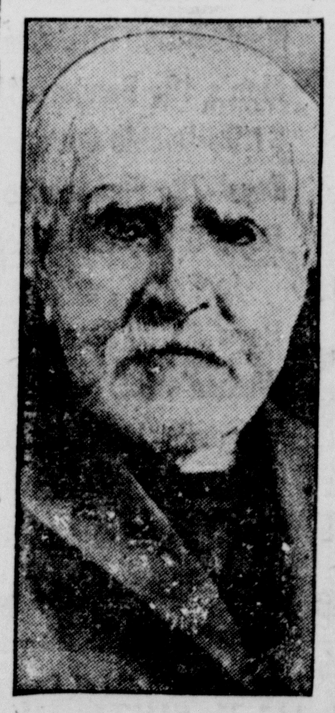
114 Christmases



Thomas Sloan (above) of Guthrie, Okla., claims Christmas as his 114th birthday. Born in Ireland, he says he came to America an even 100 years ago.

IRISH LAUNCH TITLE DRIVE

Notre Dame Champs Face Hard Sledding to Repeat.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 28.—It being the open season for hunters, the Notre Dame basketball team is going out to bag a wild cat on Thursday night. The Irish are keen to add Northwestern's scalp to their season's collection, which includes thus far the pelts of Armour Tech, Earlham, Iowa and Minnesota.

Coach George Keogan's Irish cagers, who hold the mythical Indiana and Western basketball championships as the result of their performance last year, when they won 19 of 20 games, are out to repeat the championship claims. Sixteen games, and not a set up in the lot, remain to be played before March ends the season.

Dr. Keogan gave his squad only a few days rest during the holidays, and ordered them all back for practice yesterday. Keogan is putting them through two hard practice sessions each day, in anticipation of the Northwestern tilt here Thursday night and the return game at Evanston next Monday night.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

WE find that during the holiday season this baseball mess has taken the place of "bonded stuff" and the funny Christmas presents Aunt Minny always sends as the chief topic of conversation when good fellows get together.

And the interesting slant on these discussions is that the average fan now finds himself hopelessly at sea as far as having any clear idea of just what the scandal is all about—is concerned what Tris and Ty did and didn't do, said and didn't say, etc. He is at sea regarding the ethics of the manner in which the baseball moguls handled the case. He has no clear conception of just how and why the matter was kept under cover for three months before being spilled.

He seems definitely satisfied regarding but one phase of the case. That is that Dutch Leonard must find his "revenge" sort of an unsatisfactory one. Not one fan within my hearing has had a kind word or a defense for Leonard.

The public seems, generally speaking, in sympathy with Cobb and Speaker. There is no sentiment for Leonard.

That "settlement" that the American league made with Leonard sticks in the craws of the fans. And they can't swallow it.

Thirty-four of those 64 years (half his life) has been given to baseball. And he has no idea of stepping down and out as yet. The signing of Eddie Collins recently, is taken as an indication by some that Connie is prenaring for the day when he will find it convenient to turn over the active management of the club to some one else. This, however, is mere conjecture. His principal reason for signing Collins, of course, were to strengthen his infield and to add color to the club, which would help it at the gate.

Connie broke into baseball as a catcher in 1894.

Gene Tunney, who weathered Jack Dempsey's punches for 10 rounds and got a decision over him, says that if Dempsey ever really hits Jack Delaney the lightweight champ will be knocked cold.

There are two inferences to draw. One is that Dempsey hit Tunney and failed to turn the trick because Gene was too tough. The other is that Dempsey didn't hit Tunney.

Haskin's Letter

for distribution some 6,000 films which have been furnished it by various agencies in the United States and by the governments of foreign nations. They deal in varied subjects such as scientific development, agriculture, public health and travel.

One firm will perhaps carry through an entire industry such as the making of carpets. The shepherds will be shown tending the sheep, and the shearing of the sheep, the carding of the wool, and clear on down to the weaving of the carpets will be depicted.

The titles of a few of the films distributed through the bureau will indicate the varied subjects touched upon. Some of them are: Opening Aerial Mail Service; Fighting the Fly; Plastic Surgery; Coconuts and Coconut Products in the Philippines; A Trip to Old Santa Fe; From Mine to Mint; Indian Dances and Pastimes; Silk Weaving in Japan; Homemaking in Western Canada.

Just recently the widely known Mr. "A" of India ordered 50 films on modern methods of agriculture and road building which he is planning to exhibit in the schools of his country. Another consignment has just been sent to the Prince Carol Institute of Romania. These films will be shown in the schools of Romania with instructors to explain them.

The titles of practically all of the films sent from America are in English and it is believed that from these the natives of other countries will unconsciously acquire some knowledge of English. At first an effort was made to translate the titles into the language of the country to which they were being sent, but this did not always prove successful.

Chinese Titles Prove Highbrow.

For instance, a consignment which was being sent to China bore labels which had been carefully translated into Chinese by an attache of the Chinese legation in Washington. Somehow the pictures did not appear to take so well and the director of the bureau becoming curious about the matter inquired as to the reason. Word finally came back that the titles were so "highbrow" that those seeing them were unable to read them.

Some years ago a woman from the east went down to the mountains of Kentucky with the idea of aiding in bringing to the people there some knowledge of the outside world. Dr. Holley and Miss Boggs were able to assist her by obtaining for her a large motion picture machine, such as is used in the regular theaters, and a generator to supply the current. Incidentally this generator proved a revelation to the people of that district, who had never seen gas or electricity, because it furnished light for the entire community as well as the power to run the machine. The Bureau of Commercial Economics furnished films and soon this community center drew the people from all about.

A few days ago the bureau received a letter from the head of this center asking for the regular weekly community service with films, and saying, "this settlement has been in your debt for the joy of light and moving pictures—the latter have literally brought the world into this wilderness. . . The picture machine that you and Dr. Holley secured for us is still doing excellent service. It was scorched through our fire, was almost thrown out the window of the booth, and though it doesn't shine outwardly any more, yet it brings light to the souls of these deprived hill folks." This is a phase of the work about which the bureau says little but which gives it considerable pleasure.

An interesting phase of the bureau's work which is carried on in Washington is the series of private showings at one of the large hotels during the winter. These are all free, admission being by invitation. At these are shown motion pictures depicting the latest news from the country from which they are sent and a talk is given by the ambassador of that country or his representative. Frequently native songs or dances in costume will be included in the program. These evenings are extremely popular with official and diplomating Washington because they are not only entertaining but from them much information regarding the particular country furnishing the film may be obtained which would not be available in any other manner.

The official thanks of congress was presented to the bureau in the following manner: "The Bureau of Commercial Economics deserves the thanks of congress and all the American people for its great, constructive, humanitarian work." Directing the work of such a bureau seems indeed a big task for such a small person as Anita Maris Boggs!

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

FRANK L. SMITH

These preliminaries over, they may be expected to cut loose directly after the holiday recess, and wade right in to win. The session ends March 4, so the cards will have to fall fast.

TIME was when the congressional game was a twosome—two big parties and generally no more. If a third group did, now and then, break in and raw cards for a few deals, it was in the peewee class and neither counted for much nor lasted long.

Today the whole thing is cut up into cliques—"blocs," they call 'em—so that it's hard to tell how anything will come out.

These blocs form constantly changing combinations.

The corn belt bloc, the cotton belt bloc, the wet bloc, the dry bloc, the conservative bloc, the progressive bloc, the protection bloc, the tariff bloc, the fundamentalist bloc, the liberal bloc—blocs, blocs, blocs, ever shifting and changing their arrangement and alignments.

The game's scheduled to stop March 4, yes. But who ever saw a loser willing to stop according to schedule? March 4 will find most of the blocs losers. That is to say, the legislation they're variously clamoring for will remain unenacted.

There's just one way in which they can keep the game going—in other words, force an extra session.

That way is to combine to prevent the administration bloc from getting President Coolidge's appropriation bills passed. If that happens, an extra session's a certainty and the game will go on indefinitely.

What's more, its the most approved method of playing "cut throat."

With the money left by many tourists and the prospects of bumper crops, natives of Jamaica are preparing to celebrate the holidays more freely than for several years.

A woman writer says that a kiss on the forehead denotes reverence. She might have added that a kiss on the ear denotes that the girl dodged. —Cincinnati Times-Star.

The cattle plague in Palestine and Transjordan has caused a quarantine, and owing to the prohibition against cattle slaughter, prices of most foodstuffs are mounting.

TAKE, as an illustration, the case of Frank L. Smith's disputed Illinois seat in the United States senate.

Smith's a Republican. There are more Republicans than Democrats in the senate. So will Smith be seated? Not necessarily. The Republican progressive bloc intends to vote against him. Will that beat him? Not necessarily. The Democratic states' rights bloc intends to vote in his favor.

Letters to Editor

Rood Family Case.

East Liverpool, Ohio.
December 27, 1926.

East Liverpool, O.
Dear sir:

The article published in last Friday's edition of your paper, attributed to a representative of the township trustees, gave the impression that the trustees, Red Cross and Salvation Army had not been notified of the condition of the Rood family.

This is not true for they were notified at the very beginning. The Red Cross was notified by telephone within 30 minutes after the condition of the family was learned. Twenty-four hours later I learned that there had been no investigation and that three of the Rood children had gone to school without their breakfast. I then took up a collection among the Hall China company's employes to procure a dinner for the family.

After this I went to Mr. Croxall's office and told him in the presence of Mr. McGraw, the city auditor, the need of this family and suggested that he investigate. He went to the Rood houseboat and gave Mrs. Rood an order for $5 worth of groceries, which won't go very far in feeding nine hungry people, who were on the verge of starvation. This is the only thing that the trrustees have done for this family, failing to make further inquiry as to the needs of the family.

I asked the Salvation Army for help and that organization rendered assistance without hesitancy and was glad to do so. Mrs. Leeper, the public health nurse, made two or three trips to the home. On her last visit she phoned to me that the family needed coal, but had been unable to get anybody to haul it, she said.

The Nazarene, Presbyterian and Methodist Protestant churches and other organization responded with help after an investigation had been made and the family found worthy.

Mr. Rood says that Mr. Croxall and another man whom he did not know, called at his home last Wednesday and accused him of being lazy, that he would not work when he had a chance and that he had better get a job within three of four days. Mrs. Rood was also accused of begging when her husband was working. This charge, Mrs. Rood denies. She says the only time she ever solicited was since her husband took ill, that being about two days before the family's need was discovered.

Mrs. Rood also denies that she said she owned a farm. She said she explained that she had inherited a part of the property of her father, who died about four weeks ago, but that the estate had not yet been settled, nor does she know when it will be settled. The farm was valued at about $400, she said.

I inquired of Frank Kennedy, bookkeeper for the Crockery City Ice company, for whom Mr. Rood worked last summer and was told that Mr. Rood was a willing worker. Kennedy said Rood had only loafed two days last summer that being when the river was high and he had to take care of his boat, that he worked some days when he was not able and that he never asked for help when he was working Mr. Kennedy has visited this family several times and told me that he believes it a very worthy case.

A number of false reports concerning Mr. Rood have been circulated recently but these reports, was found upon investigation, were caused by another family of the same name. Mr. Rood is a man of good habits and a church member.

I am not anxious to engage in a controversy in this matter but I feel that in justice to all parties concerned the people of East Liverpool should know the facts as I found them. I stand willing to prove every statement which I have made in this communication.

Yours very truly,
WILLARD E. McCOY,
